From Ocean to Ocean.
The Old Mountain.
One Glorious Rain.
When Angels Meet You.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

LAS VEGAS, N. M., May 14.

CROSSING THE continent once more, for perhaps the hundredth time, not a moment dull, not a mile of the journey from ocean to ocean uninteresting.

This fast train having just cut across the southeast corner of Colorado, into New Mexico, is sliding down the steep grade to Raton, with six thousand population perched six thousand six hundred and thirty feet high, above the ocean on this vast New Mexico tableland.

You roll on westward more than one hundred miles to Las Vegas, where the patient telegraph operator gets this, and are still more than six thousand feet above the ocean.

This train has been "air-conditioned" within an inch of its life, but you are glad that car windows can be opened to let in the air of New Mexico. No improvement is possible on the "air conditioning" that the Lord himself has done for New Mexico.

POETS AND ARTISTS call New Mexico the "land of sun, silence and adobe," adobe being mud of which Indians build their pueblos.

This once was the land of "sun, silence and adobe," except when Apaches from the north, or Yaquis from the south descended on some peaceful pueblo to fill with screaming and spattering blood, every adobe room.

Americans have done their best to change that "sun, silence and adobe" condition since General Stephen Kearney took possession of New Mexico in 1846, but with their energy it will take them more than ten times a thousand years to spoil this beautiful country.

MEANWHILE THE New Mexico hustlers are happy. They tell you that Colfax County, of which Raton is the county seat, has buried in the ground thirty thousand million tons of coal, not a few tons, mind you, but THIRTY THOUSAND MILLION TONS. Already the mines have a monthly payroll of four hundred thousand dollars which is "real money" at this distance from Wall street; Uncle Sam's country is not "exhausted" yet.

AND WHAT a country, such beauty, grandeur, dignity, on these high plains, tall mountains in the distance standing under pure skies.

Eighteen miles from Las Vegas stands "hermits peak," 10,500 feet above the ocean. That old mountain, that seems so near in the clear atmosphere, you think you could almost touch it with an outstretched hand, has watched over these plains for millions of years. It saw the red men coming down from Asia across the Behring Straits, to take possession and the first white men struggling in covered wagons across the rough miles, fighting the Indians. Now it sees express trains rush by, millions of automobiles gliding over smooth roads, and airplanes that roar five thousand feet above its head.

What will it see in the millions of years ahead? What will the human race do in those millions of years with this great inheritance? What will they be?

IN NEW YORK a man spends his day buried in a skyscraper when a friend on the way home in a subway tunnel says "that was a heavy rain" the other replies "oh, did it rain?" He had not known it.

It is not so where men live on the earth, see the sky, and depend on what the earth produces.

Coming out of Chicago yesterday, through Illinois, cutting eighteen miles across a corner of Iowa, into Missouri and through Kansas, toward the real West, where withering heat and dust storms have worried farmers and the government, you travel for hours through a glorious heavy rain, bringing life and happiness to animals and plants, and wealth and peace of mind to farmers.

The wheat, corn, rye, oats, grass, weeds, wild flowers and tall trees drink in the life that nature sends. Small white lambs are happy, standing under trees or against straw stacks, with their mothers, and the red pigs lie on their fat sides delighted to be washed.

IT IS A blessed rain, even the old heavy bull, standing alone in a small pasture, with a strong fence, iron ring in his nose, shut away because he would kill if he could, seems almost happy.

What the farmer does with him, civilization will so some day with any nation that wants to kill, but that time hasn't come yet.

IF YOU HAVE ever lived on a farm in boyhood, it makes you homesick to see the great barns with their rounded tops, wide mows for hay, almost bare in July, then miraculously filled as the hay loads come rolling in, a small boy sitting aloft proudly driving the horses.

The cowstalls underneath the barn, built on the side of a hill, corn cribs, smoke house, silo, are all part of the equipment and domain which the farmer rules as absolute lord and master.

How he will take being told what he must do with all these things, what acres he may plant, what crops he may harvest, remains to be seen. He may be richer, will he be happier?

AS YOU PASS through Iowa's beautiful farms you remember the motto of that splendid state, "OUR LIBERTIES WE PRIZE, AND OUR RIGHTS WE WILL MAINTAIN."

Men of Iowa and other American farmers have not changed completely since that motto was chosen and well meaning men that rule the country intending everything for the best should

TWO HOP OFF ON FLIGHT TO ROME

Sabelli and Capt. Pond Start Non-Stop Trip Despite Rain

International News Service.

NEW YORK, May 14.—Under gray skies and with mist rising from the surrounding waters, Cesare Sabelli and his pilot, Capt. George R. Pond, took off from Floyd Bennett Airport today just after dawn in a heavily-loaded Bellanca monoplane in an attempt to make Rome, Italy, without a stop.

Unmindful of the flaming death of Francisco de Pinedo, Italy's most colorful flying ace, killed at the same field when his heavily-loaded plane failed to rise, Pond risked all.

He raced the heavy plane almost the full length of the runway before even attempting to rise. Ahead of him lay a deadly sand trap of dunes and gulleys. He was rolling towards them more than a mile a minute. At the last split second he bore the tail down. "The Leonardo Da Vinci," as their plane is called, first skimmed the track, then soared over the dunes.

Sabelli and Pond made an unexpected appearance at the field before dawn today and just before 7 o'clock they wheeled out Sabelli's monoplane, which had been kept at the airport for more than a year.

The flight will be on the great circle route flying over the tip of Newfoundland, Pond said before leaving.

Shortly after their takeoff a slight drizzle began to fall.

DILLINGER CASE BLONDE MISSING

ST. PAUL, May 14.—(AP.)—An important government witness in the case of three defendants charged with harboring John Dillinger, has disappeared and today, 24 hours before the scheduled opening of the trial, the Department of Justice was frantically searching for her.

Object of the extended search is Mrs. Dolores Smart, 22, Minneapolis blonde, who was released on her own recognizance to appear at the trial of Evelyn Frechette, half-breed Indian sweetheart of the notorious killer, Dr. Clayton May, of Minnepolis, and his nurse, Mrs. Augusta Salt.

Mrs. Smart, whose husband is reported living in California, was a patient and friend of Dr. May. According to information in possession of the Department of Justice, the young woman accompanied Dr. May to an apartment in Minneapolis, at least once when the physician treated Dillinger for a bullet wound. The desperado was wounded in the leg when he shot his way out of a St. Paul apartment house on March 31.

It was learned that the government would attempt to show that Dr. May was with Mrs. Smart several times during the four days that Dillinger lay wounded in Mrs. Salt's home and at the apartment of Mrs. Beth Green, thereby refuting his claims that he was "in fear of his life."

Gettle Kidnaping Go-Between Shoots Way From Trap

LOS ANGELES, May 14.—(AP.)—The kidnapers of William F. Gettle, oil millionaire, and their victim hid safely away as dawn broke today after a night of spectacular episodes in which an emissary, carrying a ransom of $60,000, escaped, presumably from hijackers, after repeated attempts to contact the abductors.

The denouement of a bizarre series of maneuvers came about 3:30 a. m., when the intermediary, traveling in a small car with a black satchel containing the ransom in $5 and $10 bills, shot his way out of a trap.

Before he whipped out a revolver to protect himself from a group he believed to be hijackers he had spent nearly five hours patiently driving through metropolitan Los Angeles, picking up at intervals instructions which were to have led to the actual delivery of the ransom.

After coming upon the third of these notes and while driving on

Holy Land Torrent Takes 20 to Death

JERUSALEM, May. 14.—(AP.)—A torrential rainfall at noon today sent a wall of water sweeping down the streets of Tiberias on the Sea of Gallilee, drowning at least 20 persons, and reducing much of the ancient city to ruins.

More than 1,000 soldiers and policemen pushed into the town to search the ruins and seek out the dead and injured.

M'NAIR RUINS RUM CASES OF STATE

Park Goes on Warpath After Mayor Frees All Suspects

A tempest was brewing today over the action of Mayor McNair in discharging alleged liquor law violators yesterday in Morals Court without even hearing the evidence against them.

District Attorney Andrew T. Park promised to confer with W. H. Beachy, state enforcer of liquor laws.

Beachy announced that no magistrate, including McNair, could interfere with his department's activities and that magistrates had no alternative but to hold defendants accused of misdemeanors for court.

M'NAIR DENIES CHARGE

McNair himself denied that he had disregarded the law and insisted there was no evidence against the alleged violators. He explained:

"When Council repealed the suspicious person ordinance and failed to re-enact a new one submitted, there was nothing to hold these people on."

City Solicitor Cornelius D. Scully supported the Mayor's action in Morals Court, contending there was not city ordinance governing the cases. Scully added:

"I think you'll find that whatever the Mayor does he knows what he's doing. ... ...

The Mayor said Magistrate Howard McNutt later today would ask Council to act on this new ordinance.

McNair added that, even if he did discharge the defendants, con-

BELL APPROVAL UP TO COUNCIL

Mayor McNair today sent to Council formal notice of the dismissal of Ralph E. Smith as Public Safety Director and the nomination of A. Marshall Bell as Smith's successor.

There was every indication that Council would not only accept the Smith dismissal but would also confirm Bell.

The Mayor capitulated to a technicality demanded, off the record, by Council members. When his secretary, Theodore L. Moritz, handed the notices to Robert Garland, Council president, Garland announced that Smith's dismissal would be voted upon first, then Bell's appointment. Had the order been otherwise, Council probably would have refused to confirm Bell.

As to the threat made yesterday by Councilman John Kane to propose elimination of the safety directorship, the Mayor retorted:

"That can't be done without state legislation."

Court Upholds Doom Of 'Poison Lawyer'

GOV. PINCHOT SEEKS U. S. VOTE QUIZ

Coercion of Employes In Reed's Behalf Laid to Mellon

International News Service.

PHILADELPHIA, May 14. — Gov. Gifford Pinchot carried his primary battle against United States Senator David A. Reed, directly to the federal government at Washington today when he dispatched a telegram to Attorney General Homer S. Cummings, accusing the Andrew W. Mellon interests of coercing their employes to work for Reed's renomination.

The telegram charged that workers in all companies controlled by the Mellon interests were coerced into signing cards pledging to do their utmost to win Reed's renomination.

Gov. Pinchot by implication demanded an investigation of his charges by the Departmentof Justice.

His telegram said:

"Dear Mr. Cummings: I have just received a letter from Western Pennsylvania which reads as follows:

"Please find enclosed a card which all companies who are controlled or affiliated with, and in trade with, the A. W. Mellon interests are compelling their employes to sign. In case the employes ask any questions, he is told to sign or else——. This for your information."

The particular card in question has printed on it these words:

"I am a Reed volunteer and agree to use my best efforts to return David A. Reed to the United States Senate."

"It is evident that the corporations which are creating 'volunteers' by coercion, through the use of these cards, are taking part in politics in contravention of the law. The use of these cards constitutes attempted coercion and intimidation of the employes of all of these Mellon companies.

"I am calling your attention to this attempt of the Mellon

ROSA, 2 SAMS HELD KILLERS

Joe Rosa and the Sam brothers—Albert and William—today were charged with the murder of Patsy Arabia, whose bullet-ripped body was found in a Plum Township field near Oakmont Saturday.

The three New Kensington prisoners were turned over to the Coroner today on the murder charges, then locked in the county jail.

This interfered somewhat with Rosa's plans, for he was scheduled to go on trial today for the bombing of the Ban Box cabaret, East Liberty night club. The trial was postponed indefinitely.

They questioned Rosa and the Sam brothers at length yesterday concerning the hole in the windshield of the Sam automobile, in which Rosa was arrested Saturday morning as the bullet-riddled body of Arabia was found in a Plum Township field.

STOCKS BREAK TO NEW LOWS

International News Service.

NEW YORK, May 14.—Hitting all sections of the list, a new concerted selling wave today sent the stock market tumbling to new lows for the year, with losses running as much as six and seven points in some lines.

The selling outburst hit its stride shortly after noon and in the rush of liquidation rails, motors and chemicals took the brunt of the attack.

Allied Chemical was a special target. United States Steel sold down more than two points to a new low for the year.

WASHINGTON, MAY 14.—(INS.)—Regulation of stock exchanges will be vested in the Federal Trade Commission, Chairman Rayburn, (Dem.), of Texas, of the House Interstate Commerce Committee predicted today.

The regulatory powers were given to the commission under the House bill, while the measure passed by the Senate Saturday, creates a separate body to supervise the exchanges.

He also expressed the belief that a definite margin requirement would be put into the bill before it goes to the White House. The measures differ in that the house bill fixes a 45 per cent margin requirement, while the Senate bill stipulates no definite amount.

MORTGAGE INSURANCE URGED

Message Calls Upon Congress to Speed 4-Fold Program

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, May 14.—President Roosevelt sent Congress a special message today asking legislation to establish a gigantic building and renovating program for homes and small industries throughout the country.

He did not detail the type of legislation desired, but simply stated the objectives of the program—absorption of some of the unemployed and an effort "to produce tangible, useful wealth in a form for which there is a great social and economic need"—and asked all possible speed in setting up the necessary machinery.

The program will consist of four major divisions:

Modernization, repair and new construction; mortgage insurance; mortgage association insurance and building and loan insurance.

MORTGAGE INSURANCE

Under the plan loans to individuals will be made by private agencies and insured by some government agency against loss up to a percentage of the amounts advanced.

Mr. Roosevelt asked legislation to finance long-term mortgages, the mortgages to be insured under government supervision, to enable private agencies to make first mortgage loans on newly constructed houses up to 80 per cent of the appraised value of the property, and to make new mortgages on existing homes up to 60 per cent of the appraised value of the property.

BILL INTRODUCED

Immediately after receipt of the message, Senator Robinson (Dem.), of Arkansas, introduced in the Senate a three-point measure proposing government aid for the construction or renovation of homes throughout the nation.

Chief provisions of the Robinson bill are:

1—Creation of a home credit insurance corporation, with a capital of $200,000,000, to insure approved financial institutions against losses incurred by extending credit to home owners. The insurance would cover 80 per cent of the appraised value of new homes, and 60 per cent of the appraised value of older dwellings.

2—Incorporation of mortgage associations, each with a capital stock of $5,000,000, to be managed by the Home Loan Bank Board. These associations could borrow heavily from federal credit sources.

3—Protection of depositors in building and loan associations through creation of the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation to guarantee deposits in these institutions. In cases of default, the insurance would guarantee deposits up to $2,500 just as in the case of banks, with 10 per cent to be paid in cash immediately, 50 per cent more within one year and the remainder within three years.

Robinson predicted passage of the bill at the present session of Congress.

Carroll's list:

ROOSEVELT TO ASK OVER BILLION IN NEW RECOVERY BILL

FUND SLASHED, 'FREE HAND' ASKED

'Normal Budget' Plan Supported By President

WASHINGTON, May 14.—(AP.)—President Roosevelt plans to send to Congress tomorrow his last important measure for this session—a trimmed supplemental recovery bill appropriating $1,322,000,000.

The President confined his recommendations to Congress today to the new plan for encouraging private home conctruction and repair.

It had ben planned also to submit the request for the carry-all appropriation, out of whichpublic works and other aspects of the recovery program would be financed in the fiscal year beginning July 1.

The recovery appropriation has been slashed from an original $1,500,000,000 figure in an effort to bring the budget nearer into balance. Out of it will come money for all the extra sums voted by Congress, including $228,000,000 extra for veterans.

STANDS BY BUDGET

In framing the measure, the President stood firmly by Lewis Douglas, director of the budget, and the "back to normal" budget for 1935 as outlined at the start of the session.

Of the $1,322,000,000 about $500,000,00 is to be tagged for continuation of the $2,000,000,000 public works program launched during the last year. Part of the remainder will be for cintinuation of the Civilian Conservation Corps. It will cover also $40,000,000 voted for crop loans and $29,000,000 for Mississippi flood control.

Mr. Roosevelt hopes to have a free hand in use of this fund, including authority to use such amounts as necessary to start the new naval construction program authorized in the Vinson bill.

LOAN CLAUSE DEFEATED

Meanwhile, the Senate today rejected an amendment to a loans for industry measure to permit 20-year loans by the Reconstruction Corporation to municipal power corporations.

The amendment, offered by Senator Johnson (Dem.), of California, was designed to finance the municipally-owned power plant in Los Anegeles in buying out a private company. It lost by a tie vote, 37 to 37.

The Californian contended that from every standpoint the bill was for the welfare of the people.

Senator Glass (Dem.), of Virginia, in charge of the loans for industry bill, opposed the amendment and read a letter from Jesse H. oJnes, chairman of the Reconstruction Corporation, urging its rejection.

The amednment, Jones said, "would carry the government into a field of financing the corporation considers highly undesirable that we start upon."

SPEED DROUGHT RELIEF

The devastating drought in the West led House members from affected territory to organize in demanding broad relief steps at once. Representative Sinclair (Rep.), of Indiana, was selected to lead. This situation was known to be a subject of administration study, and attempts to help were regarded as inevitable.

On both sides of the Capitol committees dealt with labor questions, but in executive session. The Senatorial topic was revision of the Wagner Labor Board bill.

Chairman Connery (Dem.), of Massachusetts, of the House Labor Committee, gave the word to go ahead with signatures to a petition to force House consideration of his 30-hour week in industry bill.

This action, absented to by the committee, followed failure to receive a report from Secretary Perkins on an amended bill which the labor chairman and William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, worked out with her and Donald Richberg, NRA counsel.

One Certainty in the Election

By QUIN HALL

TEXT OF ROOSEVELT HOUSING MESSAGE

WASHINGTON, May 14.—(AP.)—Text of President Roosevelt's message to Congress today for legislation on home construction and loans to small industries follows:

To the Congress:

May I draw your attention to some important suggestions for legislation which should tend to improve conditions for those who lives in houses, those who repair and construct houses, and those who invest in houses?

Many of our homes are in decadent condition and not fit for human habitation. They need repairing and modernizing to bring them up to the standard of the times. Many new homes now are needed to replace those not worth repairing.

The protection of the health and safety of the people demands that this renovizing and building be done speedily. The federal government should take the initiative immediately to co-operate with private capital and industry in this real-property conservation. We must lay the groundwork for this effort before Congress adjourns its present session.

TWO-FOLD PURPOSE

The purpose of the program is two-fold: First, to return many of the unemployed to useful and gainful occupation; second, to produce tangible, useful wealth in a form for which there is great social and economic need.

The program consists of four major, inter-related divisions:

1—Modernization, repair, and new construction;

2—Mortgage insurance;

3—Mortgage associations, and

MODERNIZATION PHASE

The modernization phase of the program will furnish national guidance and support for locally-managed renovizing campaigns throughout the country and protection for home owners against unwarranted cost advances. For these purposes and to assure adequate financing at low cost and on moderate terms of repayment, a new governmental agency is required.

Modernization of commercial and industrial structures is envisioned, as well as residential, but the new features providing governmental assistance are confined largely to home improvements.

Loans to individuals will be made by private agencies which will be insured by a governmental agency against loss up to a certain percentage of their advances. This insurance against loss on the rehabilitation loans will be met by the government and will be confined to advances of credit that meet standards and conditions designed to protect both the home owners and the co-operating agencies.

MORTGAGE FINANCING

To make funds available for new home construction and to improve the mortgage market, the second phase of the program is long-term mortgage financing. It provides mutual mortgage insurance under governmental direction to enable private agencies to make first-mortgage loans on newly constructed houses up to 80 per cent of the appraised value of the property, and to make new mortgages on existing homes up to 60 per cent of the appraised value of the property.

The loans will usually carry not more than 5 per cent interest and will be amortized by periodic payments over 20 years. Similar insurance arrangements are provided to help finance low-cost residential projects of the slum-replacing type.

The third phase provides for the incorporation of mortgage associations under strict federal supervision to increase the amount of mortgage funds available in regions where interest rates are unduly high because sufficient local funds are lacking. The activities of these associations will be limited almost entirely to insured residential mortgages.

SPUR TO RECOVERY

Insurance for share and certificate holders in building and loan associations, similar to the insurance provided for bank depositors, is the fourth phase of the program. These institutions are custodians of the funds of small savers, and it is essential that they should be given every reasonable protection.

Insurance of this type is necessary in order to arrest any further drain on these institutions and to put them in a position to resume their normal useful functions.

I believe that the initiation of this broad and sound program will do much to alleviate distress and to raise perceptibly the standards of good living for many of our families throughout the land.

DOG KEEPS VIGIL OVER DEAD MAN

Breaking into a room in the Oakview Hotel on the Lincoln Highway near Turtle Creek Bridge today, Patrolman William Wilkinson found a dead man on the floor, a blood-stained mongrel whimpering at his side.

A bullet through the temple had ended the life of Victor Wlostowski, 48, part owner of the hotel. Near his body was a gun.

Though the door of the room was locked and powder stains on the man's head indicated suicide, county detectives began an investigation of the case.

SEA WAR ENDS FOR MACON

MIAMI, Fla., May 14.—(AP.)—Heading into gusty rain squalls, the Navy dirigible Macon returned here from a second series of war games with the fleet in Caribbean waters.

The giant silvery airship, which sailed from here Saturday morning, ended its tactical maneuvers with the fleet yesterday as mechanics lashed its nose to a stubby mast at the naval training station at suburban Opa-Locke.

Lieut. Commander A. H. Dresel, in charge of the Macon, declined to discuss the flight.

Following upon the arrival of the Macon here, preparations were started for a reconditioning of the craft for a homeward trip to its regular base at Sunnyvale, Cal.

M'Leod Payoff Drive Soon to Reach Climax

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, May 14.—The fight for legislation to aid depositors of closed banks, now being waged on two Congressional fronts, will reach a climax this week.

While Representative McLeod (Rep.), of Michigan, author of the 100 per cent payoff bill, was driving for a vote in the House, the Banking Committee will reach a decision on the Steagall substitute plan of aid through the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation.

With 30 signatures needed to a petition to assure a House vote, McLeod forces were seeking to break down administration opposition. They have a full week in which to complete their petition to assure a vote on May 28.

The Banking Committee is expected to favor the bill postponing the permanent bank deposit guaranty system for another year. The bill includes the Steagall amendment authorizing the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation to "thaw" assets in closed banks.

Because of strong opposition in the Banking Committee to the deposit guaranty extension, President Roosevelt is expected to summon the committee members to the White House to get them to pledge action on this measure.

Committee backers of relief for bank depositors are insisting upon inclusion of the Steagall substitute.

U. S. REVIVING SILVER PLAN FOR DEBTS

Senate Leaders Back Move to Ease Load Of Europe

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, May 14.—A move to make it easier for the European debtor nations to pay the $175,000,000 due this government June 15 by reviving the plan for acceptance of payments in silver was under way on Capitol Hill today.

The move was being sponsored by the silver bloc headed by Senator Elmer Thomas (Dem.), of Oklahoma.

It was believed to have the support of Senator William E. Borah (Rep.), of Idaho, as well as other silver leaders.

Thomas plans to add to the bill on which silverites now are seeking agreement a clause renewing the President's authority to accept silver in payment of the debts.

Whether even this concession would induce the debtor nations to meet in full their obligations next month was considered doubtful in diplomatic circles here.

While it was thought Great Britain might be induced to do so in order to escape the penalties of default, it was considered unlikely that France and her satellites would do so. Britain would be able to obtain the silver from India without difficulty, but France and most of the other debtors would be faced with the necessity of purchasing it in the open market.

'Circumstances' Guide Britain's Debt Course

LONDON, May 14.—(AP.)—Circumstances of the moment will determine Great Britain's course regarding the payment of her war debts to the United States, Sir John Simon, foreign secretary, told the House of Commons today.

He was questioned from the floor regarding Great Britain's position under the Johnson law, which provides that defaulting nations shall receive no more loans from the United States, and as to whether Great Britain would make token payments in the future.

Simon said that Attorney General Cummings, of the United States, had ruled that the token payments Great Britain previously has made prevented Great Britain from being classified as a defaulting nation.

Whether further token payments would be help up "until the position is clarified," Simon stated that this action would depend "on the circumstances prevailing at the moment."

No Consideration Given Debts By France

PARIS, May 14.—(AP.)—A war debt payment to the United States, either whole or in part, is not even under consideration, it was declared by a high official spokesman today.

When the debt question is taken up by the cabinet, it was declared, there will be nothing more than a discussion of the text of the note to be sent to America, announcing that France again will pass up payment.

This note is to go forward before June 15, when the payment is due. The decision not to pay is based on the assertion that the situation which has prompted France in the past to withhold payment remains unaltered.

HARRIMAN GOES TO TRIAL IN GAY MOOD

Peggy Joyce Ready To Testify Against Former Banker

International News Service.

NEW YORK, May 14.—Erect and ruddy Joseph W. Harriman, former president of the defunct $30,000,000 Harriman National Bank, walked almost jauntily into court today for the beginning of his trial on embezzlement charges.

He was almost another man in comparison with the shuffling, bewildered looking figure who last fall after his attempts at flight and suicide, tried to impress the court with his mental instability.

Behind him came his invalid wife, dressed in black and leaning on the arm of a physician.

Harriman is charged with misappropriating $1,713,225 of the funds of the bank, which failed to reopen after the banking holiday in March last year.

Among the witnesses subpenaed to testify against him are Peggy Hopkins Joyce and Constance Talmadge. The government charges that he used $34,375 of Miss Joyce's deposits in the bank and $54,312 of Miss Talmadge's in a vain effort to bolster the price of the bank's stock on a falling market.

The beginning of the trial was delayed by the necessity of federal Judge John C. Knox's presence in an adjoining courtroom, where another trial was in progress.

In the meantime, the banker, who is a nephew of the late E. H. Harriman and formerly was a leading figure in the New York horse shows, sat smiling and nodding in recognition of many of the newspapermen who had covered his sanity hearings.

RADIO RE-HIRES 'FIRST LADY'

WASHINGTON, May 14.—(AP.)—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt is going on the air again on a commercial advertising program.

She said none of the money earned by the new talks would go to her, but, instead, directly to "The Friends Service Committee," Philadelphia. It will be used for education, handicraft and health projects in mining districts.

She stipulated that she will say nothing to advertise the product on whose program she speaks.

For her first broadcast for a commercial company, she received $3,000 for talking about six minutes. In several future broadcasts she will talk from 10 to 15 minutes.

Some of the money thus earned will go directly into the educational fund of the Reedsville (W. Va.) subsistance farm project in which Mrs. Roosevelt long has been interested.

New Deal Capitalism Failure, Says Thomas

CHICAGO, May 14.—(AP.)—Norman Thomas describes the New Deal as unseccessful but terms it "the failure of capitalism, not of President Roosevelt."

The New Deal, the Socialist leader said in an address last night before the Chicago conference on the international and economic crisis, is inconsistant in that price monoply works in favor of capital while the gains of labor under NRA are doubtful.

WARRING ARABS CALL TRUCE

JIDDA, Arabia, May 14.—(AP.)—Peace settled over Southwestern Arabia today after months of bitter fighting between the conquering forces of Ibn Saud, king of Saudi Arabia, and the Imam Yahma, ruler of Yemen.

An armistice was agreed upon, it was announced officially here, on terms laid down by Ibn Saud. His armies are in control of most of the ancient state of Yemen—bounded by Asir, Saudi Arabia, British-controlled Adem, and the Red Sea.

Envoys were reported meeting to plan a permanent peace at Taif, Arabia—5,500 feet up in the Hejaz Mountains—where Ibn Saud has been directing his armies by radio from his marble palace.

It is presumed the bespectacled, bearded monarch—most powerful Arab of his day—will set up a nominally independant Yemen, under Saudi domination.

4 MOTHERS ASK ROOSEVELT AID

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, May 14.—Four mothers of the famous "Scottsboro Boys," nine Negroes charged with criminal assault, two of whom have been condemned to death after a retrial, called at the White House today to protest the treatment accorded their sons.

The mothers came to the White House yesterday but found no one in the executive offices, and returned today to be received by Col. Marvin H. McIntyre, one of the Presidential secretaries. Calling attention to the fact that the date upon which they sought audience was Mothers Day, the Negro women presented a letter which McIntyre promised to deliver to the President, in which they asserted their sons were innocent.

The letter was signed by "The Scottsboro mothers," Mrs. Janie Patterson, Mrs. Viola Montgomery, Mrs. Ida Norris and Mrs. Josephine Powell, and Mrs. Mamie Williams, who was not present.

INSULL DENIES HE DESERTED UTILITIES

'Sank With My Ship,' He Says in Heroic Role for Talkies

CHICAGO, May 14.—(AP.)—From a room in St. Luke's Hospital, Samuel Insull has sent his version of the collapse of his utilities empire. He said:

"I went down with my ship. The depression was too much for me. You will be convinced that although my judgment was bad, I was not dishonest."

The 74-year-old ex-financier, who once had $200,000,000, was talking at the invitation of sound motion picture men. They visited Insull in the hospital, where he is recuperatting from the strain of his recent conflict with federal authorities, who allege he used the mails to defraud and violated the national bankruptcy law.

BROKE AND JOBLESS

Insull declared:

"I have been fighting since boyhood. When I first arrived in this country 53 years ago all I had in the world was $200 and the promise of a job as secretary to Mr. Thomas A. Edison. Today I haven't that $200 or a job either.

"But I've got the biggest battle of my life on my hands and I'm ready for it. I am deeply thankful for the demonstration of loyalty on the part of old friends and friends I didn't even know I had. Men and women whose names I've never even heard came foroward to go bail for me.

"It encourages me in the most important fight of my life—not only for freedom, but also for complete vindication. When the whole story is told, as it will be told, you may say I made a mistake, but you'll know I did everything I could to save the investors in my companies."

'INSULL HERE TO STAY'

While Insull was talking, the government, through United States District Attorney Dwight H. Green, announced that "Insull is here and here to stay." The former utility magnate contends, he was brought to America from Turkey illegally, Green said:

"How he got here is a matter for the State Department.

"He was served with federal warrants after he was on American soil, and that, I think, settled the entire matter of jurisdiction of the courts."

Insull's preliminary hearing is set for tomorrow, but Green said it probably would not be necessary for Insull to appear in person. It was indicated he would continue to rest in the hospital, where he is a nonpaying patient.

He is not required to pay because the institution was the beneficiary of his charities during the hey-day of his career.

BLAST KILLS 40 AT HONG KONG

HONG KONG, May 14.—(AP.)—Forty persons were estimated killed today and 100 injured when the explosion of a huge gas tank at West Point, Victoria, laid waste a residential section. All of those killed and injured were Chinese—most of them woman and children.

Flames which followed the blast destroyed a tenement block of seven houses opposite the tank. The explosion shattered buildings in an adjoining block.

The sheet of flame which shot from the exploding gas tank apparently cut off the inhabitants of the tenement houses before they could reach safety after the blast.

Two other tanks close by remained intact.

West Point is on the northern side of Hong Kong Island, on Victoria Harbor.

Blue Eagle Labelled Chicken Hawk in Suit

NEW YORK, May 14.—(AP.)—Mrs. Kathryn Budd argues that the NRA is a chicken hawk in Blue Eagle fathers.

When her suit comes up in Federal Court tomorrow she will charge that the NRA has struck the props from under her income, and that if it is enforced her two little girls will be forced into an institution and herself reduced to a pittance.

Her action is against the state NRA director, but is aimed at the entire national organization.

Up to the time the Blue Eagle became the natoinal bird, she said, she earned $18 to $25 a week making artificial flowers. She said:

"I earned that money working in a clean, sunny room in my own home, working about five hours a day and having plenty of time for my housework.

"If the Blue Eagle code provisions continue, I must go to work in some loft—if I can get a job—and my children, perhaps, to an orphanage."

Mrs. Budd's action in Federal Court is a petition for an injunction to restrain the NRA from taking from her her means of livelihood.

DR. M'CREADY LOSES FIGHT TO UPSET RICH WIFE'S WILL

COURT RULES YEARLY FUND SUFFICIENT

Suit to Gain Part of $1,500,000 Estate Dismissed

Dr. R. J. McCready, 82-year-old Sewickley physician, today lost his fight to upset the $1,500,000 will of his wife, Mrs. Matilda Craig McCready. He had sued for half of the estate.

Visiting Judge J. W. Dawson dismissed the elderly physician's petition with the contentions that, in the first place Mrs. McCready had provided amply for her husband and, in the second place, McCready had not been deceived as to the size of her estate.

The doctor, having signed a prenuptial agreement accepting a $12,000 annuity from his wealthy wife's estate, sought to upset the will on the grounds that he was not aware of the great size of her estate, that his own practice suffered because he had to care for his wife.

But Judge Dawson retorted:

"She has taken up his support when she left off in life. The provision made for the doctor is sufficient to enable him to live as comfortably as he did before marriage."

The court stressed that during their married life Mrs. McCready had made out 93 checks totaling $60,000 to her husband.

The McCreadys were married in 1925.

18 ARRESTED IN VICE RAID

State troopers from the Greensburg Barracks swooped down on Homestead in the early hours today and arrested 10 men and eight women in a raid on a house at 469 Third avenue.

Homestead police professed ignorance of the raid.

So quickly did the troopers work that no inmate of the house had a chance to escape. Troopers said they have raided the same place dozens of times within the last 10 years.

All the prisoners were taken to Greensburg and fingerprinted and then brought back to Pittsburgh. Later today they will be given a hearing before Justice of the Peace Bernard Volk, of Versailles Township.

Sergt. George Pierce led a squad of seven troopers in the raid.

The 10 men arrested were charged with visiting a disorderly house. Lillian Smith was charged with being the proprietress and the seven other women with being inmates of a disorderly house.

JUNE'S FATHER HINTS RETURN

TUCSON, Ariz., May 14.—(AP.)—Undaunted hope and a "hunch" that June Robles, kidnaped heiress, will be returned soon, carried Fernando Robles, her father, into another day in his tireless efforts to negotiate with the abductors of the 6-year-old girl. He said:

"I feel certain that June is safe and we will get her back alive."

June was kidnaped April 25 as she returned home from school.

Authorities did not comment on the story of a New Mexico convict that Isabella Greenway, Arizona Congresswoman, and Lewis W. Douglas, budget director, had first choices of the kidnap gang. This disclosure was made in a letter to Sheriff John Belton from Warden Ed Swope, of the New Mexico Penitentiary.

All authorities remained inactive in the case, observing a request of the Robles family that they be allowed to contact the kidnapers unhampered for payment of $10,000 in ransom which is ready.

a dark street between the old river bridge and the city of Maywood, about eight miles southwest of the central Los Angeles business district, three machines closed in upon him, police reported.

Quickly sensing from the tenor of the notes that the machines could not possibly contain the kidnapers and fearing an attempt by outsiders to take the ransom from him, he opened fire. Shots were exchanged. The emissary, whose name, upon police request, was withheld, fled to a telephone, notified police headquarters he was safe, and a squad of detectives rushed to his protection.

LONE VIGIL FUTILE

Meanwhile, Ernest E. Noon, family intermediary seeking to effect the release of Gettle, kept a fruitless vigil at Downey, near here.

Noon, who is the family attorney, following instruction he is convinced came from the real kidnapers, went to Downey at 3 a. m. He awaited at the appointed rendezvous for half an hour and then returned home.

It was reported he received word from the kidnapers that something had happened that made the Downey appointment impossible to keep.

Downey is a suburb of Los Angeles on the southeast section, and about 10 miles from the center of Los Angeles.

AREA SURROUNDED

The first report of the encounter between the ransom carrier and the mob came from a patrolman who had been stationed in the Maywood district, and it led to a police broadcast indicating the ransom had been paid and ordering scores of fast police machines to surround the district.

Over an area of possibly 20 square miles the machines raced to strategic positions. Throughout the night, as though moved on a gigantic checkerboard, they had followed the progress of the emissary. This had been accomplished by disguising the broadcasts, the automobiles being ordered to specific localities on information that petty violations of the law were being committed.

As the report of the payoff flashed into headquarters, the police blockaded the district. Soon after the escape of the emissary, two suspects fell into the dragnet. One, police said, carried a loaded revolver and a crude map detailing the progress of the intermediary. Later, after extensive grilling, detectives indicated the suspects would be released, but no explanations of the reasons for the decision were forthcoming immediately.

PAYOFF DIRECTIONS

Before the climax to the attempted payoff, the tension among police had grown steadily from about 9 p. m. Sunday when some presumable contact had been made with the kidnapers or their contact man. Whether this was by note or telephone was not announced, but the emissary, who was not Ernest Noon, family lawyer, previously designated as intermediary, was directed to the Laurel Canyon district in the hills behind Hollywood.

There, it was said, he found instructions affixed to a stick. In substance, it was learned, these directed him to begin a drive of about 90 miles in a circuitous route toward Southgate, suburb to the southwest, at a speed of 20 miles an hour. Subsequently a second note of instructions was picked up and thence a third, after which the reported atempt at a hijacking occurred.

The effect of the unexpected interruption of plans was a sudden cessation of police activities. At the District Attorney's office a conference was held between search leaders. Subsequently an intimation was given that the deadline for the payoff, set for noon today with the assurance to the family of Gettle that there would be no police interference, had been postponed until noon tomorrow.

BANG GOES GUN, TWINS BLAMED

A revolver shot rang out in the home of County Detective Philip Goldberg, at 836 Shawnee street, yesterday, and the sleuth ran into a bedroom to investigate.

He found a bullet hole in a bedcover and nearby his revolver, which he had placed in a six-foot shelf in a clothes closet.

Under the bed crouched Buddy and Billy, his 4-year-old twins. The investigation ended there. Neither was hurt, and they promised to do no more "shooting."

PAPALE FREES MAYOR'S NIECE

Miss Eleanor Heeren, of 1130 Heberton avenue, 23-year-old niece of Mayor McNair, was discharged in Traffic Court today when she was arraigned on a charge of reckless driving.

It was testified that last Saturday as Miss Heeren was steering an automobile from the curb in the 300 block North Beatty street the machine struck an automobile owned by Lloyd Clayton, of 7209 Lemington avenue, and knocked it into the parked automobile of Sabin Bolton, Jr., of 319 North Beatty street.

Both Clayton's and Bolton's machines were damaged.

In discharging Miss Heeren, Magistrate Charles F. Papale called attention to the fact that Bolton's car was parked in a no-parking zone.

TRANSFUSION AIDING BABY FIGHT DEATH

22-Hour Plea for Blood Brings Volunteer, Chance for Life

A 50-50 chance for life today lay within the grasp of a tiny boy in the Children's Hospital who for 22 hours battled death while an appeal for volunteers for a blood transfusion remained unanswered.

That chance is the gift of Patralman Joseph Shaner, of the Oakland Police Station, the lone volunteer who appeared at the hospital Friday to end the 22-hour vigil.

Through a night and a day the baby, now two weeks old, lay gasping in its hospital crib while repeated broadcasts for aid were transmitted by Police Radio Station WPDU without result.

Finally Shaner, a figure curiously lonely but none-the-less heartening, appeared, and the transfusion was performed shortly afterward by Dr. John Snyder, chief resident physician.

In strange contrast to the vain 22-hour wait was the flood of offers received at the hospital following a story of the babe's plight published in the Sun-Telegraph. Scores of persons anxious to aid the child volunteered after reading the story, hospital attaches said, but the operation already had taken place.

SHOWERS GIVE LITTLE RELIEF

Light showers today brought only slight relief from the spring drought that is hampering vegetation here and westward to the Rockies.

Observer W. S. Brotzman predicted continued light showers tonight and tomorrow.

No rain of consequence has fallen here since April 4, according to the records. Thus far in May rainfall has totaled only .06 inch, the deficiency for the month being 1.26 inches. The deficiency for the year is 5.39 inches.

Scattered showers were reported last night and today from various Western Pennsylvania points. A drenching rain is needed to revive crops, gardens and flowers, experts say.

Light rain throughout the Middle West moistened the blistering plains that have been giving off dust storms, but it was not sufficient to save the withering crops, reports indicated. Damage in the wheat and corn belts is almost unprecedented, according to the Associated Press. Relief measures for farmers and livestock are being pushed as a result of drought, heat and dust.

FOILED IN LEAP, GIRL FREED

Dragged from the railing of Panther Hollow Bridge, according to police, Stella Drazio, 22, of Slovan, refused in Morals Court today to say why she apparently was about to throw herself into the Schenley Park ravine.

Magistrate J. W. McGowan discharged her after Mrs. Bella Kanel, her employer, testified her conduct was good. The girl said she was too ill to testify.

The girl was caught by James Mofren, 3443 Dawson street, as she was about to leap off the bridge rail, police said. She had been employed as a domestic in Pittsburgh for about four years.

STAGE 'VAMP' TRIES SUICIDE

International News Service.

PARIS, May 14.—Because she feared the vampire roles she portrayed on the stage and screen were having an evil influence on her own morals, Mlle. Edith Mera, one of France's foremost younger actresses, attempted suicide today, according to police. The actress, only 22, was quoted by police:

"I am tired of playing the role of the evil woman. I believe it is having an effect on my character."

Mlle. Mera was near death in the Beaujon Hospital after being found alone in her hotel room by her maid, with the gas turned on and suffering from the effects of an overdose of sleeping potion. She previously had paid up her hotel bill.

Woman, 38, Victim In Atlanta Killing

ATLANTA, May 14.—(AP.)—The body of a young woman, believed that of Mrs. Lola Barker, 38, formerly of Montgomery, Ala., was found here last night.

William A. Grubbs told officers he saw two men carry a bundle to the spot where the body was found.

SUICIDE NOTE WRITER SOUGHT

Police are seeking Frances McCrerey, 22, of Washington, R. D. No. 7, who disappeared from her rooming house there last night after penning a note to her landlady, Mrs. Homer McDonald, 158 Park avenue.

The note read:

"I'm through with everything. I'm going to end it all."

McDonald, who reported her disappearance to her father and then to Washington and Pittsburgh police, said she worked in a Washington department store. She recently quarreled with her boy friend, he said.

Pittsburgh Railways officials later reported a girl answering her description had purchased a bus ticket and was headed toward Pittsburgh.

U. S. Guarding 600 On Kidnaping 'Spot'

CHICAGO, May 14.—(AP.)—The Chicago Herald and Examiner stated today that more than 600 persons, in all parts of the country, are on a "national protection list" and are being safeguarded by federal and state authorities against possible kidnapings.

The newspaper asserted that 90 agents working from the Washington headquarters of the Department of Justice have been assigned to the exclusive job of watching the "hot cases"—those in which actual threats have been received.

Lindbergh Flies Over Missouri Dam

ST. LOUIS, May 14.—(AP.)—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, accompanied by Harry Knight, St. Louis airplane manufacturer, made a leisurely air inspection of the Bagnell Dam in Southern Missouri yesterday. Mrs. Lindbergh remained with friends here.

The Lindberghs flew into St. Louis yesterday for a short visit in this city, where the flier first gained prominence. They plan to leave today, although their destination has not been announced.

WIFE REVEALS CHURCHMAN'S 'PLAYBOY' AIM

Admits Threat to Kill Husband, Seeking To Divorce Her

Mrs. Isabelle Carnahan took the stand in divorce court today to tell of the last time she sat in the lap of her husband, W. D. Carnahan, prominent Boston (Pa.) churchman whose divorce action she is opposing.

It was on her birthday in 1932, she testified, recalling:

"I sat down in his lap and he said to me, 'I don't want you to sit on my lap, I don't like you any more. I want to live a worldly life, you want to live a home life.'"

ADMITS THREAT

Mrs. Carnahan admitted that she had threatened her husband's life. She told the circumstances on cross-examination by Attorney R. A. Hitchins, counsel for the former Sunday School superintendent.

She testified that about the time her first child was born she caught her husband in a compromising act with another woman and threatened:

"Will, if I ever catch you like that again I will kill you."

On another occasion the wife testified her husband denied taking a woman teacher to school at Carnegie Tech. Then once:

"I threw a telephone book at him. We had a tussle. I hurt my arm."

'HONEST AS STEEL'

But she added that in their 32 years of married life they had had only three serious quarrels, that her husband was "a good provider and honest as steel."

Mrs. Carnahan followed to the stand her daughter, Mrs. Sarah Minnick. The daughter testified that her mother would send her to church to keep an eye on her father.

Mrs. Minick said her mother had told her there must be something "more attractive than religion" for her father at the church. The daughter added that, on her mother's orders, she listened in on any conversations her father had.

Carnahan, who was a member of the Boston (Pa.) Methodist Episcopal Church, was still on the stand when the divorce hearing was resumed today.

DENIES CHARGE

When he was asked whether his wife had found him in a compromising position with another woman he answered with an emphatic no.

Previously he testified that his married life of 30 years had finally become unbearable because his wife fancied that he was interested in young school teachers and women members of the church.

Both Mrs. Minick, who now lives with her father, and Mrs. Grace Daugherty, a niece of Mrs. Carnahan, testified that Mrs. Carnahan once threatened to jump out of their auto on a trip.

CHARGE SCHWAB BLOCKED SUIT

International News Service.

TRENTON, N. J., May 14.—Charges that Charles M. Schwab, chairman of the board; Eugene G. Grace, president, and other directors of the Bethlehem Steel Company paid $600,000 to obtain the withdrawal of a previous suit in which it was charged unlawful bonuses had been paid the officials of the steel firm, were made in a petition today by the Standard Investment Company, of Paterson.

The Standard Investment Company began a suit several months ago to compel the steel officials to account for the alleged bonus payments, which were declared to have been made while common stockholders received no dividends. In its suit the Standard Investment Company charged that $600,000 was paid the law firm of House, Holthusen & McClosky, and asked that the proper payment to the law firm be made a lien on the capital stock of Schwab and the other defendants.

Darrow 'Dynamite' Aims at NRA Code Group

WASHINGTON, May 14.—The hidden dynamite in the unpublished Darrow Report is a charge that a certain NRA Code authority has been guilty of malfeasance in office.

The report demands action against the business men on this particular code authority for conducting it flagrantly in the interests of their own firms to the detriment of their business competitors.

That is supposed to be the reason why President Roosevelt silently sat down on the report, refusing to make it public, until his investigators could find out whether the charge was true.

You may have noticed that one of the three agencies to which Mr. Roosevelt has referred the Darrow Report is the Department of Justice.

SHHH

The identity of the Code Authority cannot be divulged until some official public statement is made about it, but the sarcastic pen of Clarence Darrow left no doubt concerning its identity, or his feelings about it, in his statement to the President.

None of those connected with the report will talk. The five members of the Review Board who joined with Darrow in signing it are impersonating bumps on a log temporarily. President Roosevelt has indicated he will have nothing to say about it until he gets a report from the Department of Justice, the NRA and the Federal Trade Commission.

Such caution appears to be warranted. If the charge is well founded it may be enough to blow up a considerable portion of the NRA. If not, it must be exposed as false.

There seems to be no intention on the part of the White House to keep it secret any longer than necessary to go to the bottom of the matter.

PEAKS

The officials have been so close-mouthed lately that the Darrow report has become an equally interesting mystery with Dillinger's whereabouts.

Nevertheless some of the better informed inner circlers, who have had a squint at it say the report, or the summary of it, covers about twenty-two typewritten pages and contains about 6,000 or 7,000 words, written in the best Darrow style.

It handles the NRA problem from a purely judicial viewpoint (as much as Darrow ever could be judicial) and tries to make a case against existing NRA practice.

No personal reference is made to General Johnson in any critical way, although many of his policies are subjected to a blow-torch analysis.

REACTION

The administration already is moving to meet some of the objections. The move to exempt little fellows from the codes was one.

The next one probably will be revision of the price-fixing features.

These are not the results of the Darrow report, although it may have hastened the moves along. For weeks, the White House pillars have been working on proposed modifications and revisions of NRA policies.

RED HERRINGS

The usual spring war scare from Europe arrived by grapevine on time this week-end.

France is starting it this time. The French press began leading up to it by publishing reports that the government would reduce the compulsory age for military service from twelve months to fifteen, eighteen and finally twenty-seven months. The French government slipped these reports to the press, although official denials were issued later.

Our people are not being misled by the denials. They know France already has discussed the idea with Belgium and Belgium is expected to adopt the plan also. They believe it makes further disarmament efforts futile.

To help the show along, the French also are planning a display of naval strength along their coast this month. Warships and planes are being massed for maneuvers.

It all helps to take the French mind off the Stavisky scandals and the internal monetary and governmental situation. It does not mean war.

ANGER

The State Department is doing its best by innuendo to show its inner rage at the British-Dutch rubber agreement. It cannot do much officially because, theoretically, only private interests in Britain and the Netherlands are involved.

The first thing it did was to tell American diplomatic representatives in London and The Hague to prevent the agreement from going through, but not to get caught at it. This move failed.

Now every indirect inspirational channel is being used to expose the agreement as a rubber price-raising holdup. It is.

Outside of the effect on American tire buyers, the situation may have an influence on Anglo-American relationship.

NOTES

The Chicago World's Fair lobbyists were out in all their splendor for passage of the federal appropriation this year to aid the fair. At least five of them were sitting in the House gallery the day the bill was under consideration. . . . Attendance is slim in the House these days because the primaries are on back home. Congressmen are slipping away to mend their fences. . . . A certain smart Republican leader told his colleagues in a congressional cloakroom the other day:

"If you try to put the Republican Party against this Stock Exchange regulation bill, you will not carry a precinct in the next election. Personally, I am going to vote for it."

Ritchie declared in announcing his decision to be a candidate in the September primary:

"It so happens that I had rather be Governor of Maryland than hold any office within the gift of the people of the state."

Gov. Ritchie was a candidate for the Democratic nomination for President at the 1932 Chicago convention where President Roosevelt was nominated.

Bridge Club piles up score against STOCKING RUNS!

HERE'S a game that rivals bridge for excitement—proves Lux trumps in the contest to cut down stocking runs!

Mrs. Lathrop Bevan, of Montclair, New Jersey, started the fun at her bridge club. Each member took two pairs of stockings, washed one pair after each wearing with Lux, rubbed the other pair with cake soap. Careful records were kept—at the end of two weeks Lux had cut down runs 75%!

Think what this means to a clothes budget! Lux cuts down runs because it saves stocking elasticity. Silk threads give instead of breaking into runs so often.

Ordinary soaps with harmful alkali and cake-soap rubbing weaken elasticity. Don't take chances. Lux has no harmful alkali. Safe in water, safe in Lux.

"22 days for me without a run—it never happened before! The stockings I rubbed with cake soap had a run in 6 days—faded noticeably, too."
MRS. LATHROP BEVAN

"With Lux, my stockings wore 5 times as long as they did when I washed them the old way."
HELEN MORGAN

"17 days without a run in my Lux stockings. Am I thrilled with this record! The ones I rubbed with cake soap had a run in 9 days."
MRS. O. A. MICHEL

"My test showed 23 days without a run in the Lux stockings—only 14 days for the others. Lux is the most marvelous economy I've ever known."
MRS. JOEL POORMAN

HAYES TO FIGHT WORLD COURT IN SENATE

Universal Service

WASHINGTON, May 14.—From all sections of the country, leaders in America's political and economic life this week will descend upon the Senate Foreign Relations Committee in protest against American adherence to the World Court and "back-door" entry to the League of Nations.

The committee will hold a public hearing Wednesday for opponents to court adherence. Presentation of facts to prove the undesirability of reporting out of committee the resolution for adherence will be under direction of Senators Johnson (Rep.), of California, and Robinson (Rep.), of Indiana.

Both Senators said today there would be no demonstration such as dominated the presentation of the case of court proponents recently.

While the complete list of witnesses has not been made public by the two Senators, it is known to include Edward Hayes, commander of the American Legion; Judge Daniel Cohalan, of New York; Mayor Curley, of Boston, and George Wharton Pepper, former United States Senator from Pennsylvania.

In addition, there will be numerous state governors, representatives of the nation's leading patriotic organizations, noted lawyers and jurists, churchmen and educators, and several university presidents.

Some of the greatest experts on international law also will be asked to testify before the committee and in every case the witnesses will be requested to confine themselves to cold facts.

The hearing is expected to last only one day with each witness taking only a few minutes and confining himself to one specific angle of opposition to court adherence.

French Arms Pact Hopes Revealed to League

GENEVA, May 14.—(AP.)—France was waiting today for bids from Great Britain to guarantee security.

Hungary likewise called for a security guarantee and published a protest against Jugoslavia which said that the political tension in Europe is now so great that every conflict which risks "putting Europe on fire" should be eliminated.

This situation confronted the members of the League of Nations Council as they gathered today for that body's seventy-ninth session.

Louis Barthou, Foreign Minister of France, attended a private meeting presided over by Augusto Vasconcellos, of Portugal, and persons cognizant with the recent Paris conversation said that disarmament prospects were gloomy unless Barthou was able to get unbreakable assurances for his nation that France will be given military assistance if attacked.

France would like a military alliance with Great Britain, but, failing this, desires a security system reinforcing the Locarno pact. If she obtains this she might consent to reduction of armaments, it was said.

The council today accepted $100,000 for the Rockefeller Foundation and $5,000 from the Milbank Memorial Fund, of New York, for the League's health work.

RUSSIANS KILL MANCHUKUOAN

TOKIO, May 14.—(AP.)—A Japanese army report said today that rifle fire from Russian military positions on the Russian bank of the Amur River Saturday killed one Manchukuoan sailor and wounded another aboard a steamer.

The army report made no mention of advices from Tsitsihar to the newspaper Asahi that a detachment of Japanese troops bound for duty at Heiho was aboard the vessel.

The War Office declined to comment. A spokesman said Manchukuo was investigating.

SHANGHAI, May 14.—(INS.)—An invasion of China by the Japanese army is "inevitable" unless differences between China and Japan are settled within three months, Japanese military officials declared today.

The Japanese charged China was purposely "stringing out" current negotiations for a settlement of the Sino-Japanese problems.

League Recognition Denied Manchukuo

GENEVA, May 14.—(INS.—The consultative committee ? of the League of Nations decided today to continue its policy of non-recognition of the Japanese puppet state of Manchukuo.

HUSBAND SLAIN IN ROW OVER ELOPEMENT

each suffering from a hip wound, said by police to have been inflicted by John.

After the shooting, the girl's father, at pistol point, forced Gus George, of East Liverpool, O., who drove the couple to Canonsburg last night, to drive him from the scene of the shooting, police reported.

Washington County detectives, Canonsburg and state police and authorities in nearby towns scoured highways and side roads for the fleeing father.

The fateful number "13" figured tragically in the elopement and slaying. On March 13, Virginia slipped away from her father's watchful eye and eloped to Wheeling, W. Va., with Felluzis. Yesterday—the 13th—she returned, seeking forgiveness.

Since their marriage the couple had been living in East Liverpool, where the husband was employed in a restaurant. George drove them to Canonsburg yesterday.

Virginia went to the home of a sister, Mrs. Sarah Regas, of 176 Smith street, who, herself, had eloped three years ago. Her husband went to the Andamasaris home at 7 Brown alley, next door to the coffee house and dwelling of the Johns.

John, from his coffee house, saw Felluzis enter. John followed and pounded on the door with his pistol. When Mrs. Andamasaris refused to admit him, John threatened to shoot through the door, she told police.

Entering, he fired without aim. The shot struck Andamasaris' hip. Mrs. Andamasaris ran to the porch, screaming. John followed, gun in hand. Mrs. Andamasaris fell, wounded through her hip.

Felluzis fled to the alley, John in pursuit, police were informed. The first bullet struck Felluzis' spine, but he kept running. The second bullet, fired with deadly aim, pierced his heart.

Returning to the house, John forced George to drive him away in his car, police said.

Stunned and tearful, Virginia was taken to the Canonsburg police station. The girl-bride said:

"We were so happy and we thought that mother and dad would surely forgive us."

"I want them to catch father. He must be punished. He must have been out of his head, but it was wicked, cruel."

Asked if she would be willing to see her father go to the electric chair, she replied:

"No—not that, but something should happen to him."

Virginia related details of Mike's secret "mash-note" courtship. Her father, she said, would not permit her to have boy friends. Until their elopment, she had never had a "date" with Felluzis. She explained:

"Mike used to come to dad's coffee house. Usually I would be sitting on the porch. First, he just used to smile and say 'hello' as he passed, then he began dropping notes, and I answered them.

"There wasn't very much at home and I couldn't be happy. Dad and mother were too strict. I couldn't think of refusing when he wrote, 'lets run away and get married.'

"I slipped away one noon when everyone was busy. A friend drove us to Wheeling and we were married there. Then we went to East Liverpool where Mike found a job.

"We were very happy there, but we both thought that we would be even happier if father would forgive us."

Mrs. John, mother of Virginia, collapsed after the shooting and was under the care of a doctor today.

Harold Addis, Canonsburg chief of police, and County Detective Frank A. Creps are in charge of the investigation. They were in East Liverpool today in the belief that John may have forced George to head that way. Roads in every direction were being watched.

TROLLEY SPLITS SWITCH, 3 HURT

The motorman and two passengers who were injured slightly yesterday when a Negley avenue trolley left the rails on Craig street in front of Duquesne Garden and crashed into an iron light pole are recovering today.

The injured, police said, were James E. Willis, of 1352 Montezuma street, the motorman; Walter Rise, 57, of 7429 Race street, and Mrs. John Sharp, of Undercliffe road.

The derailment occurred at the switch of a car siding. Police said they were told by the motorman that the switch closed as he ran his car over it. The car left the rails, continued over the paved street and crashed into the pole.

About 20 other passengers on the car were thrown from their seats.

NATION MARKS MOTHER'S DAY

Associated Press.

Mrs. James Roosevelt, mother of the President, led the nation's observance of Mother's Day yesterday.

As the "First Mother of the Land," she was the guest of honor at the World Peace Ways dinner and the principal speaker on the annual Golden Rule Foundation's program, both in New York.

She said:

"I rejoice most of all this year in the belief that we are on the eve of a greater recovery of our moral and spiritual resources."

C. V. Vickery, president of the Golden Rule Foundation, termed the President's mother the "typical mother of today" and criticized Whistler's "Mother" painting, used on the memorial postage stamps. He said:

"A painting of a modern mother would not depict her sitting meditatively, hands folded, but surrounded by magazines and newspapers with a telephone at hand and a radio in the background."

At Washington wreaths from 24 chapters of the American War Mothers were placed on the tomb of the unknown soldier. A message from President Roosevelt to the War Mothers said:

"May you long enjoy the peace and tranquility which your sons made possible for us."

DRANK WHISKY, $1,131 GONE

Carrying $1,131 in his pockets because he was "afraid of banks," John Shemkus, 55, of 1526 Magnolia street, was found wandering in Ohio River boulevard yesterday minus the money, according to Avalon police.

Shemkus said he was drinking whiskey in a place in Laurel street, Woods Run, and later awoke in a nearby woods. Woods Run police later arrested Jerry Shay, 27, of 1209 Laurel street, and his brother, Daniel, 29. Both denied knowing anything about the reported robbery. They were charged with keeping a disorderly house.

NRA Will Restrict Code Prosecutions

WASHINGTON, May 14.—(AP.)—NRA's prosecutions for code violation henceforth will be limited almost altogether to those cases in which adverse influence on interstate commerce can be demonstrated.

The program was stated in a declaration of enforcement policy made by A. G. McNight, director of litigation, before a group of NRA legal men.

Today

bear it in mind. LIBERTIES AND RIGHTS are still prized, even the right to make mistakes.

DON'T FAIL to see this magnificent country, with good railroads, good automobile roads and swift flying machines everywhere.

This is your country, and not to see it from ocean to ocean, and from north to south, is a calamity.

However, and wherever you may go this summer, do not fail to go by way of Chicago. Every road leads to that "Century of Progress" Exposition.

There you will see what men have already done and traveling farther you will realize how much lies ahead of a nation that has already achieved such marvels.

SEE YOUR country thoroughly, and later, when you die and stand in the middle of heaven, with friendly heaven-born angels crowding around, you will say to them: "Yes, this is grand, I never saw streets of pearl or walls of gold or houses colored like that before. But say, it is too bad you never saw the United States."

FAIR TO EXHIBIT MARY CASSATT PAINTING

Mary Cassatt, Pittsburgh artist who died in Paris in 1926, is the only woman among 10 American painters whose works will be exhibited at the 1934 World's Fair in Chicago, according to an announcement by fair officials.

Miss Cassatt was born on Rebecca street, North Side, in 1845. Her father, Robert Cassatt, was elected mayor of old Allegheny a year later, and served one term.

Leaving Pittsburgh in 1850, the family moved to Paris, where Mary spent the rest of her life. The rest of the family returned to take up residence in Philadelphia, where the Cassatt banking house was established.

A brother, Alexander Johnston Cassatt, became president of the Pennsylvania Railroad.

CALLED 'GREATEST'

According to John O'Connor, business manager of the fine arts department at Carnegie Institute, Miss Cassatt was the greatest woman painter ever born in the United States. He said:

"She is by far the most distinguished of American woman artists."

One of her oils, "Young Women Picking Fruit," is on exhibition at Carnegie Institute.

Mr. O'Connor remarked on the coincidence by which two women, Miss Cassatt and Gertrude Stein, born on the North Side, left here for Paris, there to attain world-wide prominence in painting and literature.

TRADITION CITED

Ten highly significant paintings by American artists were selected for exhibition at the fair. Dr. Robert B. Harshe, director of the Art Institute, in commenting on the selection, said:

"Many persons do not know America has a fine art tradition. We are so busy running after famous foreigners we forget the local talent. A Century of Progress is endeavoring to show the splendid history of American art by its finest examples."

Selected because they are considered the most significant, the finest and the most beautiful, the other paintings are:

"Lady Jean," by George Bellows, a native of Columbus, O.; "Woman With Forget-Me-Nots," by Frank Duvenek, who was born in Covington, Ky.; Whistler's "Girl in White;" "Nude With Apple," by William J. Glackens, representative of the impressionist group in America; "Vele Gonfil," by John Sargent; "Head of Lafayette," by Samuel F. B. Morse, who is better known as an inventor; Thomas Eakins' "Pathetic Song;" John Singleton Copley's "Lady Frances Wentworth," and Winslow Homer's "Fox Hunt."

Boy Killed Playing 'Catch' With Brother

WAYNESBORO, Pa., May 14.—(AP.)—A game of "catch" with a golf ball cost the life of Earl R. Rabette, 13.

The boy, one of 10 children of Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Rabette, was playing with a brother, Charles. One of Charles' throws struck Earl on the head. He died in a hospital of brain concussion and hemorrhages.

Eddie Cantor Heads Guild Second Time

HOLLYWOOD, May 14.—(AP.)—Eddie Cantor, stage and screen star, will head the screen actors' guild for another year.

He was re-elected president at the annual election last night.

Guild to Sponsor Reception, Dance

The Women's Guild of Duquesne University will sponsor a reception, card party, and dance to be given at the university on Friday evening. Mrs. Gilbert J. Trageser is in charge of the affair which will be held for the benefit of the student loan fund.

Joan Bennett Sails On Hurried Vacation

NEW YORK, May 14.—(Universal.)—Twelve days is all the time she has in which to see Europe, Joan Bennett said as she and her husband, Gene Markey, writer, sailed on the liner Conte Di Savoia on a visit to Naples, Rome, Paris and London.

THE PITTSBURGH SUN-TELEGRAPH WANT-ADS BRING RESULTS

FORUM FORMED TO AID STATE TAXPAYERS

A legislative program which will ease the burden of taxation for the residents of Pennsylvania, and one which will have the support of the many taxpayers' organizations, will be the aim of the Taxpayers' Forum of Pennsylvania. The forum, recently organized in Philadelphia, aims to provide reliable information on governmental costs to the various taxpayers' organizations and to formulate a comprehensive legislative program which will merit the support of every group of property owners and taxpayers.

Pennsylvania at present has a considerable number of strong, well organized local taxpayers' associations. Some of these organizations have already accomplished excellent results toward reducing the cost of government in the communities which they represent. All of them have been hampered in their work by provisions on the statute books of Pennsylvania, making impossible, without legislative action, reductions which they feel to be desirable and which are otherwise entirely feasible. To put across such legislation it is necessary to have state-wide support.

The individual taxpayers' association in Pennsylvania, up to the present time also has been handicapped by the necessity of either getting its own facts, or doing without them.

To meet this need the Pennsylvania Economic Council was organized in 1932. The council is purely a research organization, interested solely in securing accurate information as to the costs of state and local governments in Pennsylvania. It is proposed that surveys be made of every taxing body in the state and when this is completed the council will have a complete picture of all governmental costs and finances.

The Taxpayers' Forum of Pennsylvania will take on the task of disseminating the information gathered by the council. Such information and data will make possible unified action in securing legislation in Harrisburg. As the council completes each step of its progress the forum will disseminate the information to the various taxpayers' associations and leagues. From this information the forum will prepare a legislative program for each session of the General Assembly, the program to be concentrated on a minimum number of bills. It will submit its program to the various taxpayers' leagues for support—a process that will leave every organization free to support, on its own behalf, any additional measures that may seem desirable.

The forum will have but 100 charter members, one from each of the 67 counties and 33 at large. The forum has its headquarters at 1922 Fidelity - Philadelphia Building, Philadelphia, and A. S. Kempfer is the executive secretary.

'WORLD'S FAIR' CAFE OPENING

With the signing of a new lease in the Columbia Building, Fourth avenue and Wood street, the B/G Sandwich Shops have announced the impending opening of a new type eating place to be known as Dairy Lane.

Dairy Lane is a development of a "serve-self" undertaking at the Century of Progress in Chicago, according to W. L. Nichols, local superintendent of the B/G Sandwich Shops, Inc., owner of the subsidiary, Dairy Lane, Inc.

Nichols explained:

"Food will be prepared in our own kitchens, and our guests will be served by 'country lasses' and lads in rural costumes."

Bethel Church Celebrates Birth

Members of the Pittsburgh Presbytery yesterday made a pilgrimage to Bethel Presbyterian Church, Bethel Township, where they depicted in pageantry the founding of the church in Western Pennsylvania 158 years ago by the Rev. John McMillan. The role of the founder was taken by John McMillan, a grandson, aided by Boy Scouts and the Women's Missionary Society. The present church was built 25 years ago, and is the fourth erected since the founding of the congregation.

Celebrate Birth of Methodism Here

Services commemorating the one hundred and fiftieth anniversary of the organization of the Methodist church in America, and the one hundreth anniversary of Jason Lee's visit to Pittsburgh, were held in the Christ Methodist Episcopal Church and the Braddock Methodist Church yesterday. Principal speakers were Dr. J. S. Stowell, of Philadelphia, and Winter Moon, an Indian of the Mohave tribe. They came as the "Jasen Lee Special," a caravan touring the country.

College Alumnae To Hold Luncheon

ENGINEER HELD IN SLAYING OF GIRL IN PARK

SAN FRANCISCO, May 14.—Twenty-two hours after the broken body of Miss Louise Jeppeson, 23, Utah girl, was found in Golden Gate Park, Millard Hickman, 40, port engineer for the Matson Navigation Company, was booked by police on a murder charge here today.

Hickman admitted, Capt. of Inspectors Charles Dullea said, that Miss Jeppeson, member of a prominent Ogden and Salt Lake City family, was in his apartment until 3 a. m. Sunday, but that she then left, alone.

DRINKING PARTY

The girl, whose body was found about an hour later in the park, was attacked, beaten and strangled with a belt and scarf torn from her ensemble outfit, police said.

Capt. Dullea said Hickman was in a party of four dancing and drinking with Miss Jeppesen Saturday night and into Sunday morning. Hickman, Capt. Dullea said, declared he had no knowledge of the girl's death.

Others in the party who were questioned were Thomas Dee, 40, official of an engineering concern, and Miss Blanche McKay, attractive blonde residing at a San Francisco hotel. Police say the latter two declared they left Miss Jeppesen in Hickman's apartment. They were released by police after several hours' questioning.

Miss Jeppesen was the daughter of Mrs. Emma Jeppesen, widow of an Ogden banker.

SIGNS OF STRUGGLE

Her body was found in a pedestrian tunnel near an old stadium in the park by John C. Gentry, 62, who was on his way to work at a riding stable.

Police summoned by Gentry to the lonely spot in the park, said shrubbery outside the tunnel, a concrete underpass, indicated the girl had struggled desperately.

Miss Jeppesen, on a vacation from her employment with an Ogden newspaper, had been in San Francisco five weeks, visiting at the home of family friends, Mr. and Mrs. H. N. Huish.

Huish, assistant purchasing agent for a flour company, said Miss Jeppesen left his home just outside the park, not far from where the body was found. Saturday afternoon. He said he understood her to say she wanted to remain in San Francisco and was going to see if she could find employment.

"I heartily congratulate the members of your organization. Yours in a useful work. You render a real service to your country."

INJURED GIRL'S STORIES DIFFER

Police today are investigating the circumstances under which 13-year-old Sally Sergen, of 108 South Eleventh street, suffered a skull injury early yesterday morning. She was found unconscious in Spencer street.

At first, police said she told them she leaped from the automobile in which she was riding home with two youths she had met at a party in Spencer street. Later, police said, she said she was struck by an automobile while she was thumbing her way home. Five women were in the car, she said, which struck her as it swerved to the curb to pick her up.

3 Men Slashed In Row Over Cards

Three Negroes were slashed during an argument in a card game at 1227 Pasture street last night, police said.

Elmer Harris, 28, of that address, was taken to Mercy Hospital in a serious condition after being struck on the head with a hatchet. Ernest Walker, 25, and Andrew Bunch, 35, were cut by Harris in the fight, police said.

Don't Say 'Boo' To Animals, Park Warns

NEW YORK, May 14.—(AP.)—Lovers of liberty and freedom of speech ran into a new "don't today." Solemnly presented by the Park Commission, it reads:

"Don't say 'Boo!' to a bird or an animal."

Students of wild life in the big city pointed out today that many animals have very sensitive nervous systems. A boo is apt to upset an anteater, for example, for the entire day, so that he may be unable to eat a single ant. The gross cruelty of booing an elephant or a lion is apparent to the veriest amateur.

North Side Man, 85, Struck by Auto

Christ Detzel, 85, of 345 Waldorf street, North Side, was in a serious condition in Allegheny General Hospital today suffering from shock, a broken leg and a head injury received when he was struck by an auto while crossing East street at Madison avenue, last night.

FAMOUS AIRMAN SENT TO JAIL

MINEOLA, N. Y., May 14.—(AP.)—Bert Acosta, once holder of the world's endurance record, served the first day today of a three months' jail sentence.

He was sent to the Nassau County Jail for public intoxication by Police Justice Rogers yesterday after he figured in an automobile accident.

Police said he quarreled with the officers after an automobile in which he was riding with George Schwartz, 23, of Jamaica, and a young woman companion overturned in Mineola. All three were injured slightly.

Schwartz, who was driving the car, was fined $100 and given a 30-day sentnce for driving while intoxicated.

Acosta established a nonstop record of 51 hours 11 minutes 25 seconds with Clarence Chamberlain in 1927, and in the same year flew the Atlantic in the America with Admiral Richard E. Byrd.

SEEK MILLIONS TO FIGHT CRIME

WASHINGTON, May 14.—(AP.)—To the challenge of the John Dillingers of America, the government may write a $3,000,000 answer.

Lewis Douglas, budget director, and men from the Justice Department are putting their heads together, considering the advisability of spending up to that sum on a "war chest" to combat crime.

Among these things the money would provide are 20 armored cars, 200 swift squad cars, submachine guns and bullet-proof vests and tear gas equipment.

Ten or 12 new offices of the division of investigation, 275 more men to help the present 419 agents and expanded facilities for prosecution also would be provided.

Street Car Tokens Worth $40 Stolen

SOME PLAIN TALK for MR. AND MRS. AVERAGE CITIZEN

Supporters of political candidates, and the candidates themselves, have usually in the past carefully avoided plain, frank speech.

The customary policy was to beat the drums, shout names at rivals, kiss babies, shake hands, plaster billboards, issue phoney challenges to debate, start whispering campaigns, and avoid actual issues, real facts, records and qualifications. Last minute charges were a favorite pastime.

Some of the candidates, along with their supporters, in the present campaigns for the Republican nomination for governor are still so old-fashioned as to believe Mr. and Mrs. Average Citizen are still being fooled by such antics. One is called a "fearless fighter." What fight was he ever in?

William A. Schnader, the leading candidate for the Republican nomination for governor, and his supporters believe such outmoded political campaigning will not go over in this Spring of 1934. It is believed that you are only interested in voting for the man who will make the best governor. Mr. Schnader's record, qualifications, reputation and program are pre-eminent.

Real estate taxes all go to local and school governments. No governor can cut them in half—Schnader will fight to lower them.

BOSSES AND BALONEY

Another discredited political trick is to point a finger at some candidate and try to pin the tag of "Bosses' Man" on him. The party organization endorsed Mr. Schnader because he can win in November.

There are about 350,000 Republican voters in Allegheny County according to the last registration figures.

In view of the results of recent elections in this county, any group of bosses or office holders who think these 350,000 can be ordered one way or the other, is plumb crazy.

Mr. Schnader's character, record and reputation are proof enough that no boss nor group of bosses has ever or will ever order him to do otherwise than his own conscience and good judgment demand.

Of course he welcomes the support of all Republicans. You've got to have votes to win an election and neither Mr. Schnader nor any other candidate is refusing anybody's vote or support.

Before he was endorsed, and since, he has repeatedly made clear his position of independence with no commitments nor promises in this campaign. He will not be any different after he is governor.

Failing to find a weak link in his armor of record or character, his rivals have stooped to attempting to paste labels on his back. The glue was weak and the labels didn't have fast colors. Not one professional county office holder has announced his support of Mr. Schnader. Their payrolls are told to vote for some other candidate.

The young Republicans of Pennsylvania were the ones who first demanded that Mr. Schnader be the new party leader by being a candidate for governor.

Enthusiastic with spirit for a rejuvenated and liberal Republican party, the younger Republicans saw in Schnader a man of their own type and ideals. They believe he is the one man who could weld all elements of the party into a close-knit unit and they welcomed the support of the veterans of the party, knowing the practical experience of the veterans was needed.

MONOPOLY ON INDEPENDENCE

Some candidates and their supporters seem to think they have a monopoly on political independence.

If this attitude were not so shallow, it would be amusing to watch the flipflops of some of the candidates and their supporters to don hastily the new popular mantle of Independence; especially when Lieut. Governor Shannon and many of his Allegheny County lieutenants owe everything they have ever had and now have politically as a reward for their participation in fights in previous years against Independence.

People are not deceived by these ninth inning conversions and rapid change acts.

We do not claim to have a corner on Independence in the Schnader camp but we do have the largest quota of men and women who have been, are and always will be Independent in thought, action and vote.

Independent men and women are supporting Mr. Schnader's candidacy here whose records and reputations are such that it is ridiculous to charge they have suddenly become "cogs" in the "machine" under any "bosses."

We dislike to mention names but we do not intend to have any stamps or labels placed on Mr. Schnader nor his Allegheny County supporters.

William A. Schnader served as attorney general under Governors Pinchot and Fisher, who are as different as Pinchot and Reed.

Such men as P. J. McArdle, Edward O. Tabor, William P. Witherow, Robert Garland, J. Garfield Houston and scores of others who have been leaders in the fight for an improved Republican party here are actively interested in Mr. Schnader's nomination.

Most of the thinking Independents who are not influenced by personal political ambitions will be found voting for William A. Schnader for governor on the Republican ballot Tuesday.

THE "SOLDIER VOTE"

There is much talk about the "soldier vote." We do not believe the "soldier vote" can be "delivered" by any handful of colonels and majors, who hold juicy political jobs.

Everyone knows that there is little now that a governor of Pennsylvania could do for ex-service men.

Practically every member of the Allegheny County Schnader Committee is an ex-service man who did his plain duty during the war.

We feel that most veterans are no different from any other sort of citizens—citizens who will vote according to their best judgment for the best candidate.

ALL AMERICANS

Italian Americans, Polish Americans, Slavic Americans and all the other foreign born and foreign society citizens also do not blindly vote for some candidate just because some self-designated leader presumes to speak for them. They have found that the leader is usually looking for something for himself.

The voters of all nationalities are thinking their votes out for themselves as good citizens should.

It is only natural that sympathies for kinfolk lean one way or the other but there is no place in a Pennsylvania governorship campaign for either the pro or con of any European political situation.

After all, we are ALL AMERICANS and proud of that first and intend to show our pride by voting as good citizens according to our conscienes and not by narrow viewpoint nor sentiment.

William A. Schnader has a broad sympathy with and will get support from all groups and nationalities. We must not have a government by groups or blocs.

These are things not usually discussed openly in political campaigns.

We hope this statement has been of some value to you in determining your vote no matter whom it will be for.

We also hope you'll agree with us that brushing aside all the irrelevant and meaningless issues, William A. Schnader is the logical man to vote for in the Republican governorship primary election Tuesday.

Do not waste your vote. Vote along with the united majority of your fellow Republicans of all elements for William A. Schnader for governor.

SCHNADER ALLEGHENY COUNTY COMMITTEE.

DEATH FIGHTERS HERE IN NEW CRUSADE

Alarmed at the menace of so-called social diseases and lack of organized effort to combat them, the General Health Council of Pittsburgh has called a meeting Wednesday of groups concerned with health supervision to plan concerted action.

To the meeting will be invited representatives of the City Health Department, Board of Public Education, city and county hospitals, Public Health Nursing Association, American Red Cross, and others.

THOUSANDS SUFFERING

The Bureau of Social Research, an agency of the Community Fund, discovered that last year the out-patient departments of 10 Pittsburgh hospitals reported visits of 35,363 patients suffering from so-called social diseases.

Such diseases are as contagious as tuberculosis or small pox, according to a statement by the Community Fund, but are not officially considered so by public health authorities and no report is required to the Health Department.

Neither the city nor the county has any provision for supplying needy persons with medicines, it is said. The state will supply medicine to indigent patients upon certification by a physician.

QUICK ACTION URGED

Dr. Lester Hollander, head of the Pittsburgh Skin and Cancer Foundation, said:

"If individuals suffering from early stages of such diseases could be promptly found out and subjected to treatment, the diseases could be virtually stamped out as a public health problem."

The General Health Council at a recent meeting adopted a resolution condemning lack of proper control of so-called social diseases and pledging its resources to remedying this situation.

WEATHER HALTS RADIO PROGRAM

A two-day broadcast between a TWA Douglas air liner and the top of the 42-story Cathedral of Learning, through Station KDKA, scheduled for last night, was postponed until 10:15 o'clock next Sunday night due to weather conditions.

Weather bulletins received by the TWA line indicated the approach of a storm and consequently a low ceiling with visibility less than a mile, which would have prevented the purpose to the broadcast—to report the distance at which the lighthouse light beam on top of the tall building could be seen.

In the $1,650,000 campaign to complete the cathedral, first reports of subscriptions received will be made public at a meeting in the Commons Room of the cathedral Thursday night, according to Thomas Fitzgerald, chairman of the citizens' committee.

SUSPECT BALKY, SERGEANT HURT

Going to the aid of a fellow officer who was struggling with a Negro robber suspect, Harry Levine, acting sergeant at Central Police Station, was struck on the head with a milk bottle while en route to work last night.

Patrolman John Tynan, 2139 Webster avenue, investigated a noise at the rear of his house last night and saw three Negroes. Capturing two of them, he was holding the pair for a patrol wagon when one escaped. The other started a struggle, as Levine, nearby, appeared.

Levine was treated at Mercy Hospital. James Brown, 42, Negro, 1840 Junilla street, was subdued by his captors and later taken to Mercy Hospital, police said.

Hear Application of New Cab Company

The Public Service Commission today was to hear the application of the Zone Corporation of Pennsylvania, recently formed with $50,000 capitalization, to operate 300 lightweight cabs in Pittsburgh. The application was expected to be opposed by the Parmelee Company, now operating cabs here without competition. Although no schedule of proposed rates is composed in the application, officials said several days ago that permission to operate here would mean cheaper taxi rates for the city.

Mrs. Carnegie Sails For Skibo Castle

NEW YORK, May 14.—(Universal.)—Mrs. Andrew Carnegie, widow of the Scotch ironmaster, has sailed on the Berengaria for her home, Skibo Castle, in Scotland. Two weeks ago a staff of servants preceded her across. She was accompanied by Roswell Ross, her son-in-law.

Wartime Governor Of Michigan Dies

BAD AXE, Mich., May 14.—(AP.)—Albert E. Sleeper, 71, Michigan's wartime Governor and long a prominent figure in Republican politics of the state, died at his home here yesterday afternoon. He is survived by his widow.

This is the sixth of a series of Safety Cartoons drawn by a CWA artist for the Better Traffic Committee as an educational aid in reducing the growing number of traffic accidents in Pittsburgh. The artist, Frank McFeatters, was one of 100 CWA workers assigned to the Traffic Committee and his art ability was an accidental discovery.

The Light Jumper is a cheater. He's like folks who crib on examinations and peek into opponents' bridge hands.

By starting on "yellow," the Light Jumper frequently gets into accidents. You will find the Light Jumper to be the same person who only slows down at "stop" signs.

Scheif Indorsed By Mayor McNair

Attorney Charles J. Scheif, candidate for Democratic nomination to the Legislature in the Fifth District, has announced his indorsement by Mayor McNair. Scheif also reported indorsement by the Thirteenth and Fourteenth Ward Democratic Clubs, the Western Pennsylvania Ice Dealers' Association, and the Square Deal Clubs.

PARK ANTIQUES RECLAIMED BY CLUBWOMEN

Terming County Commissioner Charles C. McGovern "ungracious and unappreciative," clubwomen of Allegheny county today were to begin removing their collection of valuable antiques from the historic Old Stone Manse in South Park.

Withdrawal of the support of the clubwomen in the preservation of the historic shrine followed the elimination from the county budget of $50 to pay the salary of a caretaker, and later came announcement by the commissioners that the project would be taken care of by the county.

This came to light yesterday when the Commissioners appealed to residents of the county to contribute antiques to furnish the Old Stone House, which dates back to 1774.

The clubwomen undertook the task of furnishing the house a year ago, when, at the request of McGovern, Mrs. Robert Cochrane, county president of the State Federation of Pennsylvania Women, named Mrs. John M. Phillips head of the committee.

After antiques were collected from various sections of Western Pennsylvania, the house was furnished and formally dedicated during the county fair last September.

RECORD BROKEN IN MAIL FLIGHT

International News Service.

NEW YORK, May 14.—Resumption of private air mail service by T. W. A., Inc., formerly Transcontinental and Western Air, Inc., was off to an auspicious start today with a record flight for cargo planes from Los Angeles to Newark.

Piloting a Northrup Gamma monoplane, Jack Frye, vice president and veteran pilot of the line, carried 355 pounds of mail and 85 pounds of express from Los Angeles to Newark in 11 hours and 31 minutes, including a 10-minute stop at Kansas City for fuel and mail. Frye and Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker made the previous air mail record of 13 hours and 4 minutes.

Frye left Los Angeles yesterday at 6 a. m., eastern standard time, and arrived in Newark at 5:31 p. m. His average time for the 2,609 miles was 227 miles an hour.

Retail Forum to Hear Ad Expert

Kenneth Collins, author of "The Road to Good Advertising," will be the principal speaker at a banquet of the Retail Forum in Kaufmann's dining room Wednesday night. Mr. Collins, formerly with Macy's Department Store in New York, and at present connected with Gimbel Brothers, is one of the best known advertising men in the East.

BOY, 6, KILLED BY AUTO

William Vignovic, 6, of 642 Fairview avenue, McKeesport, was killed yesterday morning when he was struck by an automobile at Shaw avenue and Cornell street. The driver, police said, was Davis Katz, 21, of 314 Fifth street, Rankin. He was ordered to post bond pending an inquest.

Falling through the door of his father's auto at a curve on the East Pittsburgh-McKeesport boulevard yesterday, Billy Pierce, 3, of 2005 Bowman avenue, McKeesport, was taken to McKeesport Hospital.

HUNT 2 HIT-RUN AUTOISTS

Two alleged hit-run drivers of automobiles were sought by police today.

In one Elsie Miller, 28, of 417 Arch street, was struck as she crossed Federal street, near East Stockton avenue. She was taken to Allegheny General Hospital.

In the other, a parked machine was pushed into the front of a restaurant at 132 Ninth street, breaking a window. The parked car was owned by C. B. Minick, of 130 Ninth street.

Talk on Bank Payoff Bill Scheduled

United States Representative Clarence J. McLeod, Republican, of Michigan, discussed the proposed bill to pay off depositors in closed banks during a special KQV-CBS broadcast from Washington tonight at 11 o'clock.

The Sun-Telegraph is strongly behind the bank depositors' payoff bill.

* * *

* * *

* * *

GLOBE TROTTING

Hello, Ladies and Gentlemen:

Just to make sure it gets as widespread publicity as possible, I am repeating the same information I gave on the radio last Saturday.

Lieut. Pollard, of CCC Camp, S-76, at Renovo, Pa., called long distance from Lock Haven to inform me that the boys from Pittsburgh and vicinity wanted to be remembered to their mothers on Mother's Day.

The lieutenant explains that the boys were unable to write or send gifts home due to their ceaseless efforts in battling a raging forest fire.

For more than a week the CCC boys have been fighting the onslaught of the flames in daily shifts of 15 to 20 hours, scarcely taking enough time out to grab a bite or a little sleep.

The boys asked the lieutenant to tell me to pass on to their folks at home their sincere Mother's Day greetings.

Globe Trotter Farmers, attention:

The man of the hour will soon be here. Henry Eby, the farm, garden, plant and tree expert will start another year of Globe Trotting service on Friday at 12:15 and will be heard weekly at that time thereafter.

A 34-year-old veteran, out-of-work, a painter by trade, is in a spot and needs Globe Trotter assistance.

One of his five children, a little 3-year-old girl, is in the hospital, soon to be discharged.

Due to financial pressure, he lost all his furniture and hasn't a bed for his little girl to lie in while recuperating.

Who has that bed for him? Call me or Miss Bales, Grant 6500.

* * *

Peggy Love—I'm sorry, Peggy, but as sympathetic as I would like to be, I am not much impressed with your grievances over your parents' disciplinarian measures. From your letter I would think that you are headstrong and a trifle impetuous and that your parents' present course of conduct is correct and might save you a life time of bitterness.

You are too young, at 18, to decide what's right and wrong with what your parents are doing.

You will be foolish and very sorry if you run away from home.

Local Highlights on WJAS Tonight

Notes About Radio Stars, Stations

By AIRCASTER

The Philharmonic Orchestra's recent appeal for $500,000 to keep it going and also to keep it on the air has been oversubscribed . . . The great majority of contributions came from the radio audience . . . The present amount of money in the bag is $502,559.

It's a strange fact that the vast majority of givers in the radio audience were women . . . Most of them mothers who expressed a desire to inculcate good music into the minds of their kids to compensate for the jazz age . . .

* * *

Don't make any dates for September 26 and don't say you didn't get plenty of notice . . .

On that date, Queen Mary of England, will speak to us via radio for the very first time . . .

It'll be from Glasgow on the occasion of the launching of the Cunard line's biggest boat.

GEORGIANS

A brief while ago Georgia Simmons, a pretty girl with a gift for mimicry was attracting a deal of attention with her blackface impersonations on a west coast station.

She had created a character known as Magnolia, and her popularity grew rapidly so that occasionally, the chains would give her a whack at the nightly hookups when the commercial shows had packed up and gone to bed.

Among her few admirers in New York was a fellow performer, who, because he, himself was a purveyor of a similar dialect, had built up a prodigious respect for Georgia Simmons' work. He was Irving Kaufman, blackface comic, who created "Lazy Dan".

By one of those coincidences, Georgia Simmons used to listen to and admire Mr. Kaufman. Eventually, they began exchanging letters and Miss Simmons developed an ambition to come to New York and perform.

Pride prompted her to find herself a job without Kaufman's help when she did arrive recently, and she succeeded. She got a place on the Everett Marshall program as "Blackface Juliet."

On the night of her first performance when she walked up to the microphone for the final rehearsal, the blackface gentleman, who was to place "Romeo" opposite her, was introduced. The production man who introduced them said to Miss Simmons—"May I present—Mr. Irving Kaufman?"

P. S.—Both are still working on the same show.

- Fashion Shows—Displays Everywhere!
- Sales! Attractions Galore!

Beginning Tuesday, for a whole week, Boggs & Buhl, who "started this cotton business" in Pittsburgh, will be the center of attraction for the celebration of the great importance of the cottons the world can't live without! Cottons as known and loved by Cleopatra—the cottons of the Southern slaves—all the myriad happy phases of the fascinating soft cotton balls!

There will be fashion shows twice daily Tuesday and Wednesday. Rare displays of old museum pieces. Cottons from uncivilized lands. Cottons from Pittsburgh history. Special sales of new cotton fabrics. A room furnished in cotton. Cotton tots. Cotton fashions. A whole store turned into an immense cotton field in blossoming display—bringing a world of uses to your door. Come Tuesday. Scan us from cellar to roof. Revel in the glory of cottons!

M-M! YUM! IT'S NEW KIND OF FANCY ROLL

Most of us have eaten all kinds of fancy rolls, from the popular jelly roll to the festive sandwich combinations, but Mrs. F. B. Charmatz introduces a new kind to our daily cook book with her $5 prize winner, toasted chicken liver rolls.

They're tasty enough and fine enough for your smartest bridge luncheon, yet they'll prove surprisingly inexpensive. So will Mrs. C. Brown's watermelon pickles which she uses in a variety of ways. You'll be a truly clever hostess if you adopt her suggestions, novel and appetizing as can be.

Although other housewives have been sending in their excellent recipes, Prudence Penny wants you, too, to send in your favorites to her at the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph. To the best recipes received she awards one daily $5 and five $1 prizes. No recipes are returned.

Five Dollar Prize Winner

MRS. F. B. CHARMATZ,
322 Main street, Leechburg.

TOASTED CHICKEN LIVER ROLLS

Four chicken livers.
Chicken fat.
Salt and pepper.
Two medium-sized onions, chopped fine.
One hard-cooked egg.
One loaf new bread, not sliced.

Boil chicken livers for five minutes in salted water. Put chicken fat in frying pan and cook slowly until the liquid fat is out. Remove the solid browned fat and into the liquid fat put the chopped onions. Cook until a golden color. Chop livers and hard-cooked egg very fine. Add to the browned onions, remove pan from stove and mash all the ingredients together into a paste with a fork. Return pan to stove for a minute or two, then spread on bread sliced as follows:

Cut three slices of bread the long way of the loaf. Trim crust from the edge. Spread the liver paste evenly over the three slices. Now roll the bread like a jelly roll from the narrow end. Taper off the end of the slice so that it will roll up with a neat finish. Roll in waxed paper to keep the bread from unrolling, and put away in icebox for two or three hours. Have a sharp knife and heat it by passing it through the flame. Then take the rolls from the icebox but do not remove paper. Cut across like jelly roll into four slices. Lay the slices in a pan and carefully remove the paper. Place under broiler flame and brown first on one side and then on the other. Serve hot.

MISS CAROLINE HALLER,
911 S. Aiken avenue.

FAIRY RASPBERRY PIE

Make a pie shell from flaky pie crust and bake at 450 degrees for about 12 minutes. While it is baking whip the whites of four eggs very stiff, add four tablespoons sugar, whip again as stiff as possible and add four tablespoons more of sugar. Very carefully fold in one pint of raspberries with as few motions as possible, and as quickly as possible put the mixture in the pie shell which has not been removed from the oven. Leave the top in uneven ridges. Reduce the oven temperature to 300 degrees and bake until the meringue is done, about 30 minutes. Strawberries (now in season) may be substituted for the raspberries.

MISS BEATRICE PAISLEY
321 Winterhill street, South Hills.

RUSSIAN VEGETABLE SALAD

Wash and allow to get crisp one small head of lettuce, one bunch of watercress, several chives, a green pepper, a few dandelion leaves and white and red radishes. Drain thoroughly on a cloth and break the greens into pieces. Slice radishes thin and arrange in the large salad bowl. Now make a dressing by blending one-half teaspoon mustard, one-quarter teaspoon salt, one-quarter teaspoon each paprika and black pepper, and a cut piece of garlic into one tablespoon vinegar and one-half cup thick sour cream. Pour over salad, toss lightly and serve at once.

MRS. E. E. NEWLON,
Point Marion.

MOLDED CUSTARD

One tablespoonful of gelatine.
Half cupful cold water.
Two cupfuls of milk.
Half cupful of sugar.
Two beaten egg yolks.
One-fourth teaspoonful salt.
One teaspoonful vanilla.
Two egg whites, stiffly beaten.

Soak the gelatine in the milk five minutes.

Heat the two cupfuls of milk to scalding, add the sugar, stir until dissolved, then pour over the beaten egg yolks and cook over hot water until slightly thickened.

Remove from the fire, add the soaked gelatine, the salt, vanilla and stir until gealtine is dissolved. Stir in the beaten egg whites and pour the mixture into individual molds and chill until firm.

A clear jelly-like custard will form in the bottom with a foaming custard on top.

When ready to serve, unmold on dessert plates, arrange three rosettes of whipped cream around each custard and one on top, then garnish with choice red raspberries or strawberries.

MRS. W. W. AHLBORN,
R. D. 2, Coraopolis.

BALTIMORE CRABMEAT MOLD

One tablespoon plain gelatine.
One-fourth cup cold water.
Three-fourths cup mayonnaise.
One cup flaked crabmeat.
One-half cup minced celery.
Two tablespoons minced parsley.
One-half cup chopped cucumber.
Two tablespoons minced stuffed olives.
One-half teaspoon salt.
One-half teaspoon paprika.
One tablespoon lemon juice.
Few grains cayenne.
Lettuce, watercress.

Soften the gelatine in the cold water. Melt over steam and add to the mayonnaise. Combine with the remaining ingredients, put the miture in a ring mold which has been rinsed with cold water. Chill in the refrigerator or pack in ice until firm. Unmold. Fill the center with lettuce hearts and sprigs of watercress. Garnish with cut lemon dusted with paprika.

MRS. C. BROWN,
732 Third avenue, Ford City.

WATERMELON PICKLES

Pare off the outside green rind, also the red core, and cut into cubes about three-quarters of an inch, then weigh. Put into a kettle with water enough to cover the rinds and a heaping teaspoon of salt to every four pounds of rinds. Cook until easily pierced with a fork, then drain. Make a spiced vinegar syrup with two pounds brown sugar, one pint cider vinegar, one ounce stick cinnamon and one-half ounce whole cloves. Boil five minutes, then put in rinds and when it comes to a boil again, place in jars and seal immediately. This syrup is enough for four pounds of rinds. A few suggestions for using rinds are as follows:

1—Chop fine, mix with enough cream cheese to hold it together and spread between buttered slices of whole wheat bread. This makes an unusual and delicious sandwich for afternoon teas or bridge parties.

2—The same mixture may be used to stuff the inside tender stalks of celery. Serve as a salad or as a relish.

3—Chop fine and mix with the vegetables for vegetable salad. Allow two cups to three cups of mixed vegetables.

4—Serve with slices of broiled ham. Saute one cube for each person in the ham fat and place on each serving of ham.

5—Slice thin and use as a garnish for salmon and salad.

HOW WOMEN CAN WIN MEN AND MEN WIN

The Favor of Other Men

Unless two pints of bile juice flow daily from your liver into your bowels, your food decays in your bowels. This poisons your whole body. Movements get hard and constipated. You get yellow tongue, sallow skin, pimples, dull eyes, bad breath, bad taste, gas, dizziness, headache. You have become an ugly-looking, foul-smelling, sour-thinking person. You have lost your personal charm. Everybody wants to run from you.

But don't take salts, mineral waters, oils, laxative pills, laxative candies or chewing gums and expect them to get rid of this poison that destroys your personal charm. They can't do it, for they only move out the tail end of your bowels and that doesn't take away enough of the decayed poison. Cosmetics won't help at all.

Only a free flow of your bile juice will stop this decay poison in your bowels. The one mild vegetable medicine which starts a free flow of your bile juice is Carter's Little Liver Pills. No calomel (mercury) in Carter's. Only fine, mild vegetable extracts. If you would bring back your personal charm to win men, start taking Carter's Little Liver Pills according to directions today. 25¢ at drug stores.

Refuse "something just as good", for it may gripe, loosen teeth or scald rectum. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name and get what you ask for. © 1933, C. M. Co.

MIFFLIN GIRL HELD HERE

Picked up by Bellevue police after seeking directions, a girl who gave her name as Helen McCrum, 19, of Mifflin, Pa., was held for the Missing Persons Bureau last night as police checked her story.

She said she had hitch-hiked here to find work following a strike in a factory in Lewistown, where she had been employed.

In her purse were a Lewistown address and an Akron (O.) trolley transfer, police said.

Squeezed in Door, Mayview Inmate Dies

Injured when caught in a revolving door at the city home in Mayview last Thursday, Mrs. Lizetta Speer, 84, an inmate for 18 years, died there last night, the morgue reported death was due to pneumonia, which set in after the accident.

2 FLEE WRECK OF STOLEN AUTO

Police today searched for two Negroes who fled after wrecking a stolen car on the west ramp of the North Side-West End Bridge last night following a chase by its owner.

Both men were believed to have been injured. Blood stains were found in the auto, reported stolen from Rowe Campbell, in the rear of his home at 1231 Sheffield street.

MAY FESTIVAL TO LAST WEEK

As never before, children at the Kingsley House Settlement, Larimer avenue, are going to have a real May festival this year.

Instead of a one or two-day celebration as in the past, this year's festival will last an entire week, from May 21 to 26, with everything from Italian operettas to Mother Goose tales on the program.

Families throughout the neighborhood have begun work making costumes, stage settings, rehearsing songs and dances and getting everything ready for the highlight of the week when the King and Queen of the May will be crowned at a coronation ball on Saturday, May 26.

On May 21 and 22 students will present a musical revue entitled the "American Procession." On Thursday, fathers and mothers will join in presenting an Italian operetta based on native folk songs and on the following two days the children will present "Old King Cole."

V. P. I. Alumni Here Will Hold Dinner

Members of the Pittsburgh Alumni Chapter, Virginia Polytechnic Institute, will hold a dinner-meeting at the Hotel Henry Saturday night. Speakers will be E. W. Smith, vice president of the Pennsylvania Railroad, and R. J. Wysor, vice president of the Republic Steel Company, of Youngstown. E. H. Hornbarger will preside.

GEM RINGS

Throughout the centuries Rings have been the symbol of betrothal and marriage, the perfect circle denoting the perfect union which has no end. Grogan Rings, particularly the ones bound up with these most sacred events, sustain the highest tradition of the goldsmith's art. Their designers are heirs to the jeweler's knowledge of the ages.

The perfection of the gems and the craftsmanship on the mountings which hold them, are evidence of their worth.

—they age good grapes to make rare wines

—and they do something like that to mellow good tobaccos

WHERE THE RARE WINES come from they know that the two most important things in wine-making are the selection of the grapes and the long years of ageing in the wine cellars.

IT'S VERY MUCH THE SAME in the making of a cigarette. You have to get the right tobaccos, then put them away to age and mellow in wooden casks.

You can't make a good cigarette like Chesterfield in a day. It takes over two years to age the tobaccos for your Chesterfields—but it adds something to the taste and makes them milder.

Everything that modern Science really knows about is used to make Chesterfield the cigarette that's milder, the cigarette that tastes better.

Davis Indorsement of Margiotti Tardy

By MARK SHIELDS

The amazing thing about Senator James J. Davis' indorsement of Charles J. Margiotti as a candidate for the Republican gubernatorial nomination was its delay until last night. Senator Davis predicated his approval on an examination of the several platforms, explaining that of Mr. Margiotti had the only one which met his views. The platforms have been on view for weeks, and should have lent themselves to examination and indorsement prior to two days before the primary election.

Mr. Shields

Certainly an earlier indorsement would have been more beneficial to Mr. Margiotti.

There are stories that the Senator had been attempting to work out a truce between Margiotti, Lieut. Gov. Edward C. Shannon and former Congressman Thomas W. Phillips, whereby two would withdraw for the third and pool their support. There are reports that he was not deeply concerned which ones withdrew, and there are friends of Mr. Margiotti who have been exceedingly wroth over the thought that the Senator delayed his indorsement in the hope that the Punxsutawney attorney would drop out of the race.

That, of course, was something which never was possible after the Margiotti campaign began. It grew in force rather than faded. But as late as a week ago there is reason to believe that the Senator was trying to work out something between Margiotti and Phillips, and backers of the latter have the impression that it involved the retirement of Margiotti.

Now, of course, with the lines set, Senator Davis has given his indorsement, and it should be of some assistance. But it should have come earlier, and it hardly portrays the Senator as the doughty fighter he intimated he was when some weeks ago insisting that he should be considered in the formulation of policies by regular Republican leaders. He wasn't.

Expenditure Charges May Prove Boomerang

The charges flying between Senator Reed's manager and Gov. Pinchot over campaign expenditures may lead to a denouement which neither wants. The Governor says the Senator is spending huge sums in his primary campaign. Raymond D. Evans, Allegheny County manager for the Senator, retaliates today with the assertion that this is merely proof the Governor is licked in his senatorial primary contest against Mr. Reed.

Mr. Evans insists that the Governor has assessed the state payroll for campaign purposes, and this unquestionably has been done. But there is considerable money being spent for the Senator, and it is necessary to spend money in a state as large as Pennsylvania if voting interest is to be stimulated.

Now Mr. Evans challenges the Governor to demand an investigation of the expenditures by both candidates. The first thing you know, with these challenges flying about, someone is going to accept, and a United States Senate committee will investigate. Such investigations can be embarrassing and trying to the most reputable citizen.

Out of all this fog and fury will come some advantage for the Democratic senatorial candidate in November, a matter which does not appear to concern the primary candidates.

After all, tomorrow's election is nothing more than batting practice and an infield workout for the big game next fall.

Evans says flatly that the state has been divided into 12 highway districts for assessment purposes on behalf of the Governor. Westmoreland County employes, he asserts, are being nicked 1½ per cent of their salaries, with orders to send the checks to H. E. Kloss, division engineer in Allegheny County, to be transmitted to Harrisburg. That is a direct charge, Mr. Evans must prepare himself to back it up if the demand comes.

One thing is sure, the end of this campaign will not terminate the rancor between the two senatorial candidates, and they will exert such measures as are available for the continued embarrassment of each other.

Rees Makes Strong Plea for Shannon

Maj. W. T. Rees, secretary of the Allegheny County committee for Shannon, brought the soldier side of the campaign more into the open than it has been in a statement today. He said there were enough Republican veterans to elect Shannon as the party nominee for Governor, and veiled a threat to Republican leaders in various counties that they might suffer future reprisals from the soldier vote if they defeated Shannon. He added that Shannon was the man who could offer the best chance of party success in November.

Together with all other candidates, Shannon is continuing his appeal until the final minute. Tonight County Commissioner Charles C. McGovern will speak over the radio in behalf of the Lieutenant Governor.

What the major candidates are doing is being emulated by minor candidates, some of whom did not until yesterday give publicity to their platforms. That might seem negligent. It was due, somewhat to lack of political experience on the part of many. They should not, however, feel any shame on this score. Campaigns on behelf of major candidates promoted by men with years of experience on politics, have been sad affairs in this spring election.

It is re-emphasized that without money to buy their way to preferment the average political leader has little else to offer, and is completely at sea as to the manner in which he should approach the voters.

STEEDLE TRIAL DELAYED BY ELECTIONS

Jurors Debate Fate Of Tom O'Malley In Vote Case

The trial of Assemblyman Joseph G. Steedle, former Burgess of McKees Rocks, and 11 co-defendants, scheduled for Federal Court today, was postponed until Wednesday because of the primary election tomorrow by Judge F. P. Schoonmaker.

Dr. Steedle and the others are charged with conspiring to falsify ballots cast for candidates for Congress and the United States Senate in the November (1932) election.

Sixty government witnesses were on hand whenJudge Schoonmaker announced the postponement.

Later a jury, having been charged by Judge Schoonmaker, retired to deliberate on the guilt or innocence of five officials of the Second District, Second Ward, Election Board.

The defendants are Thomas O'Malley, judge; John Barosky and Earl Longo, inspectors; Floyd Kawka and Stanley Carlowski, clerks.

The trial of State Senator James J. Coyne and 11 other defendants, including several prominent political leaders, is listed on the court calendar for May 23.

Those on the same indictment with Dr. Steedle are Attorney B. Robert Averbach, counsel for the Republican county organization; Justice of the Peace James J. Westwood, of McKees Rocks; Justice of the Peace Paul N. Franks, of Scott Township; four Stowe Township police, Capt. Frank Miller, Chief Thomas Saunders and Patrolmen William Schwartz and August Weisser; Attorney John J. McGrath, Burton J. McKee, Robert S. S. Haus and Wallace Ray, clerk in the delinquent tax office.

Not including the case against O'Malley and his four co-defendants, 13 trials have been held, resulting in 54 convictions and 11 acquittals.

With few exceptions all those convicted have appealed to the United States Circuit Court. Most of those found guilty are members of election boards in the Third, Fourth and Fifteenth wards.

THE THIN MAN :-: :-: :-: By Dashiell Hammett

Nick Hit by Bullet Tussles on Floor With Gangster

By DASHIELL HAMMETT

(Soon to appear on the screen at Loew's Penn Theater as a thrilling motion picture made by Cosmopolitan Production for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer.)

When I came out of the bathroom, Nora and Dorothy were in the bedroom, Nora combing her hair, Dorothy sitting on the side of the bed dangling a stocking.

Nora made a kiss at me in the dressing-table mirror. She looked very happy.

"You like Nick a lot, don't you, Nora?" Dorothy asked.

"He's an old Greek fool, but I'm used to him."

"Charles isn't a Greek name."

"It's Charalambides," I explained. "When the old man came over, the mugg that put him through Ellis Island said Charalambides was too long—too much trouble to write—and whittled it down to Charles. It was all right with the old man; they could have called him X so they let him in."

Dorothy stared at me. "I never know when you're lying." She started to put on the stocking, stopped. "What's mamma trying to do to you?"

"Nothing. Pump me. She'd like to know what you did and said last night."

"I thought so. What'd you tell her?"

"What could I tell her? You didn't do or say anything."

Didn't Know of Affair

She wrinkled her forehead over that, but when she spoke again it was about something else: "I never knew there was anything between you and mamma. Of course I was only a kid then and wouldn't have known what it was all about even if I'd noticed anything, but I didn't know you called each other by your first names."

Nora turned from the mirror laughing. "Now we're getting somewhere." She waved the comb at Dorothy. "Go on, dear."

Dorothy said earnestly: "Well, I didn't know."

I was taking laundry pins out of a shirt. "What do you know now?" I asked.

"Nothing," she said slowly, and her face began to grow pink, "but I can guess." She bent over her stocking.

"Can and do," I growled. "You're a dope, but don't look so embarrassed. You can't help it if you've got an impure mind."

She raised her head and laughed, but when she asked, "Do you think I take after Mamma much?" she was serious.

"I wouldn't be surprised."

"But do you?"

"You want me to say no. No."

"That's what I have to live with," Nora said cheerfully. "You can't do anything with him."

Sits on His Knee

I finished dressing first and went out to the living-room. Mimi was sitting on Jorgensen's knees. She stood up and asked: "What'd you get for Christmas?"

"Nora gave me a watch." I showed it to her.

She said it was lovely, and it was. "What'd you give her?"

"Necklace."

Jorgensen said, "May I?" and rose to mix himself a drink.

The doorbell rang. I let the Quinns and Margot Innes in, introduced them to the Jorgensens. Presently Nora and Dorothy finished dressing and came out of the bedroom, and Quinn attached himself to Dorothy. Larry Crowley arrived, and a girl named Denis, and a few minutes later the Edges. I won thirty-two dollars—on the cuff—from Margot at back-gammon. The Denis girl had to go into the bedroom and lie down awhile. Alice Quinn, with Margot's help, tore her husband away from Dorothy at a little after six and carried him off to keep a date they had. The Edges left. Mimi put on her coat, got her husband and daughter into their coats.

"It's awful short notice," she said, "but can't you come to dinner tomorrow night?"

Nora said: "Certainly."

We shook hands and made polite speeches all around and they went away.

Nora shut the door after them and leaned her back against it. "Boy, he's a handsome guy," she said.

Gunman Calls

So far I had known just where I stood on the Wolf-Wynant-Jorgensen troubles and what I was doing—the answers were, respectively, nowhere and nothing—but when we stopped at Reuben's for coffee on our way home at 4 the next morning, Nora opened a newspaper and found a line in one of the gossip columns: "Nick Charles, former Trans-American Detective Agency ace, on from coast to sift the Julia Wolf murder mystery," and when I opened my eyes and sat up in bed some six hours later Nora was shaking me and a man with a gun in his hand was standing in the bedroom doorway.

He was a plump dark youngish man of medium height, broad through the jaws, narrow between the eyes. He wore a black derby hat, a black overcoat that fitted him very snugly, a dark suit, and black shoes, all looking as if he had bought them within the past 15 minutes. The gun, a blunt black .38-caliber automatic, lay comfortably in his hand, not pointing at anything.

Nora was saying: "He made me let him in, Nick. He said he had to—"

"I got to talk to you," the man with the gun said. "That's all, but I got to do that." His voice was low, rasping.

Nora Excited

I had blinked myself awake by then. I looked at Nora. She was excited, but apparently not frightened; she might have been watching a horse she had a bet on coming down the stretch with a nose lead.

I said: "All right, talk, but do you mind putting the gun away?"

He smiled with his lower lip. "You don't have to tell me you're tough. I heard about you." He put the pistol in his overcoat pocket. "I'm Shep Morelli."

"I never heard about you," I said.

He took a step into the room and began to shake his head from side to side. "I didn't knock Julia off."

"Maybe you didn't but you're bringing the news to the wrong place. I got nothing to do with it."

"I haven't seen her in three months," he said. "We were washed up."

"Tell the police."

"I wouldn't have any reason to hurt her; she was always on the up and up with me."

"That's all swell," I said, "only you're peddling your fish in the wrong market."

Sent by Burke

"Listen." He took another step toward the bed. "Studsy Burke tells me you used to be O. K. That's why I'm here. Do the—"

"How is Studsy?" I asked. "I haven't seen him since the time he went up the river in '23 or '24."

"He's all right. He'd like to see you. He's got a joint on West Forty-ninth, the Pigiron Club. But listen, what's the law doing to me? Do they think I did it? Or is it just something else to pin on me?"

I shook my head. "I'd tell you if I knew. Don't let newspapers fool you; I'm not in this. Ask the police."

"That'd be very smart." He smiled with his lower lip again. "That'd be the smartest thing I ever did. Me that a police captain's been in a hospital three weeks on account we had an argument. The boys would like me to come in and ask 'em questions. They'd like it right down to the end of their blackjacks." He turned a hand over, palm up. "I come to you on the level. Studsy says you're on the level. Be on the level."

"I'm being on the level," I assured him. "If I knew anything I'd—"

Knuckles drummed on the corridor door, three times, sharply. Morelli's gun was in his hand before the noise stopped. His eyes seemed to move in all directions at once. His voice was a metallic snarl deep in his chest: "Well?"

Points Gun at Nick

"I don't know." I sat up a little higher in bed and nodded at the gun in his hand. "That makes it your party." The gun pointed very accurately at my chest. I could hear the blood in my ears, and my lips felt swollen. I said: "There's no fire-escape." I put my left hand out towards Nora, who was sitting on the far side of the bed.

The knuckles hit the door again, and a deep voice called: "Open up. Police."

Morelli's lower lip crawled up to lap the upper, and the whites of his eyes began to show under the irises. "You cheap squealer," he said slowly, almost as if he were sorry for me. He moved his feet the least bit, flattening them against the floor.

A key touched the outer lock. I hit Nora with my left hand, knocking her down across the room. The pillow I chucked with my right hand at Morelli's gun seemed to have no weight; it drifted slow as a piece of tissue paper. No noise in the world, before or after, was ever as loud as Morelli's gun going off. Something pushed my left side as I sprawled across the floor. I caught one of his ankles and rolled over with it, bringing him down on me, and he clubbed my back with the gun until I got a hand free and began to hit him as low in the body as I could.

TOLD TO WORK FOR SHANNON AND PINCHOT

County Building Boss Puts Janitors on Stump Too

Janitors and scrubwomen employed by the county received ordes today to go out and solicit their neighbors and friends to vote for the Shannon-Pinchot ticket at the election tomorrow.

The orders were given by Gene Crowe, building superintendent. Property and Supplies Director Ray Sprigle was present but he did not make a speech, stating that he believed "Mr. Crowe had covered everything."

Approximately 100 men and women were called to the meeting shortly after 9 o'clock. Crowe said the meeting was for the purpose of stressing the need of safety in the daily work of the county employes.

All employes signed cards, pledging themselves to safety rules.

Mr. Crowe wes very generous, declaring that the county intended to stage a picnic for the county help this summer.

Then Mr. Crowe switched suddenly from safety to politics. Of course, it might have been political safety as far as he was concerned.

The building superintendent declared that while there had not been any direct orders given, he wanted all the employes to get busy and solicit the support of their neighbors and friends for Gov. Gifford Pinchot, candidate for United States Senator; Lieut. Gov. Edward C. Shannon, for Governor, and David E. Kaufman for Lieutenant Governor.

Director Sprigle arrived during the safety talk and heard Mr. Crowe's "voting instructions." Mr. Crowe then asked Sprigle if he cared to comment on the talk and the director said he was satisfied that Mr. Crowe had covered "everything."

Dust Trying to Keep Up With Farm Problem

By ARTHUR (BUGS) BAER

All the top soil in the top soil in the West blew into the East last week.

It was just trying to keep up with the farm problem which moved into Washington some time ago.

That dust storm cost the farmers two million dollars a day. Things are tougher than shark skin.

It's pretty bad in Dakota. But they're still better off than the farmers in Maine. That's the state where the crows develop 16-inch necks trying to pick up a living off the ground.

You might think nature would give the western farmers an even break on the wind. But it doesn't. When it's from the East all it blows back are pie plates elapsed street car transfers, dandruff, box tops, laundry lists and busted paper cups.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

SANTA MONICA, Cal., May 14. Mothers had their day yesterday, but they were back where they belong today. Don't want to spoil 'em, if you brag on 'em too much they will get as swell headed as the father and children.

Will Rogers

Senate passed the bill to regulate Wall street, the government is going to put traffic lights on it. Its always been a hit and run street. The red light tells you, you better stop and wait before buying. The green light tells you that you are sucker anyhow, and you just as well go ahead. The yellow light means, put up no more margins, let 'em sell you out.

CHEATING TOLD BY ELLENBOGEN

Deliberate violation of election laws was charged to the "old gang" today by Congressman Henry Ellenbogen, candidate for re-election.

Ellenbogen said he had evidence that sealed packages of ballots and specimen ballots, delivered to judges of election boards, had been illegally broken open.

Specimen ballots had been illegally marked and illegally distributed to workers for "gang" candidates, he charged.

A city policeman, he said, had incited political workers to steal specimen ballots in one ward.

Warning violators that federal laws apply in this election, Ellenbogen said if necessary he would ask the Department of Justice to send federal agents here on election day.

So Mrs. Pinchot 'Buys' For Policemen's Ball

Wilkinsburg police today are wondering if Mrs. Gifford Pinchot will be among those present at the policeman's ball, to be held in the Penn-Lincoln Hotel, Wilkinsburg, May 25.

While selling tickets to the affair at Penn and Swissvale avenues Friday night, Patrolman Winslow Nichols approached a limousine that had stopped for the traffic light.

Addressing his sales talk to a lady in the back of the car, he was rewarded by her interrupting:

"Sure, I'll take a couple."

It was not until the car started that the policeman recognized his customer as the Governor's wife. He didn't have time to ask her if she would use the tickets.

NEW, OLD 'DEAL' TO CLASH AT PENNA. POLLS

By GEORGE R. HOLMES
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, May 14.—In Pennsylvania tomorrow the "New Deal" clashes with the "Old Deal" in a spectacular primary election which every politician of both parties is watching with intense interest.

It is unusual for a Democratic administration to be more interested in the outcome of a Republican senatorial primary than in the fortunes of its own candidates, yet it is true so far as the Roosevelt administration is concerned.

Chief interest lies in the bitter, no-quarter battle being waged between Senator David A. Reed and Gov. Gifford Pinchot for the Republican senatorial nomination.

REED CONSERVATIVE

Reed is conservative; he has been and continues to be a most consistent and persistent critic of Roosevelt policies as they have been expressed through the "New Deal." Reed is opposed to the NRA, the AAA, and most of the other alphabetical organizations which compose the Roosevelt program.

On the other hand, Pinchot has campaigned virtually on a Roosevelt platform. A Bull Mooser under the first Roosevelt, the lanky Governor has endorsed almost everything that the second Roosevelt has done in his first year in the White House. He has charged Senator Reed with being "an errand boy for the Mellons" and with being the embodiment of the political and economic philosophy that prevailed during Harding, Coolidge and Hoover administrations.

This has been the principal issue between Reed and Pinchot in their knock-down battle for the Republican senatorial nomination—a nomination that used to be the equivalent of election in rock-ribbed Republican Pennsylvania.

It may not be this year, what with the growth of the Democratic party in the Keystone state, and the personal popularity of Mr. Roosevelt. But the heat of the Reed-Pinchot fight and the significance of the issue drawn between them has made the primary more interesting in the politicians' eyes than the actual result in November.

On the Democratic side, the principal contenders for the Senatorial nomination are "Joe" Guffey, National committeeman, and Roland S. Morris, who was Woodrow Wilson's ambassador to Japan. As a FRBC (For Roosevelt Before Chicago) man, Guffey has had the left-handed support of the administration.

WALSH ASSAILS ANTIQUE LAWS

Albert C. Walsh, manager of the King Edward Apartments and candidate for Legislature in the Third District, comprising the Fourth and Fifteenth Wards, proposes a time limit of not longer than 30 years on all laws passed by the 1935 Legislature and each succeeding legislative body.

He also proposes that all acts passed by the 1905 Legislature be brought up for renewal, revision or repeal during 1935 and each successive year follow in sequence for similar action. Acts passed previous to 1905 and still on the statute books should be pro-rated among the next three legislative terms and brought up for disposition.

Here are some of the statutes still standing that should be abolished according to Mr. Walsh:

An Act of 1911 prohibiting the giving of a turkish bath except upon the direction of a physician or other person duly authorized by law to order same; an Act of 1893 requiring the county or city to pay out of the fund raised by taxation on dogs the value of any sheep killed by stray dogs to the owner of said sheep, and the old act recently brought to light in Pittsburgh requiring the County Commissioners to pay to the Mayor of Pittsburgh a magistrate's fee of $1,000 per year.

Students Will Give Dramatic Program

St. John's Episcopal Church School will give a program of music, dramatic sketches and motion pictures in the Church House, Main and Butler streets, at 7:30 p. m. Thursday. A collection will be taken to obtain funds to send representatives to the Erie-Pittsburgh Conference at Kiskiminetas.

WASH OUT 15 MILES OF KIDNEY TUBES

Win Back Pep . . . Vigor . . . Vitality

Medical authorities agree that your kidneys contain 15 MILES of tiny tubes or filters which help to purify the blood and keep you healthy. They should pour out thru the bladder 3 pints of fluid a day which contains 4 pounds of waste matter.

If you have trouble with too frequent bladder passages with scanty amount causing burning and discomfort, the 15 MILES of kidney tubes need washing out. This danger signal may be the beginning of nagging backache, leg pains, loss of pep and vitality, getting up nights, lumbago, swollen feet and ankles, rheumatic pains and dizziness.

If kidneys don't empty 3 pints every day and get rid of 4 pounds of waste matter, your body will take up these poisons causing serious trouble. It may knock you out and lay you up for many months. Don't wait. Ask your druggist for DOAN'S PILLS . . . a doctor's prescription . . . which has been used successfully by millions of kidney sufferers for over 40 years. They give quick relief and will help to wash out the 15 MILES of kidney tubes.

But don't take chances with strong drugs or so-called "kidney cures" that claim to fix you up in 15 minutes. Your common sense will tell you that this is impossible. Treatments of this nature may seriously injure and irritate delicate tissues. Insist on DOAN'S PILLS . . . the old reliable relief that contain no "dope" or habit-forming drugs. Be sure you get DOAN'S PILLS at your druggist. © 1934, Foster-Milburn Co.

GOV. PINCHOT ACCUSES MELLON OF VOTE COERCION

companies to force their employes to vote for Reed, not only in view of such action as you may deem itw ise to take, but also because of resolutions now pending before the Senate of the United States for an investigation of corrupt practices in primary and general elections in this and other states.

Gifford Pinchot."

Nation Eyes Primary Fight Between Reed and Pinchot

By HARRY BERGMAN
International News Service.

PHILADELPHIA, May 14.—Confident predictions of victory intermingled with the usual campaign attacks and counter-offensives today as the zero hour in Pennsylvania's statewide primary elections drew near.

The refrain of all prominent candidates for party nominations was the same:

"We will win tomorrow."

Meantime, the nation watched this commonwealth, for the outcome of tomorrow's balloting will affect not alone the political future of Pennsylvania. The verdict of the millions of voters who will go to the pools will serve as a significant weather-vane, pointing the direction of public sentiment on President Roosevelt's recovery program and other national issues.

EYES ON SENATE RACE

Of particular importance to the country at large will be the Pennsylvania electorate's decision in the battle between United States Senator David A. Reed and Gov. Gifford Pinchott for the Republican senatorial nomination. If, in this outstanding struggle of two political giants, the citizenry awards the laurel to Reed, it will be regarded generally as a severe setback to the Roosevelt policies.

On the other hand, should the verdict be bestowed on Gov. Pinchot, the nation would look upon this development as, in a sense, a rebuke to the state's senior Senator for having consistently stood forth as one of the administration's most consistent and persistent critics.

BATTLES FLARE

Pyrotechnics continued to flare along the political front today, despite the proximity of the hour when polling booths will be opened and despite the circumstance that most leading candidates were back in their respective homes, making ready to receive the election returns.

Lighting up the horizon in vivid fashion was the sensational charge uttered by Lieut. Gov. Edward C. Shannon to the effect that he could have purchased the support of the Philadelphia Republican organization in his drive for the Republican gubernatorial nomination, had he contributed $50,000 to the local campaign.

Shannon is one of the leading adversaries of Attorney General William A. Schnader whose candidacy for the governorship nomination has received the indorsement of the Philadelphia organization, as well as that of the Grundy and Mellon groups.

VARE ASSAILED

In a firey statement Shannon asserted that National Committeeman William S. Vare "offered to throw the solid support of the Philadelphia organization behind my candidacy providing I could raise $50,000 for a local campaign fund."

Stating that he rejected the offer, Shannon continued:

"In my chief opponent for the Republican nomination Vare apparently found a requisite I lacked. At any rate, from his Atlantic City home the so-called Philadelphia political boss indorsed that candidate.

"My principal opponent may not have sought the Vare support. But he has it. And with it he carries the tag of Mellon and the label of Grundy."

Schnader's only reply to this accusation was that he is a candidate of the people, not the bosses. He predicted:

"I shall be nominated by the Republicans of our state because they want a united party."

DEMOCRATS REST

In the Democratic battlefields sharp firing his virtually ceased as the two chief contending factions rested in their trenches, awaiting the voters' judgment.

Here the chief issue to be decided tomorrow is one of control of the state party. As Roosevelt patronage dispenser in Pennsylvania, Joseph F. Guffey, of Pittsburgh, will know tomorrow night whether he is to remain the most powerful personality in the party's ranks or whether the organization's affairs will pass to the supervision of an insurgent group, headed by Roland S. Morris, of Philadelphia.

The Democratic contest for the gubernatorial nomination lies chiefly between George H. Earle, teamed with Guffey, and Judge Charles D. Copeland, running as the insurgent candidate. Before leaving Philadelphia for his home in Greensburg, Copeland asserted:

"Things look promising for my nomination for Governor. We have made important gains during the past few days."

CALLS PINCHOT "NOISY"

Reed will carry his fight for renomination close to the campaigning deadline, completing his pre-election activities with an address before a political rally in Williamsport tonight. Yesterday at Wilkes-Barre the Senator termed Gov. Pinchot's campaign as "noisy and as hollow as a brass drum." Reed predicted he will sweep the primary with a majority of at least 250,000.

Answering the Governor's charge that his campaign expenditures have been illegally excessive, Reed said:

"Our total expenditures in Pennsylvania are less than Mr. Pinchot is spending in the two counties of Luzerne and Allegheny."

State headquarters of the Pinchot campaign here, meanwhile, issued a statement by the Governor wherein he argued that Reed can no longer be of use to Pennsylvania as a Senator.

The statement asserted that Reed's usefulness passed with the election of a Democratic administration whereas the Governor is a friend and advocate of President Roosevelt's recovery ideas and practices.

The battle for the G. O. P. governorship post continued to possess potentialities for surprise. Sentiment in favor of the two "dark horses"—Charles J. Margiotti, Punxsutawney attorney, and former Congressman Thomas W. Phillips, of Butler—has gained notably in the late phases of the campaign. Adherents of both candidates claimed they will win.

ANYTHING CAN HAPPEN

In the race for the Republican nomination for lieutenant governor most political observers were agreed that nearly anything can happen. Senator Harry B. Scott, of Center County, is the favorite among organized groups by virtue of the fact that he shares organization support with Schnader and Reed. However, he has dangerous opposition in the candidacies of Grover C. Talbot, David E. Kaufman and Edwin R. Cox who has cast his lot with Shannon.

NO CRIME, SAYS MAYOR

The Mayor, sitting in the place of Magistrate J. W. McGowan, waved the defendants away without taking their testimony, asserting that they were guilty of no crime other than "competing in Gov. Pinchot's rotten liquor business."

The defendants, one of whom was a woman, were arrested on body warrants from Alderman Ray E. Schneider's office. City police were asked to assist, and the Mayor ruled they shouldn't have been asked to do so. Moreover, he said, a search warrant should have been issued.

The Mayor was equally generous to defendants arraigned on other charges. Several brought into the court for stealing rides on freight trains were discharged. To one of those he gave 50 cents to provide transportation to Butler, where the youth said he could obtain work.

SCOLDS WOMAN

A woman, who appeared against her husband whom she had had arrested for drunkenness, was upbraided by Mayor McNair. The latter told the woman she should not abuse her husband by having him thrown in jail. Moreover, he ordered the clerk to notify the arresting officer to appear at his office today.

To a lineup of drunks in Central Station earlier, the Mayor had said:

"I guess everyone here has a mother."

They all nodded.

And the Mayor:

"I guess you have been at Gov. Pinchot's rotten liquor again."

They all nodded again.

They were discharged with the exception of one man, who the Mayor said was too drunk to go home to his mother. He was ordered detained until later in the afternoon.

EARLY VOTING URGED BY HENRY

Anticipating a record vote in the primaries tomorrow, John M. Henry, director of the County Election Bureau, yesterday urged early voting, particularly by women, to prevent those who have to vote in the evening from being disenfranchised.

Preparations for the balloting caused a last minute rush by candidates to the County Commissioners' office, where a record number of watchers' certificates was issued.

Samuel Du Barry, clerk, declared the issuance of 51,000 watchers' certificates as a record for an even-year primary. He declared that 10,000 more will be issued today.

70,000 WATCHERS

The number issued for last year's election was 70,000. An odd-numbered year, when the registration and voting are generally much higher.

Henry declared:

"The polls will be open between 7 A. M. and 7 P. M., Eastern Standard Time, or an hour later in each instance as computed by Daylight Saving Time. Those employed must generally vote prior to 9 A. M. and between 4 and 7 P. M. and the polls are usually being used to capacity during these hours.

"If married women and others at home will go to the polls during the middle of the day, the benefit to the other voters would be great. No voter should consume more than three minutes in a booth, that maximum time being fixed by law for marking a ballot.

VOTE EARLY

"It is urgent that the people go to their polling place sufficiently before closing time to exercise their franchise. The law fixing the time for closing the polls at 7 o'clock P. M. Eastern Standard Time, election officers are powerless to extend it. When that hour arrives, only those who are in the booths or qualified and within the guard rail may vote. As only four voters in addition to those occupying the booth are permitted within the guard rail at any time, the number permitted to cast their ballots after 7 P. M. is necessarily limited, such as in a district where five booths are used to five occupying the booths and the four previously qualified and aiting to use the booths or a total of nine.

CO-OPERATION PLEDGED

"The Department of Elections, under the County Commissioners, will have all facilities available Tuesday to co-operate in every way with the 945 election boards throughout the county in the legal and effecient performance of their duties.

"County police will be on patrol throughout the day in radio-equipped vehicles for the proper maintenance of the peace at the polls."

A fleet of 38 county trucks succeeded yesterday in delivering to the election officers the bulk of the many tons of official and specimen ballots and supplies for the primary. Aproximately 650,000 official and a fifth as many specimen ballots are to be delivered to the election boards. Printing of them was completed a week ahead of the primary. The specimen figures do not include the tons delivered to the Department of Elections for distribution to the candidates as provided by law.

DELIVERIES MADE

Delivery of the ballot boxes was made to the election officers a week ago. Inclosed in each box this year for the first time is a metal seal, serially numbered, which is to be placed on the box in addition to the lock, before it is taken from the polls at the completion of the primary duties of the boards for delivery to the Department of Elections. Such seals have heretofore been placed on the boxes at the Department of Elections as they were received, but by the new method, Director Henry believes, there will be an aditional safeguard to the box in transit and also enables the officers to make a record of the number of the seal they affix.

McNair's Swell Scheme to Keep Peace at Polls

His Honor the Mayor telephoned John M. Henry, director of the county's Bureau of Elections, an offer to place police within 100 feet of Third Ward polling places tomorrow—this because a delegation had warned the Mayor there'd be trouble.

Then, according to McNair, this dialogue ensued:

Henry:

"Who'll watch the police?"

McNair:

"Well, I'll assign some detectives. There are a lot of them Davie Lawrence has put on the payroll."

Henry (hanging up:

"Who'll watch the detectives?"

Henry said later it was all more or less of a joke.

DAVIS INDORSES MARGIOTTI

Senator James J. Davis has declared for Charles J. Margiotti, candidate for Republican nomination for Governor.

Voicing unqualified indorsement of the candidate, Senator Davis, over KDKA, WCAU, WHP and WLBW, last night said Margiotti represented "all the people and not a favored few."

Davis attacked Margiotti's opponent, William A. Schnader, as giving the people a doctrine of despair.

Davis said that Margiotti's platform contained all the elements he believed essential to the well-being of the people. He praised Margiotti for his ability and sympathy.

Margiotti is scheduled to speak over KDKA and WLBW at 5:15 p. m. today.

HUMES EXTOLS MORRIS

An attempt is being made to deceive the people into belief that President Roosevelt is personally interested in the Guffey-Lawrence slate, according to Maj. E. Lowry Humes. Humes, in contradiction, cited expressions of two secretaries to the President, Louis McHenry Howe and Marvin H. McIntire, that the President was taking no position in any primary contests.

Stating that the real primary issues were ability, training and character, Humes urged the candidacies of Roland S. Morris, for United States Senate; Judge Charles D. Copeland, for Governor; Henry L. Snyder, for lieutenant governor, and Norbert J. Fitzgerald, for secretary of internal affairs.

Urges Constructive Policy in Congress

A constructive Republican policy in Congress is advocated by Charles M. Christler, candidate for Republican nomination for Congress in the Thirty-third District. Christler attacked the Civil Works Administration as a temporary makeshift and the Securities Act as impeding the flow of capital into small industries. He stated he would not heckle the present administration for political reasons and would assist administration policies until clearly inadvisable.

Father Cox Urges Reed Renomination

Father James R. Cox, pastor of Old St. Patrick's Church, today urged the renomination of Senator David A. Reed as against Gov. Pinchot in the primary.

Father Cox said he was supporting Reed because he was "a friend of the soldier." Villification of Reed's soldier record is unfair and the work of a political opportunist, the priest asserted.

EYNON URGES INCOME TAX

The obligation of providing proper educational opportunities has rested too much on the shoulders of local government, according to Benjamin G. Eynon, candidate for Governor.

A major portion of the tax on school is collected from real estate owners, Eynon declared, but the obligation is one resting on all citizens and not particularly on property owners.

Eynon proposed a state income tax to bear the entire cost of education. By elimination of school taxation, he said, the home owner will have his taxation cut in two.

SPANN URGES AID FOR NEEDY

Adequate appropriations for relief is being stressed as of foremost importance by Max J. Spann, candidate for re-election in the Fifth District.

Spann pointed out he had been acting on the legislative committee investigating the administration of the Allegheny County Emergency Relief Board, and that he sponsored the Juvenile Court bill for the county.

He attacked the "great raft" of candidates now in the running as having no idea at all of what was required of the offices they sought.

Pledges Help For 'Small' Business

An effort to stop hampering of the small business man by the National Recovery Administration is pledged by Maj. Ralph W. Gibbs, congressional candidate in the Thirtieth district. Gibbs said the NRA had done much to overcome many paramount evils, but he could not condone its effect on the small business man.

Phillips Closes Campaign Tonight

Every Democratic leader in state is hoping for the defeat of Thomas W. Phillips for Republican nomination for governor, Alexander P. Lindsay has declared.

Lindsay, Phillips county campaign manager, said that if Phillips were not nominated the corrupt machine would control the party and the Democrats would win in November. Phillips will end his campaign tonight with an address at 8 p. m. over WCAE.

TAYLOR INJURED ON VOTE TOUR

KANE, Pa., May 14.—(AP.)—Robert Gray Taylor, candidate for the United States Senate, suffered head injuries in an automobile accident last night, his car bumping into a machine carrying several men who had been campaigning for Charles J. Margiotti, candidate for Governor.

The accident occurred on a hill at Bernville. Taylor was thrown against the windshield, his head going through the glass. He was brought to the King Sanitarium in Kane, where his condition was said to be not serious.

The candidate, a Quaker in Media, Pa., and an outspoken foe of United States Senator David A. Reed and Gov. Pinchot, his rivals for the Republican nomination, said he plans to leave the institution later today and to keep a speaking engagement in Pittsburgh.

Urges State Pay School Maintenance

High taxation is confiscating homes and properties, according to C. C. Hamilton, candidate for Congress in the Thirty-third District. As a remedy, Hamilton suggested the state pay for school maintenance.

13TH WARD AIDS M'NAIR

The Guffey-Earle slate of candidates had been scraped off the window of the Thirteenth Ward Democratic Club today.

The club, following the lead of its sister organization in the Fourteenth Ward, nas indorsed the governorship candidacy of Mayor McNair, according to its solicitor, Charles J. Scheif, candidate for Legislature in the Fifth District.

Harry A. Eigenrauch, Jr., McNair-indorsed candidate for State Senate in the Forty-fourth District and president of the Fourteenth Ward Democratic Club, today announced his further indorsement by Fire Chief John Heinz and Building Inspection Supt. George E. Evans.

Eigenrauch reiterated the club's support of the Mayor, declaring his leadership as Governor would benefit Pittsburgh.

CANDIDATES GET INDORSEMENTS

Johnny Jones, candidate for Legislature in the Sixth District, will be honor guest at a dance in South Side Market House tonight. The affair is sponsored by the South Pittsburgh Political Club.

Leo J. Kaylor, legislative candidate in the Sixth District, has announced his indorsement by Father James R. Cox.

George Tenney, legislative candidate in the Third District, has announced his indorsement by the Electrical Workers Political Association.

A new constitution, consolidation of all governmental units and no school tax on real estate are proposed by William L. Blake, candidate for Legislature in the Seventh District. Blake claims the indorsement of the Twenty-fifth Ward Democratic Roosevelt Club, the League of Social Justice and the approval of the Medical Joint Conference Committee.

SPEAK UP, SISTERS :-: Glances Into the Realms of Domesticity and Romance :-: By MARION BRUNOT

Double Date Loses Beau For Pining Boots

A DOUBLE DATE, and the other girl took her boy-friend.

She planned this TANDEM affair, asking this girl chum to come along and bring her fellow. And then she was DOUBLE-CROSSED . . .

And all the time she keeps on caring for the young man.

Where's her pride, you ask? Maybe behind the door. Hasn't she any grit. Can't she find someone else . . . Plenty of fellows around ready and anxious to take out a pretty girl. But then, sisters, they can be the wrong ones, and try as you may time drags when dancing and prancing with a fellow who means nothing to you. And all the while the right one out with a girl whom you imagined played fair.

Miss Brunot

BETTER TO KNOW NOW

Better to find it out early, than to go on, ever so long and then be left. Better to have both the girl and the man out of your life, Boots. And maybe after all, if you have any spunk, you'd rather this girl would take your man from you when out double-dating, than to have her say later on: "Oh, I could have had him, Boots. But I was too loyal to you."

That's having to eat real humble pie, I say.

Holding on to a man who doesn't want to stay put. Where's the fun in that. It isn't sporting. It isn't comfortable. It isn't anything at all. It is just a downright unpleasantness . . . a misery in the heart.

GET NEW BEAU

So don't try to get him back. Just drift into thinking of other things. You're young. The earth is getting green. The sky is blue, and the air is balmy. It's the season for a new beau. And I'm telling you RIGHT.

Dear Miss Brunot:

Being a constant reader of the Sun-Telegraph, I come to you. Several months ago I met a fellow of 21. I'm 22. And he has taken a great liking to me. In fact he says he loves me. He treats me with great respect.

Miss Brunot, please make up my mind for me, as he gets more serious all the time. He asked me if I cared for him, and I just changed the subject. I can't make myself like him although I've tried awfully hard. He doesn't have what is called a good job and can't dance or swim or play tennis. I think I could learn to like him if he only indulged in such pastimes.

LIKES SPORTS

I love sports, and have a nice position and dress well.

My sister says for me to quit this fellow, and I will get the type I like later on. I wish I would get my opportunity to meet my ideal. I do not want to hurt his feelings, so I am coming to lay my problem before you. MISS PUZZLE.

There are enough young men in this world and right here in Pittsburgh whom you will be able to like without effort. So, Miss Puzzle, why work overstrenuously to make yourself care for a fellow you don't like, and who isn't congenial. You'll have to hurt his feelings sooner or later. Better do it now. Your sister's advice is mine, also. And if she and I are to MAKE UP YOUR MIND FOR YOU . . . WE'VE DONE IT.

Dear Miss Brunot:

I have read only three of your pieces, and love them, and intend reading everything you write from now on. I'll be 21 in June. I am in love with a girl I've always known. She is 20. Her home and my home go smoothly in their friendships. So far I haven't her parents' opinion of our marriage. But I think they will accept me.

SUGGEST THEY WAIT

But my parents, although not objecting, suggest I wait a year, or maybe three. They think we should have something gathered together, like furniture, etc. Do you agree with them?

We do not like the idea. I suppose we are young, but why waste two or three years, even if we are. Life isn't so long after all.

I do not loaf with the fellows, and my girl is everywhere with me. VIN.

If you are really serious, and have a good enough job to keep yourself and a wife, why not try it? Of course, your parents are giving you sage advice. People who have enough laid aside to begin comfortably upon their married life are likely to have life flow on more smoothly.

SEEM TO BE IN LOVE

Yet both you and your girl seem to be truly in love, and you have known each other long enough to understand each one's personality. Also the fact your families have been friends gives you a basis for companionship which often is lacking when young folks are total strangers so far as the past is concerned.

Of course, I would be sane enough, if I were you, not to antagonize your parents, nor your girl's. These older people have lived much longer than you and have gone up against life in a way you never have. Remember to have respect for those things.

I am certainly glad, Vin., to have you added to the readers of my column.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

Fat ladies need not go about with the tops of their feet lifted up in high cushions. Very ugly, that sort of thing. The remedy is easy; a shoe that is slightly longer and wider and which has a lower heel.

A too tight strap will cause tissues to swell. So watch out for that, too. Some day we'll all wear Roman sandals. And feet will be happy.

Self-Denial Should Merit Compensation, Is Fay King's View

By FAY KING

Many an older child has gone to work as soon as possible to help toward the support of the home.

This noble effort often makes it possible for a younger child to enjoy the advantage of a higher education.

When the younger one is graduated it would seem that he would now be willing to help also, but he marries at once, establishing his own home.

The burden continues to rest entirely upon the elder.

Now supposing the parents leave a modest inheritance in life insurance. Is it fair that the younger should expect an equal share in this?

Has he no sense of obligation and appreciation? Does not the elder deserve this small reward in its entirety for the years of unfailing devotion?

APT VARIATIONS ON THE SHIRT THEME

By PRUNELLA WOOD

THE SHIRTWAIST frocks nearly got away from the sportswomen for a while this last winter, but the crisis is past and they are coming out in familiar cotton, linen and wash silk these days, and letting the lame take care of itself elsewhere.

IT'S A WONDER that no one thought before of having a self-material 'kerchief looped around the neck of models, in lieu of a collar. It defeats windburn and looks so much less pretty-pretty than a silk scarf. And there is cheer in the cut of the latest shorts, too; some one remembered in time that even the slimmest woman has hips of sorts.

* * *

THEY HAVE better colors in honest to goodness sport hats than they had yesteryear; before we know it a mixed foursome is going to provide as well-dressed women as men. Oh, to be sure, men have always worn better looking sports clothes than women. But we have adapted their shirts, their shorts, their bathing suits, their hats and even their shoes, all very intelligently, too, and the result is a good deal more heartening than the chiffon veils affected by Diana.

Active sportswomen will appreciate the V yoke shoulder on this washable celanese and silk crepe frock, for it permits plenty of action. There is science in the shady brim of the felt hat, too.

Above, cotton pique in colored stripes, made into a three-piece tennis dress with swell hat to match. The shorts are particularly well cut for the feminine figure, and they have capacious patch pockets besides a swank belt. Buttoned completely, the skirt adds up to a good shirtmaker dress. Left, a synthetic silk shirtwaist frock with a scarf and interesting stripe designs that will not wrinkle no matter how hard pressed.

Household Hints

Grease marks on furniture can be removed by adding a few drops of methylated spirit to the furniture cream.

After oiling a sewing machine sew through a piece of blotting paper. This will prevent any surplus oil from soiling material.

Potato water is excellent for removing tea or coffee stains from linen.

To "sour" milk for cooking purposes, add a teaspoon of vinegar to each cup of milk.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Mumps Can Be Serious Disease

Mumps, or "parotitis," as it is medically known, is a common affliction of little children. As its name implies, it is an inflamation of the parotid gland. As a rule, it is a mild inflamation and soon runs its course. Occasionally, the infection may be quite severe and cause excruciating pain.

Dr. Copeland

The parotid gland is located in the cheek just below the lobe of the ear. This gland is a salivary gland and secretes saliva which aids in the digestion of food. Other salivary glands are located under the lower jawbone and another is found under the tongue. These may become involved, but as a rule, the parotid gland alone is affected.

The exact germ of this strange infection has never been discovered. The disease is highly communicable. By this is meant, it is quickly spread from one child to another. It is probable that the germs responsible for the disease are spread by the discharges sprayed or expelled from the mouth or nose of the victim, in coughing, sneezing, spitting or in talking.

If you have ever seen a victim of the mumps you will agree with me when I say that the sufferer appears extremely ill. The face and neck of the affected side are greatly swollen. Talking, chewing and even swallowing are difficult and painful.

At the height of the infection, the hearing is impaired. This is temporary and disappears as the swelling subsides.

The patient should be kept quiet, preferably in bed and isolated from other children. Keep the mouth clean by the repeated use of mouth washes. The diet should be simple and nutritious. Hygienic measures and careful nursing insure rapid and complete recovery.

As I have said, mumps is a mild disease when it afflicts young children. But when found in adults or in children past adolescence, it is of a more serious nature. I cannot overstate this danger and warn you against neglect of mumps in adults.

In adults, the disease may involve the sex glands and result in sterility. In young girls, the disease sometimes attacks the breasts and leads to serious complications. Kidney disease, nervous coiditions, sterility, impaired hearing and in some cases, severe deafness, can be traced to improper care of mumps.

For these reasons it is always advisable to consider mumps as a serious infection when encountered in adults. Rest in bed is imperative. It is advisable to remain in bed until 48 hours after the swelling has disappeared and no fever is present.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Guest of Honor

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1.—Please tell me how to express my thanks to my host and hostess at a testimonial dinner . . my employer is giving the dinner, and I am an honored guest.

2.—Can you please give me some advice as to proper table manners? I would like to do the proper thing at all times. S.

1.—Say something like this to your hostess and host, "I can't begin to tell you how deeply appreciative I am of your wonderful hospitality, and of the honor that you have given me. It was a superb party, and, as hosts, you were masterpieces. Thank you, with all my heart, for your goodness to me."

2.—What I wish that you would do is to make a list for me of problems that arise for you concerning table manners. Say for the next month, notice every "wondering" that you have about anything that concerns table manners, and then send me this list. I shall be most happy to talk over with you your special problems.

Wearing the Rings

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Will you please tell me the proper way to have a wedding and engagement ring on your finger? Does the wedding ring come first, then the engagement ring, or is it more proper to keep your engagement on and then have your wedding ring put on top of it? Z.

The wedding ring it put on the finger first, and the engagement ring over it. This is the reason why the bride, during the marriage ceremony, usually wears her engagement ring on her right hand.

Given in Marriage :: A Sequel to Heart Of a Wife

By ADELE GARRISON

Hugh's Arrival Brings Interruption

Lillian's eyes arched upward in humorous unspoken comment as we heard my father sternly ask, "What are you doing here, Miss Arlen?" Then she gave her gamin grin.

"I can tell you, Chief, if she won't," she muttered beneath her breath. "She's watching her chance to see Hugh again, and I'll bet she has on a negligee that would make the Queen of Sheba go into a swoon of envy. The Arlen is a reckless dub in some things, and a maddening hornet sting to almost everybody, but she knows her sartorial onions—boiled and fried."

With one ear I had been listening to her, while the other was cocked in the direction of the hall. Avis had given a little apparently frightened squeal of "Oh! Mr. Spencer how you frightened poor little me!" and my father had repeated his demand for the reason of her presence in the hall at this unearthly hour.

"Listen!" I said as Avis began a voluble explanation, and Lillian came close to me and stopped her running monolog. "Why! I haven't been able to get to sleep," Avis said in the saccharine accents which she affects when she wishes to gain some particular purpose, "and I thought I would steal down to the library and read for a while. I wouldn't disturb mother down there. Then, just as I was getting into my robe, I heard a car, and looking out of the window I saw Hugh driving in so furiously that I was afraid something had happened, especially as I had seen Mr. Underwood drive out just as furiously a few minutes ago. I'm so afraid something has happened to Mr. Graham, aren't you?"

QUESTIONS HUGH

"Oh, Hugh!" she said, as a door opened and closed below, "do tell me nothing has happened to Mr. Graham at the hospital! I'm frightened out of my wits."

"And few enough of those there are my lady," Lillian whispered caustically. "Look here!

Before I could prevent her, she had opened the door disclosing an interesting tableau in the upper hall. Coming up the stairs was Hugh Grantland, while leaning over the banister, attired in floating figured chiffon of bright crimson, Avis Arlen held her hands out to him with a beseeching air. At the head of the stairs stood my father, with a coldly stern and disapproving air, to which I knew Avis was absolutely impervious.

"Over the banister leaned a face, tenderly sweet and beguiling." Lillian hummed the old tune under her breath, and despite my terror of the situation engendered by Lee Chow, I felt my lips twitching at her absurdity.

ANSWERS BRIEFLY

But Hugh patently had no time for frivolous distractions. He gave Avis but the briefest of glances, and answered her questions with courteous but unmistakably indifferent brevity.

"Mr. Graham is perfectly all right. Nothing has happened which need frighten you in the least. Will you excuse me, please? How are things now, Chief? Harry gave me only the briefest account. Is—everybody—all right?"

I had a queer, intuitive feeling that my name had been on Hugh's lips, and that he had substituted the innocuous "everybody" because of the presence of Avis.

"Yes, everybody except Lee Chow, who isn't very well."

"Oh, poor Mr. Lee!" Avis said with theatrically clasped hand, thrusting herself into the limelight again. "I am so sorry! Are you sure there is nothing I can do, Hugh?"

Her voice made a caress of his name, and I saw his head turn over so slightly toward her. But there was reluctance, almost distaste, in the gesture, or so I fancied, and my father saved him the trouble of a reply.

"Yes, Miss Arlen, there is something you can do for us immediately. You can return to your room, lock your door and stay there until morning."

Contract Bridge -:- HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

A Successful Psychic

Most Bridge players have, through the school of bitter experience, learned how to identify a psychic bid by their opponents. If the bidding continues for more than a round, the fact that some player is bidding cards which he does not hold generally becomes self-evident. However, there are some occasions when a psychic bid, and more particularly a psychic Overcall, wreaks havoc with a partnership holding perhaps a Slam in their combined hands.

An instance of a successful psychic Overcall, which prevented the making of a Grand Slam and the probable bidding of a Small Slam, occurred recently in a New York club. The players, while not recognized as among the world's experts, were considered fairly good. The hand was:

West, Dealer.

East and West vulnerable.

| | | |
|---|---|---|
| | ♠ A 10 9 7 4 3♡ 7 6◇ Q 2♣ Q 10 3 | |
| ♠ K 8 6♡ A K 4 3◇ A J 6♣ K 6 4 | West / East | ♠ —♡ Q J 2◇ K 8 7 5 4 3♣ A J 5 2 |
| | South♠ Q J 5 2♡ 10 9 8 5◇ 10 9♣ 9 8 7 | |

The bidding:

| West | North | East | South |
|---|---|---|---|
| 1 ♡ (1) | 1 ♠ (2) | 2 ◇ (3) | 2 N T (4) |
| Pass (5) | Pass | Pass (6) | |

1—A strong Opening bid although the distribution is not good.

2—Equally, a sound non-vulnerable Overcall.

3—Inasmuch as East bids freely over an adverse bid, his partner should interpret this as a show of strength.

4—South attempts to conceal the great weakness of his hand by this bid of two notrump. Despite the bad distribution he feels there is a fairly safe refuge in three spades, if doubled.

5—West reasons that the value of his hand has been decreased by North's Overcall of his Opening bid, placing the King of spades apparently in a dangerous position. However, the failure to take some action here is incomprehensible.

6—Equally, East should now do something. Probably three hearts or three diamonds should be bid at this point.

The play was almost as unusual as the bidding. West correctly opened the diamond 6, reasoning that his partner would place him with at least one honor, as it was improbable that he would open a singleton even though his partner had bid the suit. The deuce was played from Dummy, and East, misreading his partner's lead, played the five. South won with the Ten and led the Queen of spades. As the King of spades was favorably situated, South then proceeded to cash six spade tricks and one diamond, going down one trick.

The student will note that East could have made seven diamonds due to a winning finesse in clubs and a diamond break. The Small Slam contact could have been reached by proper bidding, which might have gone as follows:

| West | North | East | South |
|---|---|---|---|
| 1 ♡ | 1 ♠ | 2 ◇ | 2 N T |
| Double | Pass | Pass | 3 ♠ |
| 4 ◇ | Pass | 4 ♠ | Pass |
| 4 N T | Pass | 6 ◇ | Pass |
| Pass | Pass | | |

In this suggested bidding West's Double of the psychic notrump Overcall forces South to rescue himself by the bid of three spades. When West now bids four diamonds, East's hand is strong enough to warrant a bid of four spades, as South by his failure to remain in the contract of two notrump, has disclosed that his bid was purely a fake. After this bid by East, West is strong enough to show two Aces and the King of a bid suit by the conventional four-notrump call. Assured of this East can safely bid six diamonds. Of course, if East and West make their best defense against notrump, all 13 tricks may be taken by the defending side, including three hearts, four clubs, and six diamonds.

Fashion Flashes

By ALICE ALDEN

For cozy dinners at home, wear one of the new chiffon house frocks. One beautiful model is in white chiffon with a square neckline in front and a deep V extending to the waist in back. Wide bands of chiffon bunched together make the shoulders extend to the waist, where they are caught with a jeweled clasp, and then continue down in a panel that forms a train.

Don't resist the urge to buy a print for evening, for prints are smart. A charming ensemble has 14 different colors in a flowered design on a navy ground. The slim skirt with a train has a pleated border at the hemline. The formal decolletage with slim straps, is hidden by a matching cape with a pleated border.

Right in front of the skirt has been picked the place to display fulness in the form of soft pleats. This type of skirt is featured in a new dress of olive green silk crepe with a white scroll printed pattern. White organdie marks the neckline.

Roll up the fastening of a new bag. It is made of light beige tweed and is large. The rolled up top is secured by clasps of gold metal with initials etched in.

Patricia Pitt's Sprightly Comment on Pittsburgh's Society Happenings

Wedding news of interest to Pittsburghers sometimes comes from remote corners of the globe as well as from folks right here at home. A particularly notable marriage of a former Pittsburgher took place in Buenos Aires, Argentina, and has just been made known here.

The bride was Alice St. John Billings, daughter of the Clifford Price Billingses, of New York and Buenos Aires, who at one time made their home here, and she married Henry Tefft Clarke III, of Buenos Aires, son of the junior Henry Tefft Clarkes, of Omaha, Neb. The ceremony took place April 12 in the home of the bride's parents.

To Spend Honeymoon In United States

Alice was graduated from the Winchester School and later from Smith College. Mr. Clarke was graduated in 1930 from Yale.

A reception for the immediate families and friends and a supper for 130 guests followed the ceremony. Eleanor Billings was her sister's maid of honor and Carl Von den Busche was the best man.

The Clarkes will spend a three-months' honeymoon in the United States and after September 3 plan to be at home in Buenos Aires.

Garden Club Arranges Events

By MRS. CHARLES M. BREGG

Year books are starting to "bloom" early this year, the garden clubs in particular getting theirs out of the way before the gardens demand the entire time and attention of the club members. The very first year book of the Neighborhood Garden Club is a neat little volume, holding between its pages promise of much that is interesting for the remainder of 1934. Garden clubs, unlike the cultural, educational and service clubs, which meet only from fall until spring, begin their years with the calendar, and continue their meetings through the summer.

This summer, for instance, the little group comprising the Neighborhood organization, will have an iris day, a flower exhibit, a picnic, and a luncheon, going on into the fall with a luncheon and flower show, and finishing the year with a series of program meetings.

The iris day will be held this month at S. H. Hall's iris garden in Ingomar, with luncheon at the Pines and talks on iris in the afternoon. Mrs. Edward V. Weller will talk on delphinium culture at the flower exhibit, the picnic is to take place in July at North Park, and the summer luncheon at the Shannopin Country Club in August.

Hardy chrysanthemums and shrubs of Pennsylvania are the discussion topics announced for the closing meetings. Mrs. A. C. Gordon is president of the club.

Helen Lauffer To Marry on June 6

At a bridge party Wednesday evening given by Mrs. W. A. Helman in her home in Penglyn, Irwin, Pa., announcement was made of the wedding date of her sister, Miss Helen Lauffer, daughter of Dr. W. M. Lauffer, of North Irwin. Miss Lauffer has chosen June 6 as the date for her marriage to Dr. John B. Hudson, of Swissvale, son of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Hudson, of Irwin.

Both Miss Lauffer and her fiance are graduates of the University of Pittsburgh and she is an instructor at Norwin High School.

Willa Smith Becomes Bride

A very unusual gown chosen by a bride of Saturday evening for her wedding was made of ivory satin on flowing, Empire lines, with flaring cuffs and a yoke of corded satin on silk net, and a long train.

The bride was blonde Willa Smith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry William Smith, of Beverly place, and she married Edward Kennedy Davison, son of Mr. and Mrs. George McConnell Davison, of Pittsburgh. The ceremony took place at 6:30 o'clock Saturday night in the Third Presbyterian Church, with the Rev. Dr. Louis Evans officiating.

The church was decorated with cibotium ferns and hydrangea with a single vase of calla lilies placed in the center of the pulpit before a screen of ferns. The bride's tulle veil arranged in halo fashion was finished with a cap of tulle caught with clusters of orange blossoms, and her bouquet was of small calla lilies and lilies of the valley.

Her sister Miss Eleanor Dorothy Smith, as maid of honor, wore a gown of chiffon in a lovely shade of periwinkle blue having a ruffle of the material extending from the waistline in back down the sides and around the front hemline, and the two bridesmaids, Mrs. George E. Smith and another sister, Miss Elizabeth Gretchen Smith wore similar gowns of daffodil yellow chiffon, and all carried Dresden bouquets to harmonize with their gowns.

The mother of the bride appeared in beige lace with a corsage of orchids.

Serving as best man was Howard P. Dawson and ushers were Richard C. Bachman, M. A. Cancelliere, E. Bruce Hill, Jr., Richard T. Davison, and the bride's three brothers, George E. Smith, John A. Smith and Robert E. Smith.

There was a reception and dinner in the P. A. A. annex with the bride's table decorated with three large bouquets of spring flowers and lighted tapers.

Through the Spyglass Viewing the New

You little shoppers who want to learn the names of the shops whose items are listed in this column day by day . . . call GRANT 6500 . . . and ASK FOR THE SPYGLASS. Or send in a stamped self-addressed envelope for your reply. THE SPYGLASS is always on the alert, peering out new "finds" . . . and you will be answered promptly!

* * *

Then he said "wilt thou?" . . . and she wilted . . . and now they're trying to think up an interesting way to announce the engagement!

Which all brings us right up to the point that we wanted to reach . . . about the grand idea one little shop has, to combine the announcement and favor all at once! They suggest their little glasses of homemade jelly . . . put up in bouquet-like packages, tied with ribbon, with a posy stuck in the top as if it were growing out of this "flower pot" affair! The idea is to tuck a scrap of paper down into the "leaves" on top of the pot, with the names of the engaged couple written on it. This makes an unusually pretty setting for a table . . . and does away with the necessity of real flowers. Priced at 20c the glass of jelly—peach, apple, prune, mint, quince, grape, apricot, pineapple, cherry and orange.

* * *

Hot days being here . . . days of innumerable trips to the family powder jar . . . you'll rejoice in the news about the fine face powder that one well-known company is putting out now at knockout-drag-down prices!

At 44c the box to be exact! The shades include almost every desirable one you'd want! The powder being soft and velvety . . . in "flavors" like bleu de chine, gardenia and jasmin. And the prices being batted down from former tops like $1.50 and $2. A good buy while it lasts! (Note: Bleu de chine comes in rose shade only.)

* * *

And at the same bargain mart is the homely, but homey item like soap flakes! Soap flakes put up in the box belonging to this store, to be sure . . . but the flakes are the "it floats" variety . . . and you know how good they are! During sane and normal times these large boxes sold at 6 for $1 . . . and so the news of their going nowadays at 9 for $1 should waken all your latent housewifely spirit and set you a-washing with gusto! (P. S.—We laid in a supply and expect to keep clean for PART of the Summer, anyway!)

* * *

And their cases . . . ah, oh, um! path! Prince M—one of the heads that wears a crown (and we'll give him another for the marvelous things he creates in toiletries!)—has cast a bombshell into our midst!

Announcing . . . as he did . . . that his super-super-extra lipsticks are going to be sold for $1.00. Lipsticks that match up with your eyes and complexions . . . orange-y ones for orange-y girls . . . pink-y raspberries for pink-y souls . . . and so forth!

And their cases . . . ah, oh, um! . . . their cases! White, blue, red, black, green . . . they come in enamel shafts with squared edges and a little trapdoor effect that lifts up at the top and allows the lipstick to come popping forth! Automatic, of course . . . on SUCH a regal-looking trinket to go lugging 'round.

* * *

With cotton dresses swamping the town! With Summer leering at us 'round the corner! With Dame Fashion announcing . . . nay, demanding . . . that we all be svelte and STILL comfortable (we demand this last too!) . . . it is with heaving sighs of relief that we say we've found THE girdle for warm weather wear!

It's the very one that so many of you came begging for with much wringing of hands. A nice neat trim little business . . . 14 inches long . . . reinforced over your tummy with two little bones . . . two in the back to take care of your little pazazza that can spoil the line of your clinging skirt . . . and a lacy cotton mesh making the rest of the job as cool as the well-known cucumber (if cucumbers ever wore girdles!) $2.50 for all this figger-fixing and comfort. Three cheers for its thinker-upper!

—DOROTHY RANDALL.

GIVE SOME orchids to Turnbull & Co., curb brokers. They won a prize of $3,000 in the Irish Sweepstakes, I hear—and with business being loh-zay—they gave their employes a bonus of a week's pay—sharing their good luck with the staff . . . The Federal Gov't arrested a man named Walter Winchell in Carrollton, Illinois—He had a still to make hooch . . . Nowhere in the story was it noted the hoosier wasn't you . . . Good heavens—Is it possible there are more than one of you?

Dexter Fellows, the ace circus press agent, did a story in which he said that the reporters made him famous—that they made him a myth instead of a man. Very modest guy, Dexter . . . I'd thank Lionel Toll for you—but I can't find his letter and the address . . . Jeff Machamer called. Said he has invented a shirt that can't be lost . . . He says please don't ever mention him unless it's for orchids . . . And he wonders if you are including Insull and Capone among the shut-ins? . . . I think Carole Lombard is sooooh pretty—it's a shame her legs are so thin . . . The West 52nd Street Tony's is now the gayest spot . . . Jimmy Lewis is looking up to Janet McLeod—she's six feet two in her stocking tootsies . . . Where is Mrs. W. living in Los? Got a letter from Ben Frank of the Ambassador there. He feels wretched over the old report that Nora Bayes still is in a vault . . . The legend is that there are no funds to bury her . . . When is that sappy legend going to stop? . . . It costs plenty more to have your loved ones in a vault—it's like a special tomb—above the ground.

Harry Fox is doing an act with Evelyn Brent and very good, too. There's one chap who should be in H'wood . . . Ashton Stevens sent me a gag in case you needed help . . . About Dennis King, the star . . . It seems that George Jean Nathan wrote several swell notices about his talent . . . Ashton asked King if Nathan were a good pal . . . "My only meeting with him," was the reply, "was on a liner . . . I said to him: 'Mr. Nathan, I am lonely—and you look lonely—let's talk.' . . . And as Nathan walked away, he snapped: 'I like being lonely.'"

Carl Erbe says that things are so tough in the night club racket that in one Broadway spot, both landlord and tenant were thrown out together . . . Where can I find Marc Lachman? He's so elusive . . . Tell him I have a honey of a job for him—plenty shekels—for a terrifically important thing coming off in August at the World's Fair—which is international in scope . . . I knew you'd want him to get that one . . . Mrs. William Randolph Hearst invites you to be master of ceremonies of the June Ball at the Waldorf on June 4th . . . It is a benefit for Mrs. F. D. Roosevelt's clubs for unemployed girls, sponsored by Mrs. Vincent Astor and herself and staged by Elsa Maxwell . . . They all will appreciate your mentioning it in the column at once—which is why I include it here . . . I told them if you were in town—you'd enjoy doing it—but that you promised Mrs. Winchell you would join her on the Coast then.

That lumberman running for President in Buffalo with Dr. Wirt was strictly a gag—I explained how one Buffalo man got all excited, etc. . . . And that whenever you mention Buffalo on the air—it's a good free ad—for Buffalo . . . Remember Joe Burke songwriter, comic, etc? He's having it tough, poor guy . . . Tell his friends . . . Marion Eddy is out of the hospital and much better and in no need of help . . . The Palm Springs News sent me a wire for you—that Clara Bow will be a mama in December . . . Clara and Rex Bell are going to Honolulu and return in time for the bee-bee.

That reminds me—Joan Blondell just announced that a baby is coming in several months . . . Wasn't it Miss Blondell who scolded you out loud in the movie mags for saying so? . . . Did you know L. Lyons is now a columnist? . . . Lois Fletcher called. Said she and W. Armitage are getting a divorce . . . Don't know how good this is—but if there is a Margaret Davies at the Casino de Paree—she has been divorced for a year and is marrying a Chicago man . . . Loisa mail for you not to drop the series of what you would do if you were the Roosevelt of this or that . . . Swell verse by Eileen Quinlan came in—am saving it for next time you use poetry. Packs a wallop—about show folk . . . Nothing else exciting. Alvin Hamburg phoned just now, said: Hollywood is a place where a person, who gives a penny for your thoughts, is being swindled . . . Is this right? —Your Girl Friday.

Players and Plays

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

Addressing a luncheon meeting of the Philadelphia Chapter, Motion Picture Research Council, Dr. Bernard Sachs, president of the New York Academy of Medicines and of the First International Neurological Council, declared that "gangster and criminal films are the supporting pillars, if not the foundation, of the modern school of crime." He took issue particularly with Dr. George W. Kirchwey, former dean of Columbia Law School, cited by Dr. Sachs as being "naive enough to say that the motion picture did not influence the development of crime." In final reference to the subject, Dr. Sachs said:

"The worst feature of these modern moving picture dramas is that they reveal in every possible detail, the technique of crime. It is entirely superfluous for any adult even, to become familiar with the technique of crime, and as for teaching a child or a youthful person the technique, we might as well publicly advertise that we are trying to develop criminals. The man who denies this influence is himself densely ignorant of the influences that determine crime."

Nelle Moore Sprowls, manager of the Golden Triangle Players for Children, wants to know if we knew that Carnegie Tech Drama Department is to be well represented in "The Globe Theater of Old England" at the Chicago Fair this summer. Evidently fearing that we answer truthfully and say "no," N. M. S. goes on to state that Thomas Wood Stevens is director; B. Iden Payne, assistant director; Theodore Viehman, festival director, and Jack Woolley and Ruth Aston, Golden Triangle Players, actors. The latter will return in time for the new Golden Triangle season opening in the Twentieth Century Club in October.

World Tour Gives Idea For Film

By JIMMY STARR

HOLLYWOOD, May 14.—Hello! Last January Doris (nee Warner) and Mervin Leroy, bride and bridegroom, boarded a large steamship for a world tour as a honeymoon. In their happiness, they completely forgot Hollywood and the movie business.

They returned to the film village but two weeks ago. And it was then, after the first excitement of viewing their new home in Bel Air, that Mervyn got the grand idea of doing a thrilling and dramatic story of a world tour for the screen. It was while telling friends of the various sights and their adventures, that Mervyn, noting the tremendous interest he was creating in the tales of strange lands, decided to prepare a movie.

Not only will the idea incorporate dramatic and comedy sequences, but it will also include educational scenes, unusual views seldom seen, even in travelogue films. Luckily, Mervy took snapshots—some 3,000 to be exact—of the trip, and these will aid greatly in preparing the script. Undoubtedly, an all-star cast will be featured.

The Strange Breaks of the Movie Game—On the eve of starting his most important directorial chance, George Nichols was stricken with a kidney ailment and will be unable to wield the megaphone on Johnny Barrymore in "A Hat, a Coat and a Glove" for RKO.

Wanderings around Hollywood—The UNFUNNIEST of ALL practical jokers is Don Cook, who hid Hardie Albright's champion wire-haired terrier as a gag. Many Kennel Clubs had gone to the trouble of posting rewards and countless dog-lovers spent much of their valuable time in a needless search. Cute feller, Don . . . Lois January telegrams it to say she just fell in the Columbia River while on her vacation . . . Novelties in the Movie Village news . . . Jacques Duval, the Frenchman, is writing a play of Russia. Lois Wilson, who mothered Helen Parrish and Dick Winslow in "Seed," is repeating her role in "There's Always Tomorrow," also for Universal . . . Jane Wyatt, the New York actress, flew into town for a role in "Fanny" at Universal . . . Osgood Perkins, one of Broadway's better actors, is remaining one picture more . . . He does a French detective in "The Kansas City Princess" for Warners.

Horrors! George Brent has just admitted that he once played the saxophone! . . . Eugene Pallett is back to playing that nit-witted detective in another of the S. S. Van Dine chillers, "The Dragon Murder Case." Lyle Talbot has the romantic lead.

Well, well—stenographers DO make good! For two or three years Sally Sandlin has been pounding typewriters for the various script writers at the Fox studio. No one paid much attention to her. Suddenly one day Sally bounced right out with a couple of ideas. Her reward from producer Sol Wurtzel is the break of doing the scenario for Lilian Harvey's next flicker, "Serenade."

Mirage.

LILY DIDN'T tell anyone about her ambition. She was afraid people would laugh. They might have understood if she wanted to be a movie star, a great actress, even the wife of a rich man, But Lily wanted none of those things. She wanted to be a concert pianist.

As long as she could remember, she had loved to play. There was a tinny piano in her room. Her landlady charged her a dollar extra each week for it. Lily practiced on that. She played at night until her arms and back were weary.

During the day she worked in an office. That was necessary to pay for the room with the tinny piano and her lessons with a second-rate musician. She hated the work. She begrudged every hour that wasn't spent in working toward that one consuming ambition. For that same reason she had few friends and very little recreation.

Occasionally, though, she did go out with Fred. Fred Jones, as ordinary and simple as his name. He worked for the same firm that employed Lily, as a shipping clerk, down in the basement. He worked hard (when the boss was around), hoped for a raise some day and loved Lily. It was a long time before he mustered up courage to tell her.

They were coming home from a free concert that night. Fred made a grab at Lily's hand, squeezed it tight.

"Look," he blurted, "you know I like you, Lily. I was thinking maybe—well, what's wrong with us gettin' married, you and I? I got a little money saved."

The girl appeared a trifle surprised. Then she sighed.

"No, Fred. You're awful sweet, but I don't think I could."

Married? She knew what it would mean. A flat uptown. A couple of kids, maybe. Hard work. Drudgery. Skimping. No time for her music. No money forf her lessons. She tried to explain a little of that to Fred. She told him something of her dreams. About that one beautiful dream of a golden spotlight and an audience hushed with awe while she sat before a piano and played and played and played.

"So you see," she finished, "I just couldn't, Fred."

The boy's shoulders were hunched disconsolately.

"Gee," he murmured, "I didn't know. I guess maybe you're right, Lily."

The girl left him with a lump in her throat. He was such a good kid, and she did like him a lot. She wouldn't see him so much after this. She couldn't afford to fall in love. That wasn't among the things she had planned.

Henry Burns wasn't among those things, either, but Lily didn't like to refuse when he invited her out. There was her job to consider, for Henry was Lily's boss. Then, too, there was no question of finances when there was a concert which she particularly wanted to hear. Concerts that Fred couldn't afford to take her to.

The men were different in other ways, too. Henry had no desire for domestic bliss. He had tried it once, and the result hadn't been exactly happy. He was entirely frank on that score. He made no effort to deceive Lily.

The night that Henry invited her to visit his apartment, Lily went. She knew it wasn't right, but she wasn't in the happiest of moods that night. The fulfillment of her ambitions had never seemed so far away. The tinny old piano had never sounded worse.

She thought, "What does it matter?" . . .

Henry ushered her into a large living room. The place was comfortable and well-furnished, but it was far from a palace. Lily didn't even notice her surroundings that night. In one corner, between two windows, there stood a shiny grand piano. She sighed with joy as she ran her fingers over the keys.

"Listen, honey," Henry was saying, "you're too sweet a girl to be tied to a job all day. Why don't you let me take care of you? I'm no millionaire or anything like that, but we could have a little week-end trip, and then there's this place. Do you think you'd like it here, baby?"

Lily hesitated. She knew she should feel insulted, but she didn't. Of course, it was wrong. And she was half in love with Fred. But she would never get anywhere the way she was going now. All day long she would have nothing to do but practice on this wonderful piano. That was Lily's own private idea of Paradise.

"Yes," she nodded. "I think I would."

Lily didn't tell Fred that she was leaving. It would be easier to send him a note later. After they came back from that week-end trip. She hated that part of it. She wished she could stay right there in the apartment all the time with that beautiful piano. But she couldn't let Henry know that.

She wrote to Fred the day before they came back. It was a short note. After all, there wasnt much to say. He would never understand . . .

She was almost happy the night they returned to the apartment. The place was lovely. She would be contented here. But it was different. Lily grew a little faint as she realized where the difference lay. She stared at the gaping space where the piano had been.

Her voice was unsteady when she asked Henry about it.

"Oh, the piano," he repeated. "Well, like I told you, Lily, I'm not exactly rich. The trip and all cost dough. So, when I got a chance to sell the piano for a couple of hundred bucks, I grabbed it. That was the day before we went away.

"I didn't do so badly." He smiled blandly. "A guy at the shop wanted it. You know that kid, Fred Jones? Well, he bought it to give to some dame he's stuck on. Guess he thought she'd marry him if he came across with a present like that." . . .

Miss West In Danger, Escapes

By HARRISON CARROLL

(Copyright, 1934, King Features Synd., Inc.)

HOLLYWOOD, May 14.—In fear of her life, Mae West has walked between armed bodyguards and has inquired about the purchase of an armored car. But it was not underworld guns but a microphone boom on her own set that gave the blonde star her narrowest escape from death.

The presence of mind and the stalwart backs of the assistant director and the timer for the "It Ain't No Sin" troupe averted a tragedy.

Mae was sitting in a chair between scenes when soundmen started to trundle the 400-pound boom (it was the old-fashioned cast-iron kind) to a new position. In some manner, the counterbalancing lead weights came off.

The boom swung rapidly toward Mae. Many shouted, but James Dugan, assistant director, and Harry Scott, timer, made a dash and huddled over the star. The heavyweight struck their backs knocking them to the floor, but it was deflected from Mae's head. The two rescuers escaped with bruises and stiff backs.

Mae was so unnerved by the incident that she left the set at 9:30 a. m. and did not return until mid-afternoon.

To the amazement of his pals, Gene Fowler blossomed out at Al Levy's tavern with an $800 Panama hat, though it cost him something less.

"Yeah," flipped Harry Brand, "Gene wears $800 hats and $15 suits."

"And no underwear," topped the grinning Fowler.

It's a far cry from King Tut's tomb to a movie star's jewel case, but that course was traversed by an Egyptian scarab now in the possession of Irene Dunne. The star recently received the relic as a gift from an anonymous admirer, who vouched for its history. He wrote that it came to him from an archaeologist, who had taken it from the tomb.

The scarab is seven inches in circumference, green in color and carries an inscription which the donor says has defied translation.

Several local Egyptologists express the belief that the relic is authentic.

As a producer of sensations, the Carmelita Geraghty - Carey Wilson marriage is without parallel in recent Hollywood annals. Jean Harlow confessed her separation from Hal Rosson during the reception, and it was there, too, that John Blondell confidentially told a few friends of her impednding blessed event. In 15 minutes everybody at the reception knew about it.

It's Hollywood's oldest boner, but the fact that O. O. McIntyre pulled it makes it news. On being introduced to Warner Baxter, Odd exclaimed:

"Oh, yes, Mrs. McIntyre and I always enjoy your pictures, Mr. William."

'Thin Man' Has New Players

New faces, believes Director W. S. Van Dyke, are one of the most refreshing things about motion pictures. Because that is his belief Van Dyke has insisted that a host of them should make their debut in the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Cosmopolitan production, "The Thin Man."

"The public is always demanding new faces," said Van Dyke. "They are a tonic to the theater audiences that enjoy following the careers of actors from their beginning.

"In 'The Thin Man,' Producer Hunt Stromberg has supplied me with many—probably more than have been seen recently in any motion picture.

"From the New York stage, Porter Hall was obtained. He was 'discovered,' and, though he is a very successful stage actor, this picture is Hall's initiation as a screen actor. From what I have seen of him so far, he is determined to go a long way as an excellent screen actor.

"Another stage actor comparatively new to the screen is Caesar Romero. He is also from the eastern stage and in the film production of 'The Thin Man' he plays the role of Jorgenson.

"Henry Wadsworth, too, is another recruit from the stage who is a new figure in pictures. He made such a successful showing in his first picture, 'This Side of Heaven,' that Metro - Goldwyn - Mayer signed him to a long-term contract.

"Another new face never seen in an important role in pictures before is young William Henry. William is only 19 years old and he is a graduate of the Metro - Goldwyn - Mayer dramatic school. His diploma was a long-term contract. In this picture Henry was chosen for the neurotic character of the son. In all, I would say that about 10 or 12 new faces appear in lesser roles in the detective mystery."

William Powell and Myrna Loy head the cast, which also includes Maureen O'Sullivan, Minna Gombell and Nat Pendleton.

Kingsley House to Hold May Festival

The annual May festival of Kingsley House, Larimer avenue, will be observed May 21 to 26. A feature of the program will be a musical revue entitled "An American Procession," May 21 and 22. The celebration will close Saturday night, May 26, with a coronation ball in honor of the May queen.

RUSHMORE TEXT RULES SHOULD BE STUDIED

"Read the rules" should be the motto of every participant in the Mount Rushmore National Memorial inscription competition.

Not alone should the rules be read, but they should be studied with care so that texts will be prepared properly. As the closing date of May 30 draws closer and the entries increase each day, many texts are revealed as treating the Mount Rushmore National Memorial in the Black Hills of South Dakota as a monument to the immense figures of Washington, Jefferson, Lincoln and Theodore Roosevelt which are being carved on the mountainside.

It is a NOT a monument to heroes. The memorial plans to carry America's epic to the generations through 1,600,000 years. That epic will be based on nine specific episodes of history, as outlined in the rules. The effect these episodes had on the nation's growth is the message it should tell.

There is no limit to the number of entries any man, woman or youth can submit. The Pittsburgh Memorial Committee, cooperating with the Sun-Telegraph and associated Hearst newspapers in the conduct of this competition, will consider each entry as a separate text.

If you have erred in your version of the epic, there is sufficient time to make a new text. Too, plenty of days remain for every person to still enter the competition, but watch the Sun-Telegraph daily for helpful information.

3 NEAR DEATH IN PARIS RIOTS

International News Service.

PARIS, May 14.—Three persons who engaged in fierce rioting between French Fascists and Communists were near death today and a dozen others were seriously hurt following a day of violence which grew out of peacefully-begun ceremonies honoring Joan of Arc.

The nation-wide Joan of Arc Day rites were seized upon by thousands of Royalists, young Patriots, young Catholics and various Fascist groups, notably the Crois de Feu (Cross of Fire), as an opportunity to stage militaristic processions through the streets of Paris which lasted for several hours.

At the Champs Elysees these Rightist marchers clashed bodily with demonstrating Communists, and bitter fighting with stones and cudgels ensued. Police descended to restore order, arresting seven, but themselves were fiercely attacked by both political groups.

Junior Patrol

It helps to have a good vocabulary, fellows.

By that we mean the list of words you use. Many people go through life and use only a few hundred words for everything they say. They just keep saying the old words over again in the same old way.

What they say often isn't interesting.

There are many thousands of good English words — which means American words, too, of course, and there are many good slang expressions which pep up language.

And yet people often use the old expressions for everything—never try to think of new ways to say things.

The scientists, you know, say that we do our best thinking with words. If we don't know the words with which to think, it is hard for us to think of anything that is complicated or involved.

* * *

Well, it's easy to get a better vocabulary, fellows. Any good dictionary contains almost all the new words you will want to learn. One of the best ways to learn new words is to pick them out when you read. Every time you see a word you don't know look it up in the dictionary. You will find that your new words come in handy right away. Practice using them when you have something to say and, especially when you are writing something. Maybe some of them are hard to spell. Write them several times.

* * *

And find out how to pronounce them. We use words to think, write and speak. You should be able to use all the words in your vocabulary all three ways.

JUNIOR BIRDMEN OF AMERICA

LAWRENCE SHAW, National Director — J. JAMES MOORE, Pittsburgh Wing Commander

By J. JAMES MOORE, Pittsburgh Wing Commander.

Hello, boys and girls. We have big times ahead of us. On Saturday, June 9, we will hold our first Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph wing field day at the City-County airport. Open house will be held at the field on that day for every junior birdman and birdwoman.

Then on Saturday, July 7, we will likely hold our official Junior Birdmen Model Plane Meet at Schenley Oval. The flying events will start in the morning and run into the late afternoon. I will have lots of news on that event a little later.

First, we are going to concentrate on our field day and then later we will zoom right along into our plane meet and various other activities. I'm sure you want to enter the plane contest so don't forget to clip out the lessons which will tell you how to build your own flying model.

Getting back to the field day, here is some great news. Lieut. Corley McDarment, the commandant at Rogers Army Field, told me yesterday that he would have some training and fighting planes at the field for your inspection. Also he may have one of those small and speedy Army pursuit ships.

Besides he will bring along some Army photographs that every one of you will enjoy looking at, an aerial camera and some of those rocket signal pistols that the Army fliers use to signal with. That's only part of the fine show that we are going to have for you members.

Lieut. McDarment is one of the best known writers on aviation subjects in the United States. Not a week goes by that you don't find one of his stories in the better magazines. Perhaps I can get him to make a little speech and tell you something about Army aviation and some of his own flying experiences.

Air Dictionary List Number 10

Before I go any further, I want to give you air dictionary Number 10. After you have read it, "sit tight in the cockpit" and I'll give you some more interesting news.

Many members have written in asking for back copies of the first few dictionary lists which they have missed. Unfortunately it is impossible to secure such back copies. However, at the end of our dictionary, in addition to an addenda, we will reprint the first five air dictionary lists for those members who missed them. There is also a possibility that this dictionary will be put into small leaflet or book form when completed.

Here is our tenth list, giving you interesting definitions of the various type of balloons:

Balance (longitudinal)—Longitudinal balance refers to the front and back, or forward and pitch, equilibrium of the plane, not the side to side balance which is known as dynamic balance.

Ballast—Sand or other heavy material carried in a balloon or airship and intended to be thrown out to reduce the carrying load should it be necessary. It is used to regulate buoyancy.

Ballonet—A small balloon on the inside of an aerostat (balloon, blimp, etc.) used for controlling ascent or descent and for maintaining pressure on the outside of the envelope to prevent deformation.

Ballonet Ceiling—The altitude from which a pressure airship with empty ballonets can return to sea level without loss of operating pressure.

Balloon (general)—An aerostat without a propelling system.

Balloon (barrage)—A small captive balloon used to support wires or nets which are used as a protection against attacks by aircraft.

Balloon (captive)—A balloon kept from free flight through the air by means of a cable attaching it to the earth from whatever altitude it may be.

Balloon (ceiling)—A small free balloon, whose rate of climb is known, which is used to determine the ceiling.

Balloon (free)—A balloon, usually round, whose ascent and descent may be controlled by releasing ballast and whose direction of flight is determined by the wind.

Balloon (kite)—An elongated form of a captive balloon, fitted with lobes to keep it headed into the wind.

In our next list of definitions I will give you the definitions for other types of balloons.

In a few days we are going to start publishing the pictures of Junior Birdmen members that I have already received. Send your picture in if you haven't done so. But make sure that it is a good clear one that will reproduce in the paper and attack or put your name and membership number on the back of it.

I will publish from day to day more news of the field day, your answers and questions and many interesting bits of news that I am waiting a release date on from New York headquarters.

Every application for membership that we received at the Sun-Telegraph headquarters before last Wednesday has been listed and numbered. If you have not received your wings and membership card send a penny postcard and tell me about it.

As I said before this is your organization. My job is merely to keep you informed as to what activities are going on. I want you to send any suggestions that you have to make to the local headquarters, or if you have any complaints to make send them also. I'll do everything I possibly can for you and the club.

Happy landings!

Frank M. Trexler
of ALLENTOWN, LEHIGH COUNTY
Only Candidate with Judicial Experience on the Republican and Democratic Primary Election Ballots

HON. FRANK A. TREXLER
Allentown
President Judge of the Superior Court of Pennsylvania

Judge Trexler, who has been President Judge of the Superior Court since the death of the late President Judge William D. Porter on February 5th, 1930, was born in Allentown, Lehigh County, Pennsylvania. After admission to the Bar he served as City Solicitor for Allentown, and then President Judge of the Courts of Lehigh County for upwards of eleven years. In January 1924, he became a member of the Superior Court, which he has served ever since.

JUDGE TREXLER has served faithfully the People of this Commonwealth for more than twenty years upon the Superior Court.

Many Jurists and Bar associations in the various Judicial Districts of the Commonwealth advise the re-election of Judge Trexler.

In Allegheny County Judge Trexler's name was placed upon the Republican and Democratic Primary Election Ballots through the signatures of Chief Justice Robert S. Frazer and Associate Justice James B. Drew of the Supreme Court, Superior Court Judge Joseph Stadtfeld;

President Judge of the Common Pleas Court Ambrose B. Reid;

President Judge of the Orphans Court Thomas P. Trimble;

President Judge of the County Court Richard A. Kennedy;

Common Pleas Court Judges Harry H. Rowand, George Von B. Moore, James H. Gray, Elder W. Marshall, Frank P. Patterson, Samuel H. Gardner, W. Heber Dithrich, William H. McNaugher, John P. Egan, Thomas M. Marshall, Ralph H. Smith and M. A. Musmanno;

Orphans Court Judges H. Walton Mitchell and Edward C. Dalfiet;

County Court Judges Samuel J. McKim, Sara M. Soffel, Benjamin Lencher, Frank A. Pinkarska and Joseph A. Richardson;

United States District Court for Western Pennsylvania Judges Robert M. Gibson, Frederic P. Schoonmaker and Nelson McVicar.

More than one thousand leaders of the Allegheny County Bar have organized a Voluntary Campaign Committee to present Judge Trexler's name and qualifications to the voters. Leading City and County Officials and hundreds of industrial, business, financial, and civic leaders appreciating the value of the Superior Court to the people of Pennsylvania have endorsed and are actively supporting Judge Trexler.

Pennsylvania cannot afford to lose the services of any jurist who has so ably discharged the functions of the Bench as has Judge Trexler.

Judge Trexler's name is second on the Republican and last on the Democratic Primary Ballot. No straight tickets are voted in Pennsylvania Primaries. The voter must mark a (X) cross opposite the name of each candidate he wishes to vote for and therefore in this Primary to nominate a Judge of the Superior Court.

JAMES J. LONG'S SPORTS COMMENT

Smith Fills Mound Need. Further Props Required. Only Nine Complete Tilts. | Grimes Ahead of Rixey. Football's Dream Game. Fleming Track Surprise.

The most pleasing feature of the Sunday victory that put the Pirates in first place in the National League pennant race was the appearance of another pitcher able to go nine innings and win. Hal Smith appeared to have reached his usual dependable form a couple of weeks ago, but a finger injury kept him from starting a game from April 30 until yesterday, and the evidence that he again is a distance pitcher is encouraging. First place doesn't mean anything at present. It only involves a strain, and puts a club on the spot, and the Bucs in recent years haven't got very favorable results out of leading the league in the early part of the season. But finding another pitcher who can go the route does mean something. There was nothing the home club needed more urgently.

Hal Smith

And the addition of Smith doesn't fill all the wants in that direction. The staff requires further bracing of the same kind. Of the 22 games played by the Rovers up to today there were only nine in which the club got by with one pitcher. French hasn't finished a game in six starts; Meine has lasted only once in four starts, and Smith and Swift each completed only one game in two starts. The only distance men have been Lucas with three complete games in the same number of starts, and Birkofer with three out of five, and in the case of Lucas his own hitting ability is a factor that keeps him in there. True, the Pirates have managed to fight their way to first place in spite of it, but that successful going can't be expected to keep up until the slab corps gets another prop or two of the kind which Smith now appears ready to provide. The hitters can't do it all, and relief pitchers can't work every day and stay good.

GRIMES PASSES RIXEY'S MARK IN WINS

While he has, of course, no chance in his waning career to approach the National League record for victories pitched, which Grover Alexander established at 373, Burleigh Grimes has succeeded at least in passing the highest mound mark set in the Heydler circuit since Alexander flourished. That was 266 victories, piled up by Eppa Rixey. Grimes has run his lifetime National League string to 267, and probably will add several more to it before he retires from the hill. It took Rixey 21 years to reach his mark of 266 wins. Burleigh has passed it in a little more than 18 seasons. Grimes also is well ahead of Urban Faber's total of 252 victories, the highest number won in the American League since Walter Johnson laid away his glove with 416 triumphs to his credit.

In number of clubs edged, Grimes might be said to have equaled the achievement of Guy Bush, the only National League hurler who has scored more victories over every opposing team in the circuit than he has suffered defeats. For though one club, Brooklyn, has a 16-to-13 advantage over Burleigh, the spitballer has pitched against eight teams, whereas Bush has faced only seven.

MAY TRADE EX-BUC FOR TALKING BACK

Though Roy Spencer, former Pirate catcher, escaped suspension after a run-in with Manager Walter Johnson and is back on duty behind the bat for the Indians, American League men will not be surprised if Johnson jumps at the first opportunity to dispose of the receiver in a trade. Spencer will offer no objections. In fact, he requested it, following a rebuke he received from Johnson when the Indians failed to retire a runner who had been trapped between bases.

Roy Spencer

Johnson reprimanded Spencer for standing idly at the plate while the futile rundown was in progress, instead of covering first base. The catcher countered with a demand that he be traded, saying, "You don't like me, and never have liked me." Johnson then ordered Roy to the clubhouse and Glenn Myatt was sent in to catch. Spencer since has been put back in the lineup to replace Frank Pytlak as part of Johnson's effort to find a more effective combination, but it is said the ex-Pirate will not remain long with the Indians if the management can make a trade.

MICHIGAN-TROJAN GAME FOOTBALL'S BEST

Ivy Shiver, outfielder of the Reds, who was a crack end in football in his college days and has been a coach of ends at the University of Georgia since his graduation, thinks the greatest game football could produce would be one between Michigan and Southern California. The styles of the two schools are much alike, he says, and there is no material difference between types of play. The Trojans have added some frills, but those are introduced solely for crowd effect, and the actual play of U. S. C. is a duplicate of Michigan's.

Each school depends mainly on its line, and to beat Southern California, according to Shiver, an opponent must have a better line, or a line that plays better in that particular game. He thinks Michigan would show a better forward wall than Southern California, but is sure it would be a great battle to watch—his idea of football's dream game. Pittsburgh fans have a notion that the one between the Panthers and Trojans here next fall won't be quite the poorest spectacle on record. Dr. Sutherland, as well as Howard Jones and Harry Kipke, has a habit of turning out fair-to-middling lines.

FLEMING CROSSES UP PITT DOPESTERS

One year ago, Pitt track and field dopesters were predicting that the first man developed by Coach Carl Olson to break a Panther record would be Bill Keller, middle distance star, or Emil Bonavita, husky weight man. It was expected that Keller sooner or later would crack the Pitt half-mile record of 1:58 2-5, set by Gerald Allen, while Bonavita, on the form displayed early last year, was considered almost a sure bet to beat Jim MacMurdo's shotput mark of 46 feet 8½ inches.

Bill Keller

However, it remained for little Arvel Fleming, Pitt's great Negro hurdler, to cross up everybody and be the first product of Olson to set a new Panther record, which he did in winning the 220-yard low hurdles against State College recently in 24.6 seconds. The previous mark was 25 flat, established by Edward Knoblock in 1930. Fleming's achievement was all the more remarkable because of the fact that he never had worn a track shoe until he entered Pitt in the fall of 1931. The Rankin lad came out for track as a freshman and did reasonably good work in the sprints, but in his first year of varsity competition he was shifted to the low hurdles by Coach Olson. A junior, he will have an excellent chance to lower his own mark before his days of eligibility are over.

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

Rain and wet grounds today prevented the second battle of the three-game series between the Pittsburgh Pirates and Boston Braves at Forbes Field.

The postponed game will be played off as part of a double-header on Thursday, June 21.

The two clubs wind up their series at Forbes Field tomorrow afternoon. On Wednesday, the Pirates meet the Detroit Tigers in an exhibition game at Forbes Field.

"The Rise of Tommy Padden" sounds a bit like the title of an Alger tale; in this case it is the subject of a tabloid chapter concerning our first-place Pirates. The little yarn, nevertheless, has many of the elements of a best seller of our school days.

A few short weeks back the aggressive lad from the "hills of old New Hampshire" was rated as the fourth-string catcher of the Pirates; today he holds the first-string assignment and his smart performances offer a hint that it may be a bit tough for the hard-hitting Earl Grace to get the regular berth back.

PULLS SQUEEZE PLAY

A throng of 14,000 saw Padden engineer a perfect squeeze play that was a high spot of the Buccos' victory over the Braves in the Sunday clash at the Oakland Orchard. It had been so long since a pair of Buccos flashed the smart offering nobody could recall the previous event.

But it isn't the squeeze play above that has made Tommy a valuable aid to the Pirates. The fans have noted that the spirit of the team is up a few notches when the lively New Englander is under the plate.

It was an open secret among the Buccos that Tom was riled up over his spring training rating. He seemed to be a running fourth in a field showing Grace, Art Veltman and Hal Finney. His spunk finally won him the concession of third-string catcher, and when Veltman failed to hit in his early games at Forbes Field, Tom was ushered into the regular role. Grace, meantime, was out with sickness. A few days ago Earl suffered a "busted" finger on his throwing hand and Padden had to hold the fort.

Tommy's hitting has been pleasing, his receiving is fine and his throwing and blocking of runners have been exceptional.

Grace's bat is so valuable it is likely to get in more than half of the games, but it is a consolation to be able to call on a fellow who can do the catching trick after the fashion of Padden.

The Buccos thumped Southpaw Eddie Brandt for a dozen hits in six frames to achieve a 9-to-2 triumph over the Tribe yesterday. Five of the Pittsburgh wallops were good for extra bases which accounts for the disparity in the scoring. Suhr and Lavagetto blasted triples, Vaughan added two doubles to his classy string and Lindstrom connected for a two-sacker in the first round that started the home team on its victory march.

Hal Smith worked the entire game for the Bucs.

Negotiations are under way to have the McKeesport Club, of the Pennsylvania State League, represent the Pittsburgh Pirates as a farm.

CHILLYSAUCE

A Pullman jump was not necessary to transport Big Jim Elliott from the Phillies to the Braves. Jim walked from Webster Hall to the Schenley Hotel to swear allegiance to Bill McKechnie.

When Big Jim walked onto the field with Francis Hogan, the Pirate bench cheered. The Buccos were giving an ovation to the biggest battery in baseball.

This is Marty McManus' fifteenth year in the majors, but Marty had his first glimpse of Forbes Field yesterday. He says the Pirate home is wonderful.

Little Jimmy McKechnie has a great time as his dad brought his club to Pittsburgh. Jimmy was dolled up with a Boston uniform. The youngster was 10 Saturday and his mother staged a surprise party in his honor. Jimmy was out playing a game of ball and was astonished when his entire club showed up for his birthday party.

Bill Urbanski is playing great ball for Clan McKechnie. The clever shortstop's hitting is a feature of the Boston battles.

The Cubs must have felt strange to drop into second place while winning on the same two days that brought Pirate victories. The fact that the Pirates have one less defeat than the Bruins is the answer.

Joe Cambria, president of the Albany club of the International League, is in Pittsburgh conferring with George Gibson and Bill McKechnie relative to acquiring players for his team. Joe recently secured Hal Finney, Cy Blanton and Bill Brubaker on option from the Buccos. He may do some business with Skipper Bill today.

Jewel Ens is in fine fettle. The former Pirate pilot and present assistant to Bill McKechnie was kept busy shaking hands with his friends in the Sunday throng.

EXPLANATION OF RIPLEY'S CARTOON OF LAST SATURDAY: CANDLES OF THE SUN—Camille Flammarion, the French astronomer, has calculated that the value of the sun's light when it is at zenith equals 70,000 candles located at one meter's distance from the eyes. As the intensity of light is proportionate to the square of the distance of its source, this luminosity equals 6,500 candles placed one foot away from the eyes. On this basis Flammarion has calculated that the intensity of the sun's light at a distance of one foot from its source is equal to the tremendous total of 1,576,281 sextillion candles (1,576,281 followed by 21 ciphers).

JAMISON ONE STROKE BACK WITH 76

By TOM BIRKS

Emil Loeffler, of Oakmont; Rader Jewett, of Cedar Rocks, Wheeling, W. Va., and Ted Luther, of Valley Heights, each scored a 75 to lead the early finishers at the end of the first 18 holes of the 36-hole medal play qualifying round for the National Open tournament at the Fox Chapel Golf Club today. The seven low scorers will earn the right to compete in the National Open tournament at the Merion Cricket Club on June 7, 8 and 9. The scores of the leaders were three over par figures for the Fox Chapel caurse.

The amateur contingent was led by Tom Jamison, Jr., of the Greensburg Country Club, who scored a 76.

Sam Parks, Jr., pro at the South Hills Country Club, was one stroke behind the leaders at the end of the first round. He turned in a 76. He went out in 35, but faltered on his homeward jaunt. Par for the course and the cards of the leaders.

STOGIES TIE FOR SECOND

While the league leading Huntington Boosters were being held idle by rain at Dayton, the Wheeling Stogies clambered into a tie for second place in the Mid-Atlantic League by crushing the Beckley Black Knights, 15 to 4, at Beckley. The Stogies are tied with their victims with three wins and one loss.

Wheeling piled up 21 safe hits in recording the triumph. Six runs were tallied in the final inning.

At Charleston, the Senators came from behind to defeat Johnstown, 7 to 4, scoring four runs in the eighth inning. Zanesville walloped Springfield, 9 to 4, at Springfield.

Because he cannot get across the Canadian border, Beckley is being deprived of the services of Earle Cooke, outfielder obtained on option from Toronto, of the International League.

CASCARELLA PROVES WORTH AS STARTING HURLER FOR A'S

ROOKIE WINS FOURTH FRAY FOR MACK

Assodated Press.

When Connie Mack said early this spring that he thought his club might go somewhere in the American League this season if only a few of his young pitchers came through in good form, few if any of the Athletics' fans thought of Joe Cascarella as one of those who might help out.

As things have turned out, Joe, a former Philadelphia sandlotter who spent several seasons in the International League earning a reputation as a good seven-inning pitcher, seems to have become one of the A's sound mainstays. After beating the Yankees twice in relief roles, he was promoted to a post as starting pitcher and has won two more contests without a loss.

STANGE HOOKED

He took the play from another Philadelphia sandlot graduate yesterday when the fans celebrated Alan Strange day at Shibe Park and Casarella made it the occasion for a 9-to-3 Philadelphia victory over St. Louis.

The triumph gave the A's third place in the tight race as Washington bumped Detroit out of a higher berth by shelling Tommy Bridges from the hill when he became wild in the seventh and scoring six runs to win, 7 to 4. Philadelphia's position also was improved when the Yankees slammed the second-place Cleveland club into submission, 8 to 0, as Lefty Gomez allowed only four hits for his fifth straight victory. Lou Gehrig hit his eighth homer with the bases filled.

The brilliant pitching of Gomez enabled the Yankees to tie a major league fielding record. With the southpaw forcing the Indians to hit fly ball, the Yanks made only one assist, on a grounder handled by Crosetti. This tied a record held jointly by Buck Weaver in 197, Howard Ehmke in 1924 and Mark Koenig in 1932.

The Red Sox slaughtered Chicago, 14 to 2. Bucky Walters' two homers, one with the bases full, and one by Eddie Morgan, also with the corners crammed, produced the bulk of the runs.

ODD SITUATDN

The National League standing produced an odd situation when the Pittsburg Pirates, a half game behind Chicago according to one method of reckoning, took the lead by two percentage points. Each won yesterday. The Pirates assaulted Ed Brandt and the Boston Braves for a 9-to-2 decision, while the Cubs defeated the Giants, 7 to 3on a four-run rally started by Buck Klein's ninth circuit blow of the year. Pittsburgh, however, has played only 22 games to Chicago's 25, to gain the higher pecentage.

The St. Lois Cardinals blasted out a 12-to-7victory over Brooklyn. The seenth-place Phillies had to go 10 innings to defeat the eighth-place Reds, 5 to 4, after Ethan Allen'siomer tied the score in the ninth.

Way for Hockey's Return Is Cleared

Attorney Jaies F. Callahan today said thatthe way had been cleared for the return of National League hocke to Pittsburgh.

Callahan, legal adviser to the holder of the ocal franchise, said that the Melin interests, owner of Motor Squae Garden, would let the contract for the construction of a new aren on the site of the old Garden within a few days, that the consuction work would be concluded by fall, and that the National Leage's board of governors had sactioned the return of major leagu hockey here while in session at Chicago Saturday.

NETMEN WORK ON CARD

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN

Final ratification of the Pittsburgh Tennis Association Inter-Club League playing bill looms today as the executive committee of the P. T. A. convenes in a special session at the Harvard-Yale-Princeton Club. Chairman Howard Burgwin's sanction and schedule group met during lull in activity at the one-day tournament affair at the Pittsburgh Golf Club on Saturday and evolved a card that will be submitted for approval at the impending confab.

It is certain that the tri-divisional circuit campaign, now that it has been definitely determined that all three sections of the loop will be comprised of six teams, will get under way on either May 26 or June 2. The schedule committee, recognizing the fact that tourney competition hereabouts is heading for a new high mark this summer, is said to favor an early start for the league in order that as many July and August week-ends as possible may be cleared for new events.

Local College Net Duels Called Off

The intercollegiate tennis matches scheduled here today between West Virginia and Pitt at Pitt and Carnegie Tech and Duquesne at Duquesne were called off this afternoon because of wet courts.

The matches will be played later in the season. No new dates have been selected.

CUE STAR HERE

Charles Seabeck, billiard player and teacher, will appear in three exhibitions here this week. He plays at the Duquesne Club tomorrow and at the Grand and William Penn parlors on Wednesday.

LOOP TEAMS IN TOURNEY

Local teams will have to get a hustle on if they wish to keep pace with the out-of-town entries in the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph's amateur softball tournament, which gets under way during the week of June 10.

Harry Ackerman of Beaver Falls, has organized a number of leagues and will enter the teams in the tournament this week, he said today. In addition, two leagues are flourishing in Butler, and their entries will be made, while many other surrounding towns already have entered the lists or have expressed their intention of doing so.

Many of the local teams, which have been organized for mushball, will play as softball units in the tournament.

An entire team may be entered in the softball tournament at an outside cost of $2.50. This includes the Amateur Association's $1 team sanction entry fee, plus 10-cent individual entry fees for the players, who are limited to 15 in number, or to 16 if the manager is a player. In return for this player fee each entrant will receive an identification badge.

Entries close June 1, but applications should be sent in now to permit of time to fill out the necessary forms. Clip your entry blank and mail it in today. Do not send any money until you receive the additional forms.

Among the latest teams to enter is the East Liberty Drugs outfit of which Morris Middleman is manager.

Kingfish Missing With Battle Near

LOS ANGELES, May 14.—(AP.)—King Levinsky still was among the missing today as the time for his scheduled bout with Art Lasky, sensational Minneapolis heavyweight, drew near.

Tomorrow night the Chicago fish peddler is due to step into the ring for a bout many believed would prove whether Lasky is another heavyweight title contender or just another big man.

The reasons advanced for the sudden departure of Levinsky and manager-sister, Lena, from a Hollywood residence the latter part of the past week were numerous, but neither the fighter nor his sister could be found to give the real one.

Among them was a rumor of dissension between Miss Levinsky and Pete Reilly, co-manager, over the King's condition program.

Leonard to Aid Ross in Training

FERNDALE, N. Y., May 14.—(INS.)—Benny Leonard, former lightweight champion, was to arrive at Barney Ross' camp here today to help the present 135-pound titleholder prepare for his bout with Jimmy McLarnin. In a fast four-round workout yesterday, Ross severely pummeled two sparring partners, Phil Rafferty and Al Casmanin.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., May 14.—(INS.)—Jimmy McLarnin, welterweight champion, today had his famous knockout punch primed for Barney Ross. In a brisk workout yesterday, McLarnin felled Frankie Cinque, a sparring partner, with an overhand right to the jaw. He also worked three rounds against Carmen Knapp, New Haven welterweight.

COCHET VICTOR

HARTFORD, Conn., May 14.—(AP.)—Henri Cochet, famous French tennis ace, defeated Vincent Richards, American topnotcher, 6-4, 2-6, 6-0, in a professional exhibition match at the Hartford Golf Club here yesterday.

LEIBER RELEASED

CHICAGO, May 14.—(AP.)—The New York Giants have announced the release of Hank Leiber, recruit outfielder, to Nashville, of the Southern Association. Leiber was turned out on option.

BOOKS BATTLE PARMELEE IN CITY LOOP

With only one defeat in four starts chalked up against them, the Books, defending champions of the City League, meet another strong contender for the title this evening as Dinty Moore brings his Parmelee nine to Olympia Park.

Parmelee lost its first start of the season at Homewood, but it must be admitted that the pitching of Ernie Vavra, former New York University star, deserved a better fate. Vavra developed a wild streak, and this, coupled with two errors, paved the way for a Homewood victory. It is likely that Manager Moore will try his luck with Harry Powley, fast-ball pitcher from Verona, or Regis Leheny, with his lefthand slants, this evening.

Mt. Oliver also was scheduled to play at home, but the grounds on the hill are far from being ready and the game with Beltzhoover has been canceled. The Mt. Oliver aggregation is planning a big time when the opener is staged. A parade, with all the trimmings, will precede the game. Manager Ray Miller and a committee are working hard perfecting arrangements.

In yesterday's engagements, the Pittsburgh Crawfords split a dual bill in Chicago, beating the Windy City tossers, 7 to 0, in the first game and then dropping the second, 9 to 2. The Homestead Grays blanked Charleroi, 3 to 0, Brown hurling a three-hit game.

In the Independent League, Whitaker nosed out the McKeesporters, 11 to 10. Forest Hills walloped Millvale A. A., 22 to 10; the Cochrans downed Bellevue, 10 to 7; Reiters won over Mt. Lebanon, 5 to 4, in 10 innings; Resurrection topped Tarentum, 9 to 7, in 15; Greensburg knocked off Jeannette, 9 to 6; Morgans won over the Duffys, 3 to 2, and Immaculate Heart pounded Jeannette, 14 to 12, in non-league and exhibition tilts.

N. S. PIGEON WINS RACE

Dr. Mortimer's All Mine, a North Side Combine entry, topped the field in the 130-mile race from Newark, O., in the Pittsburgh Racing Pigeon Concourse yesterday, averaging 1376.22 miles per hour.

A bird to the Herbert Holmes lofts, of the Liberty Homing Club, was second, with a mark of 1370.84. A Holmes bird won last week's race from Coshocton.

COMMERCE AND INDUSTRY OF GREATER PITTSBURGH

Enthusiasm Dampened By Congress

By B. C. FORBES

THE UNCERTAINTY which, as this column revealed, set in at the top weeks ago, is manifesting itself in various directions.

Mr. Forbes

Nor is relief looked for until Congress adjourns. Whether relief will then be felt, will depend upon how the Congress acts meanwhile. Hopes do not run high in influential circles.

THE SECURITIES MARKETS suffered rather severe declines. At times the liquidation was heavy and urgent. Net stock losses for the week averaged five points. Bonds, with the notable exception of governments, also sagged.

The down trend in wheat was sharply arrested by serious drought news. Cotton declined materially. So did rubber, notwithstanding the agreement among principal foreign growers to restrict shipments.

RAILWAY FREIGHT VOLUME reflected slight easing in activity. Electric power consumption revealed less favorable comparisons, but inauguration of daylight saving was cited as responsible. Bank clearings were off modestly. Some motor manufacturers are slowing down production.

SENTIMENT was not helped by the Senate's attitude toward the acutely feared bill to subject stock exchanges and the country's principal corporations to very rigid bureaucratic regulation. New York Stock Exchange seats tumbled to $100,000.

Renewed automotive strikes, as well as a strike among Remington Rand workers, added to the spreading uneasiness. Much unexpressed apprehension prevails in employing circles over the apparent lack of a definite labor policy at Washington.

ON THE OTHER HAND, warm weather infused fresh life into retail buying. General Motors reported its April sales as the best in three years, while Chrysler and other aggressive companies record similar satisfactory April results. Oil companies advanced prices. Steel prices were encouraging.

Copper leaders express optimism over prospects under the new copper code authority. There is talk of the possibility of 10-cent copper before long. Tire manufacturers announced higher prices, and now look forward to better conditions.

President Walter S. Gifford, of the American Telephone Company, testified that new phone connections are running at the rate of half a million a year. A few better dividends were declared but not so many as in the recent past.

SILVER NEWS from Washington blew hot one day, cold the next, leaving everyone guessing as to how far Washington will go in making silver a basis, along with gold, for our currency. That something concrete will be done in this direction seems probable. What effect this "inflationary" step if taken, will have upon the American price level, is wholly problematic.

MANY GOVERNIENT OBLIGATIONS soared to new heights. This was popularly hailed as cheering. The fact is, however, that the inordinate demand for government securities is due to the acute uncertainty as to how the securities of railway, utility, industrial and other corporations may fare.

The Treasury would be well advised to seize the current opportunity to transfer a large part of its three billions of short term indebtedness into long term obligations. A grand total exceeding six billions will have to be refinanced within the next six months.

This six billions incidentally, just equals the government's deficit to date for the fiscal year. In view of Washington's gigantic prospective expenditure, it will be the part of wisdom to raise the money while the raising is easy.

WHEREAS business leaders had become hopeful that President Roosevelt had concluded that the time had come to cooperate more cordially with industry and business, his attitude on vital legislation now before Congress has proved dampening.

This may prove "NRA Week." The stinging Darrow report is scheduled for publication. President Roosevelt is reported as entirely cold to Gen. Johnson's eagerness to generate Blue Eagle whoopee.

Many minor codes appear likely to be dropped.

BEFORE the half year ends, America promises to be moving decisively in one direction or the other.

Telephone Dividend Meeting Wednesday

NEW YORK, May 14.—Among important dividend meetings scheduled for this week, Wall street's interest is focused on the American Telephone and Telegraph directors' session Wednesday. Other sessions include Chesapeake and Ohio Railway, Chesapeake Corporation and Public Service of New Jersey Corporation tomorrow, American Sugar Refining Company Wednesday and International Harvester Company Thursday.

EMOTIONALISM REFLECTED BY TICKER

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER

NEW YORK, May 14.—The stock market, perhaps overemphasizing the problems special to Wall street, in connection with the new legislation, focussed attention on prospective seasonal business recession, on the disposition of the White House and the Treasury to put a damper on inflation hopes, and on the impending passage of the Fletcher-Rayburn bill. Despite six months of uninterrupted rise in business activity, stock prices have slumped to the levels of last fall.

Mr. Rukeyser

The ticker has been disposed to reflect emotionalism, rather than cool analysis. Stocks, it would appear, are now selling ex-bull manipulation, and the task of the analyst should now center around the probable earning power of corporations. This question, of course, raises the broader issue of the economic success of the "New Deal."

Despite the growing doubts and bewilderment, it would be gross astigmatism to overlook the rise in the gross volume of business and employment which has taken place during the last year. The chief lifting power resulted from raising farm prices somewhat nearer parity, on the one hand, and from government spending, on the other. The recent tapering off in certain lines has reflected the curtailment of the CWA maneuver.

PRICES FAVORABLE

Of course, it is the law of speculative markets to vacillate between over-optimism and over-pessimism. At the earier bull peaks, stock prices discounted inflation, which has not materialized, and doubtless a good deal more recovery than has been attained.

Prospects doubtless were never as favorable to prices as the enthusiasts thought at the top but the practical issue arises whether they are now as bad as the fearful contemplate.

What are the knowables in the situation?

PWA spending will not attain its employment peak until October, and in the interim will tend to support the economic structure at its weakest point—the construction industry.

Secondly, as long as farm prices are kept somewhere near the present ratio, general business can proceed at approximately the going level, after allowance is made for the tapering off of public spending when, as and if. If the goal is to attain the pre-depression level of prosperity, farm prices must be raised substantially above the current half way level. The approach to pre-depression wage levels in the cities would require $1.75 a bushel for wheat, $1 a bushel for corn and 18 cents a pound for cotton, if genuine parity and economic balance were to be re-established.

DROUGHT WARNING

Parenthetically, an act of providence in the form of the drought in the Middle West seems to react more directly on cereal prices than the inventions of politicians. Incidentally, the drought is a warning against political progress making for artificial scarcity. The alternative price-raising policy would be a controlled domestic price, with the understanding that the surplus be dumped overseas.

The hope for success in the "managed recovery" lies in greater boldness in achieving parity between farm and industrial prices.

The weakness of the spring recovery centers around the fact that it depended so largely on the automobile industry and on government spending. Private construction continues to lag. Nevertheless, the recent trend in residential construction has been upward.

Steel activity has improved, with the mills operating at 54 per cent of capacity last month. Coal output, too, has been active.

In the matter of silver monetization, the President, it is understood, is agreeable to the acceptance of discretionary authority, but is still opposed to mandatory legislation on the subject.

With the adjournment of Congress now only a matter of weeks, business will soon have the period of rest and consolidation which it craves.

Money Circulation Declines in April

WASHINGTON, May 14.—Money in circulation outside of the Treasury declined to $5,370,815,034 as of April 30, from $5,393,689,530 on March 31, the Treasury Department reports.

Per capita circulation on April 30 was $42.48, against $42.69 at the end of March and $47.82 on April 30, 1933.

April Automobile Registration Expands

DETROIT, May 14.—Complete registrations of new passenger cars in 17 states, representing 17.97 per cent of the United States, showed 40,666 autos registered for April this year, an increase of 88.57 per cent over sales in the same states in April last year, according to R. L. Polk & Co.

Truck registrations in 17 states during April showed a total of 8,526 units, an increase of 21.57 per cent over last April.

Banks Start to Leave Security Business

By GEORGE H. SNYDER
Business Editor

RADICAL CHANGES in the organizations which will conduct a large share of the nation's investment banking in the future will take place as a result of the provision in the banking act which will force member banks of the Federal Reserve system to discontinue their activities in the sale of securities after June 16.

Several of the larger banks in New York and other cities have arranged for segregation of securities affiliates. While there is some chance that Congress may extend the time limit on this provision of the act, most banking organizations are going ahead with plans to get out of the securities business.

For one thing, the recent volume of new stock and bond issues has been so small that there has been little temptation for banks to remain in the business. In many cases the discontinuance of such departments will permit an actual saving.

* * *

New Firms May Be Organized

COMPLIANCE WITH THE law will be likely to result in the organization of many new investment banking firms in all parts of the country. These will have no connection with banks, but they will be headed and staffed by individuals who have been employed in the bond departments of banks or by securities affiliates.

This will have a tendency to increase the number of small investment dealers and will have a widespread effect on the relations of investment bankers to companies requiring financing in the future. The commercial banker from now on will be strictly what his name implies. He no longer will be the purveyor of long-term as well as short-term credit.

* * *

Power of Investment Banker to Increase

IN PAST YEARS many of the large banks which played an important part in securities underwriting were aided in securing commercial accounts by the assistance which they could give from time to time when long-term financing might be needed. Large corporations frequently placed their accounts with banks which would be important when the time might come for the sale of bonds or stocks. This tie-up is being brought to an end by the banking act.

The natural result of this will be to increase the power and the influence of the investment banker when conditions permit the underwriting and sale of securities in a normal manner.

SEEK TO SAVE WHEAT MEET

LONDON, May 14.—(AP.)—Secretary Wallace's threat that the United States would dump wheat on the world market unless exporting nations got together on an agreement to limit sales wes interpreted today by members of the world wheat commission in session here as aimed squarely at Argentina.

The American threat was regarded as endangering all exporting nations, and the commission will make another attempt this week to prevent Argentine breaking the export quota pact.

The United States, Canada and Australia are expected to offer her part of their quota rights of export on the condition that the South American nation will curb her shipments abroad.

Representatives of the United States, Canada, Australia, England, France and Germany met today in an attempt to salvage something of the wreckage of the wheat conference, which blew up Friday when the minimum price scheme was defeated.

It is unlikely that a new minimum price scheme will be sought at this week's session.

Atchison Loadings Up, C. & O.'s Lower

CHICAGO, May 14.—During the week ended May 12 the system handled 22,801 carloads, which compares with 22,550 handled in the week preceding and 21,677 in the similar 1933 period.

NEW YORK, May 14.—Revenue freight car loadings on the Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad for the week ended May 12 totaled 29,309, compared with 29,741 in the previous week and 25,004 in the same week a year ago.

Raise Southwest Vegetable Rates

WASHINGTON, May 14.—(AP.)—Increases in freight rates on vegetables from the southwest were authorized today by the Interstate Commerce Commission, which at the same time canceled even higher rates proposed by the railroads.

The increases in some instances amount to as much as 15 per cent.

The commission also placed some rates from the southwest on the same basis as tohse from southern territory, excluding Florida.

Ford and Chevrolet Sales Far Over '33

DETROIT, May 14.—(AP.)—The two leading producers of motor cars in the low-priced field sold 559,566 passenger cars, trucks and commercial cars during the first four months of 1934.

Figures announced by the Chevrolet Motor Company show sales of 281,033, compared with 184,138 in the 1933 comparable period. The Ford Motor Company reported world sales of 278,533 units, compared with 107,699.

STOCK MARKET DECLINE ENDED

By LEWIS HANEY
Professor of Economics, New York University

NEW YORK, May 14.—Stock market averages declined three to six points last week, and bonds moved sharply lower. There were waves of liquidation on Monday, Thursday and Saturday.

The composite average made new lows for the year.

The low level of December last is being tested, as I suggested. Averages of 50 and 90 stocks have broken that level, but these contain many rails, utilities and relatively high-priced "leaders." Broader averages are just at the December level, and one based on 687 stocks is actually 10 per cent (two points) above it still.

As to the "October bottom," which some observers think will be reached, it remains about 10 per cent below Saturday's close. That is, most stocks would have to fall four points to 10 points (depending on the height of the present price) to go that low.

I continue to doubt such a further decline. One of my reasons is that there is a plainly marked general level of values established during the past 12 months, and the averages are getting down close to that. This level was the lower resistance on the declines last June, July, August, September and November. It is the level from which the second uprush started last May, and to which the averages rallied last October.

It is the level to which stocks have returned whenever the administration has soft pedaled inflation and swung to conservative policies. It would seem low enough to make stocks sell "ex." Abandonment of gold, dollar devaluation, free silver, wild spending and "irresistable recovery."

EXPECT RECOVERY

Even if it does not hold now, I think it reasonably certain that prices will return to it by fall.

I would therefore certainly not sell sound reasonably priced stocks held on an investment basis or as a hedge against the dollar. I would be prepared to buy on a scale down from here, allowing for the possibility of a 10 per cent decline (say two points on a 20 stock). I would favor buying thus on any day of pronounced weakness with trading volume heavy.

It is not clear that liquidation has been completed. The Socialists at Washington are still dreaming dreams about regimentation and collectivist planning. They seem willing to wreck the industrial machine in order to experiment with a new one. But I don't think America will stay cockeyed forever, and I believe we will do one of the two things: Either we will revolt against the revolters as business now suffers a relapse, or they will resort to currency inflation and thus give us a "ride."

So, while there may still be a final selling wave, as last October, I would hold the really good stock through.

I do not advise speculative trading under such abnormal uncertain conditions, but as bearing on the possibility of an early rally, I note the following symptoms:

'BAD NEWS' OUT

1—The "bad news" is nearly out—stock exchange bill, utility regulation, drought, etc., and already "bargain hunters" are nibbling.

2—The weakness has now spread from the high priced leaders to most of the list, and several leaders have begun to hold better.

3—The technical position is well on the way to being cleared up.

4—On Saturday, there were indications of definite resistance as the averages neared that general level I mentioned above U. S. Steel and Atchison rebounded from their lows in a suggestive way, and Telephone showed continued resistance of the selling climax of the fifth and seventh.

If the market does not hold within the next day or two, a dip to the October low would seem probable. Even if a rally develops soon, a "secondary" decline might go lower. But unless you really believe that the NRA—AAA setup and new deal collectivism are going to wreck individual enterprise, why sell any sound equities that are now fairly priced?

PENN MUTUAL MEETS

At the sixth anniversary meeting of the local agency of The Penn Mutual Life Insurance Company, Vice President Frank H. Davis congratulated Holgar J. Johnson, the general agent, on the accomplishment of the Pittsburgh agency in having the largest first quarter in paid production in any similar period in the history of the agency.

He furthermore commented on the fact that the local agency has had a continuous growth over the entire six-year period and has grown from an agency organization of a few men to an organization of 104 well trained representatives for the company throughout the Western Pennsylvania territory.

Present at this meeting at the University Club on Saturday was the entire agency body of the local organization as well as two additional home office officials, Assistant Vice President Herbert Adam, who discussed the importance of proper beneficiary settlements under life insurance contracts, and William J. Probst, in charge of the salary deduction department, who spoke at considerable length on the growth of this new form of life insurance and congratulated the local agency on the fact that it was the third largest agency in the company in the placement of this type of insurance coverage.

Vice President Davis, in his remarks, commented on the improving business conditions as are being reflected in the repayments of loans by those who during the depression borrowed against their life insurance policies. He also remarked that the mortgage situation was improving very materially throughout the entire country.

STOCKS MIRROR WALL STREET GLOOM

NEW YORK, May 14.—(AP.)—Stock market sentiment generally was tinged with indigo and prices, as a whole, pointed downward.

After some minor rallies in the early trading, the list was subject to rather sharp selling pressure around noon and the ticker tape lagged behind floor transactions for a time. Losses ranged from 1 to 4 or more points before spport arrived. The activity dwindled on the recoveries. Many stocks dropped to new lows on the year or longer.

Influences again were principally psycological, actual iportant news being scarce. Grains drooped as fresh forecasts of rain in the drying-out agricultural districts appeared. Wheat dropped more than 2 cents a bushel, but came back moderately later. Cotton sagged sympathetically with wheat. Silver futures were fairly steady. Rubber eased. Bonds were irregular. International dollar rates were fairly even.

Commission houses reported that short selling had expanded perceptibly, but that the bears showed a disposition to take profits on the sizable dips. Early margin calls were numerous, and some of the declines were attributed to liquidation of various shaky accounts.

With the stock exchange control bill finally passed by the Senate and the differences between the House and Senate measures now up for conference settlement, the financial district was inclined to feel that the atmosphere in respect to this market factor should begin to clear rapidly. It was felt, in some quarters, that the market has been adjusting itself to the worst expectations and that it was not unlikely the final bill, as approved by the joint conference, may soften some of these maximum fears.

Reports of some weather relief in the crop growing districts were welcome to Wall street. At the same time it was realized that heavy damage has already been done throughout the wheat belt during the past several weeks. Just how much the purchasing power of farmers will be curtailed by the drought was a matter of serious discussion among business observers.

Guesses on the action of the American Telephone directors at Wednesday's meeting regarding the quarterly dividend were many and varied. The majority opinion was that the disbursement would be continued at the regular $9 annual rate. This line of thinking was based partly on President Gifford's report of increased business, made last week before a congressional committee.

COTTON PRICES RULE LOWER

NEW YORK, May 14.—(AP.)—Cotton futures opened barely steady, 6 to 8 points decline in response to lower Liverpool cables and on generally favorable weather. May, 11.05B; July, 11.22; October, 11.36; December, 11.46; January, 11.52B; March, 11.64.

Offerings were not heavy and the market was narrow enough to be rather influenced by orders either way during the early trading. There also seems to be some buying here for Japanese account. After easing off to 11.21. July held fairly steady at 11.24 at the end of the first half hour with the general list showing net losses of 2 to 4 points.

The market remained quiet later in the morning. Offerings were light and prices yielded rather readily to a little scattered southern selling. July sold off to 11.19 and December to 11.46 with the midday market showing net losses of about 7 to 9 points. The report of the census bureau placing domestic consumption for April at 512,703 bales against 542,690 in March and 470,359 in April last year was without apparent effect on the market.

LIVERPOOL, May 14.—Cotton—Receipts, 8,000 bales; American, nil. # Chickie's Daughter

By ELENORE MEHERIN

CHAPTER LXIX

"Get a few clothes, Pippin. Take as little as possible. A plane is waiting. We're flying to Bakersfield now. I've made the arrangements."

Pippin leaned with both hands on the door and stared frightened into her mother's eyes. Her lips were stiff. She could not bring forth the shocking words that formed in her mind.

"But why are we taking a plane?"

"He has asked for you. He is very seriously hurt."

She went blindly to her room, threw a few clothes into a suitcase, put on a heavy coat, left a note for Colleen Lowell and another for Kathleen, then followed her mother to the car.

She slumped in the corner, feeling rigid and terribly cold. Suddenly she was sitting bolt upright. A sickening alarm made her teeth chatter.

"When did you get this word? Please tell me what you know."

"Bill was conscious when they found him. He asked that David care for him and that you come. Bill's mother phoned from New York and begged your father to go to him. Fortunately he could do it. He has already left."

"And Bill's mother?"

"Is flying here."

"Oh mother! It must be he is dying?"

"Never think that! His plane got out of control when he had to fly blind through the storm. He was too low to make a parachute jump; he couldn't gain altitude. Motorists saw his flare; a short time later they heard the crash.

Found in Wreckage

"They found Bill pinned in the wreckage of his plane. He was still conscious."

Chickie didn't look into Pippin's face. She did not tell what David learned when the doctor in charge of the hospital to which Bill was brought, phoned. George Howard, the doctor, had been a student of David's in Medical School.

But Pippin thought: Dad is there! And sank down, her whole being shut with reluctance. She did not want to step into a plane and go flying to meet the dark, cold tragedy which might await her.

As they neared Mills' Field she protested faintly: "I don't want to go, mother. He may die! If Bill is dying I don't want to be there; don't want to see it."

She began to weep softly.

"He has asked for you, Pippin. You would surely not refuse. You would not evade. You must surely want to help him.

Then her mind leaped forward to meet Bill. Not crushed or injured but a tall, swift, laughing fellow who stole a kiss in the broad daylight as they drove from the parking station in Post street. A joyous, confident fellow whose eyes challenged happily—Is he a better man than I, Pippin?

This was the Bill Pippin now visualized and the one she would meet.

She stepped into the plane. It was a grey, cold day with an opaque fog over the ocean. But they flew across the valley, high above the drifting ceiling of mist and cloud.

Pippin said: "Why are you coming, mother? It seems so strange."

Numbed by Shock

Her mind was numbed with shock and terror. She looked down and saw to the East the mountain rising. They were not majestic purple shadows billowing through an azure heaven now. They were grey spires of desolation impaled on a watery, wind-swept sky.

She found Helena's hand: "I'm so frightened, mother, I won't know what to do."

"Yes, you will."

But she cried softly: "I won't be able to bear it!"

Pippin stood at the bed and gazed at the still figure lying there, lost in remote, unnatural sleep.

She murmured to herself, Bill! And kept her eyes on his quiet face. Bill's face. Just as usual with the blonde hair slicked back, the slightly pointed chin with the cleft in the middle and the full, boyish mouth. But the features sharpened; fixed in a clammy pallor. He lay so quiet.

She could not shake off the sense of unreality, the appalling conviction this was a visitation in a dream. A great, black shutter dropped over the bright, happy truth. It would be drawn away presently; she would see the real Bill, strong, laughing, happy.

She wondered if he were conscious of her presence; wondered if she should speak to him.

Then his eyelids flickered. His breath came with faint, shallow regularity. Very slightly he turned his head. His lips moved.

She thought he said: "Pippin!"

She looked about in hurried anguish for help.

Kisses Forehead

David stood at her side. He said: "Tell him you are here."

Pippin leaned down and with her cheek touching his, whispered: "Bill! Bill dear, this is Pippin. Do you hear?"

She kissed his forehead and wept.

A faint brightness moved for an instant along his mouth. But he gave no other sign. Yet Pippin, watching, thought he seemed at peace; seemed not so lost in heavy, trance-like stupor.

She was afraid of a blue shadow over his mouth and that his skin had a cold, damp look. He kept wetting his lips as though he were parched with thirst. The nurse gave him spoons of liquid.

Pippin sat there and prayed. She said odd, frightened, child-like prayers: "Oh God, make him well! God, lift him out of this!"

Bill lay there in a dim dream. Now and again sentences formed in his mind and vanished before he had strength to utter them.

He saw Pippin coming to meet him with jewels in her hair. She laughed and fled away into grey, impenetrable mist but he heard a singing in the dark. It was her voice. He followed it and called again, Pippin!"

She put her hand in his, repeating: "I'm here, Bill. Do you see me?"

He smiled faintly, or she thought he smiled.

Now it was his mother who came. She appeared suddenly at the door with a warning: "You'll take the southern route. Be careful!"

He said aloud, clearly: "Mother!"

David with his finger on Bill's pulse, answered: "She is coming. Your mother will soon be here."

Goes Into Oblivion

He leaped down into strangely distorted oblivion. Sharp pictures, all angles, ashed before him and merged grotesquely on other pictures.

He was in the plane whirling through the black chaos of wind and storm. He saw the black ledge of land rising and pulled with both hands on the stick.

He moaned indistinctly: "My legs—look—all blood—can't stop it—"

For a long time he lay quiet.

Pippin followed her mother to an adjoining room.

She said harshly: "Are his legs gone, mother?"

"No—they are broken and crushed."

"They won't take them off? He's not going to be crippled?"

"They will save them of course—if possible."

Pippin sank on the bed and covered her face.

Helena said: "Go to bed now. It is late. You will want your strength."

She looked at her mother with dark indignation. But David came in and said simply: "You came here to be of help, Pippin. Get sleep. He won't be aware of your absence."

David looked grim, competent, deadly quiet. She said, brokenly: "You have no hope!"

"Always hope!"

That recalled another scene to Chickie. Jake brought into the hospital, all his lordly strength laid low. David said almost that same thing—Hope!

---

Pippin kept awakening. She knew that her mother lay on the bed beside her. Now that Helena was moving with stalthy glide across the room.

She cried sharply: "What has happened?"

"Sleep! There is no change."

Awakes to Horror

Late Saturday morning with the early May sunlight flooding the room Pippin came starkly awake, the whole horrifying night-mare sharp in her memory. A nurse set a breakfast tray before her.

Helena sat there making her eat. When she looked in her mother's white face she was afraid even to say: "How is he?"

"He is in the operating room. They are giving him more blood."

"Did he lose so much?"

"Yes—a great deal. The main artery in his leg was severed. He is internally injured."

She couldn't ask more. She knew now that Bill was dying. There wasn't any chance. Even David could do no more!

She said with a sob: "Oh Helena—his mother!"

"He is conscious, Pippin. He knows his mother is coming."

"Mother—you mean that he will fight to keep alive?"

"He has great courage. He will fight."

Hours later when Pippin stood again at Bill's bed, her fears vanished. He looked better!

The bed was tilted. He kept saying: "Water!"

She stooped down: "Hello, Bill!"

After a moment and with an effort his eyes opened. One hand protruded from the covers. The fingers moved. She took hold of them.

He smiled: "I have — that ring."

Bill Tells Her to Stay

The nurse came and put a star sapphire in Bill's palm. It was a lovely silky blue. He fumbled for her finger but relaxed and lay there as though he had forgotten.

"Do you want me to put it on, Bill?"

After a long pause he answered: "Remembrance."

She kissed him, the tears flooding her eyes.

"It's beautiful. I don't want to remember you lying here. I want you better."

He didn't answer. He seemed not to care.

The nurse said: "You may as well leave now."

But when Pippin drew her hand from Bill's, his fingers tightened with amazing strength.

"Stay!"

He took short, yawning breaths that terrified her. He seemed thirsty for air. But his lips moved as though he wished to speak.

"What do you want to say, Bill?"

"My mother—she's so long—getting here. You help her."

This smote her like a club flat on her heart. Bill dying—his mother arriving too late.

She leaned down and whispered in his ear: "You wait for her, Bill! You won't do that to her, Bill. They say you have to fight!"

But she did not know that he heard.

CLOSING CAMPAIGN OF INDEPENDENCE WAR—BRITISH SURRENDER AT YORKTOWN

After his victory at Camden, S. C., August 16, 1780, British Gen. Cornwallis pursued the fleeing Gen. Gates northward. At Kings Mountains, N. C., the British were stopped by mountaineer riflemen and forced to retreat.

Able Gen. Greene replaced Gen. Gates in command of the South. His Gen. Morgan defeated British cavalry at Cowpens, S. C., (Jan. 17, 1781). Greene gave battle at Guilford, N. C., March 15. Cornwallis, carrying the victory at great cost, withdrew to Wilmington, then marched into Virginia, devastating the lands, causing over $10,000,000 damage.

Meanwhile Gen. Greene pushed the British from the Carolinas and Georgia toward the coast.

In September, Cornwallis' troops were enclosed in fortified Yorktown between the James and York rivers by the armies of Washington and the French under Rochambeau, who marched from the north joining Lafayette's little army. The French fleet controlled the sea. October 19, Cornwallis surrendered Yorktown, the last scene of the heroic struggle for American liberty. (U. S. History)

ATTILA CHECKED AT CHALONS—THEODORIC FALLS—THORISMUND CROWNED

Huns (Mongolians) advanced from north of Asia into Europe, driving the people (Goths, Vandals, etc.) to migrate and to invade the Roman empire. The Huns established a strong empire in Central Europe after devastating lands between the Black Sea and the Mediterranean. Their King Attila (434-453), the "Scourge of God" besieged Byzantium (Constantinople) and exacted tribute from the Eastern Roman Emperor Theodosius II. In his conquest, Attila broke into Gaul but was checked at Chalons (Roman Catalaun) (451) by the armies of Aetius (Roman) and Theodoric (Visigoth) one of the decisive battles of history. Theodoric fell, his son Thorismund was crowned king of the Visigoths on the battlefield (above).

The next year Attila attacked Rome, saved only by the intervention of Pope Leo I, who visited the barbarian in his camp and entreated him to withdraw. (World History)

VICTORIOUS POET CARRIED IN TRIUMPH AT OLYMPIA

The most famous of the national games of the Ancient Greeks were those held at Elis in Olympia. Even in war truce was proclaimed and time allowed for coming and going to these games, a leading feature of Greek life. They were held every fourth year and athletes, musicians, poets and artists came from all parts of Greece to compete for the simple prizes in form of olive crowns or beautiful vases. The Olympic games were a great factor to promote national feeling, physical culture, artistic and mental powers among the Greeks and served as a model to the world.

Culture of physical and mental faculties, developing an able body and sound mind are equally important. Neither should be over-emphasized to the detriment of the other. (Character Building)

OCTOPUS OR CUTTLE FISH

Octopus or cuttle fish is a large, carnivorous, mollusc often endangering pearl divers, shell collectors. It has a short, soft, sack-like finless body, has eight arms covered with suckers. It sometimes grows 14 feet from tip to tip. Its jaws are sharp, chitinous; it has a glandular ink-sack secreting a dark fluid to cloud the water. (Gen. Science)

THE CYCLE OF NITROGEN IN NATURE

Nitrogen, along with carbon and hydrogen, is one of the characteristic elements of living matter. It is a constituent of proteins, fundamental compounds of all protoplasms. Nitrogen, a free gas, is part of the atmosphere. It enters into compounds by nitrogen fixing micro-organisms and is taken by plants as food. Animals feed on plants, return nitrogen with excreta and cadavers to soil.

Bacteria of nitrification, growing on the roots of legumes and those in the soil convert proteins into nitric acid which, with basic matter of the soil, give nitrates, the important plant-foot. In a soil, deficient in bases, nitrifying bacteria refuse to work. Thus acid fields have to be made basic by lime. (Chemistry) 77-III-B

Raising the Soldiers to Be Boys

The training camps for citizens are very popular.

That's because the citizens figure what the nation needs in time of war is a lot of good fishermen.

Our next door neighbor started out yesterday to learn how to guard the land in the future hour of stress and peril.

He carried his fishing rod, a golf bag, a quart of the finest first aid to the exhausted, a croquet set and a book instructing him how to smell a flower with a bee on it.

The whole thing is very military except for the rank and file. When the bugler wheezes taps in the morning the citizenry turn out to be music critics.

Instead of getting up like we did in the Army they discuss the bugler's technique.

"When I was in the Riverdale Bicycle Academy," says an expert bunion scooper, "The bugler always played two verses and an extra chorus."

"I remember that fellow," continues another mattress scout, "He wasn't temperamental. Give him a little applause and he would play all day."

"Sure, all he wanted was fan mail," says a third intrepid bunk hero who thought a mopper-up was bread for cleaning your mess kit.

"That bugler ain't bad and he ain't good," is the next bit of constructive criticism. "He can't triple-tongue, but he is clubby. He's including 'Lazy Bones' in his repertoire tomorrow."

By the time the colonel gets his spurs clipped to his pajamas all the start he has for the day's army is a bugler and himself.

We are not blaming anybody. It is very difficult to turn a civilian into a soldier in a day. And it's a bad start to pamper 'em early in the morning with dance music. Pretty soon a soldier will join the army with the stipulation of remaining indoors when it rains.

We expect to leave for the citizen's training camp in a few weeks. It's very close to the house and the colonel has given us permission to sleep home.

So when you hear the tramp, tramp of feet you will know the boys are marching. Not very far. Not very fast. Not in step. They're off to the front to the rest camp.

ODD FACTS

German troops now wear signal lights when marching on roads at night. The last man of each formation is equipped with a signal lamp on his cap, arm or back to warn approaching motorists that soldiers are on the road. The plan was tried after troopers had been injured by cars while traveling at night.

The world's smallest park is in Saint John, New Brunswick. Known as Sullivan's park, it is 20 feet long and six feet wide.

Be Sure to Vote

The Polls Will Be Open Tomorrow From 8 A. M. Until 8 P. M., Daylight Saving Time.

The citizens of Pennsylvania are called upon to perform tomorrow one of the most important civic duties, the nomination of the candidates of their parties for the important offices that are to be filled in the November election.

We are to indicate our choice for United States Senator, Governor, Lieutenant-Governor, Secretary of Internal Affairs, Representatives in Congress, Representatives in the Legislature, State Senators in certain districts, and party officers.

The well-being of all of us will be affected for better or worse by the results of the primary. It will be affected for the better if every citizen who is able to do so will go to the polls and vote conscientiously and intelligently. Bad government is generally due to careless voting, or to the failure of a large section of the citizenship to vote.

There will be no excuse for staying away from the polls tomorrow on the ground that the field of candidates is too limited. Policies and personalities in great variety will be found represented on the ballot.

On the other hand, the multiplicity of candidates cannot be accepted as an excuse for not voting. It may be confusing to a slothful person who has not taken the trouble to make inquiries about the various candidates and what they stand for; but conscientious citizens are not supposed to be slothful. Voting is not merely a right or privilege—it is a duty and part of that duty is to exercise intelligence in the casting of the ballot.

The Sun-Telegraph has presented the platforms and principles of the major candidates and thrown considerable illumination on the character of their personalities. Civic bodies and other organizations have given advice to the voters.

If, notwithstanding all this information, you are bewildered, rather than vote blindly get in touch with friends and neighbors this evening and seek the benefit of their opinions and knowledge.

Help to preserve democratic government—government of, for and by the people—a majority of the people—by voting tomorrow. The polls will be open from 8 o'clock in the morning until 8 o'clock in the evening, daylight saving time.

Squires Oppose Change

They Seek to Preserve Oxcart Government and The Fee System.

Political parasites who might lose their jobs if oxcart government were to be modernized are striving to elect legislators who will oppose a change.

Jacob L. Moser, organizer of the State Magistrates' Association, is appealing in private letters, one of which has come into the possession of the Sun-Telegraph, for the election of J. M. O'Rourke to the General Assembly from the Twelfth Legislative District.

Moser says O'Rourke is the man who made a strong speech in the House to defeat the bill which would have forbidden squires to put the costs on the county in discharged assault cases. He intimates that O'Rourke can be depended upon to combat any legislation that would do away with privileges that the minor judiciary now enjoy.

The existing minor judiciary system is a relic of oxcart days and costs the taxpayers of Allegheny County unnecessarily many hundreds of thousands of dollars in fees that the squires are paid by the county in discharged cases.

It would promote economy and justice to get rid of the squires, of whom we have far too many, and establish in their place minor courts—say one for every 50,000 of population. The judges of these courts should be men learned in the law, and they should be paid salaries.

Remove the Signs!

If Illegal Political Posters Are Not Torn Down, Those Responsible Should Be Prosecuted.

Thomas O. Hasley, Director of County Highways, is quoted as saying that on a 100-mile tour last week he saw only two political posters. Well, on Saturday, in just one place, at the south end of the Sewickley Bridge over the Ohio River, there were signs on posts and poles along the public highway, advertising the candidacies of Charles J. Margiotti for Governor, Dr. Frank C. Ferrante for Congress, and Herman C. A. Hofacker, Cyril F. Ruffenach, W. H. Prosser and Dr. Joseph G. Steedle for the Legislature. And if Mr. Hasley were to look further in that neighborhood he would find plenty of others.

The public utilities companies say they not only have given no permission for the erection of such signs on their poles but are opposed to it.

Mr. Hasley, as Director of Highways, should insist on the removal of the signs. Otherwise they may remain up for years, like that poster of the late County Commissioner Joseph G. Armstrong which still "decorates" a tree beside the Flaugherty's Run road.

If those responsible for putting up the signs refuse to tear them down, Mr. Hasley might try a little prosecution. A Pennsylvania law approved March 10, 1903, provides a fine of from $5 to $20 for puting up a sign on public property or on private property without the owners' written consent. The imposition of a few fines probably would have a healthy effect.

The Meanest Man

The Blind Should Be on Guard Against the Scoundrel Who Is Victimizing Mothers.

There seems to be no limit to human baseness.

We nominate as "the meanest man" the scoundrel reported by the Mothers' Assistance Fund who has been victimizing poor widows with children by telling them that for $15 he would arrange to have them placed on the State's pension list. What a shabby Mother's Day story!

The blind, who are soon to be eligible for State aid, should be on guard against such impostors.

Pay solicitors of this type no money. Call the police.

Those 'College Boys'

A Job for a Mentalist.

Those who are puzzled by the ever-varied acrobatics of some aspects of the New Deal might appeal for aid to Joseph Dunninger who calls himself a "mentalist."

Dunninger sat in Supreme Court Justice Miller's courtroom in New York City the other day and predicted to the dot the exact amount of time a jury would take to reach a verdict in a damage suit, and the exact amount of damages.

Maybe an "ist" of this kind can predict what all those "college boys" at Washington have up their capacious sleeves. No one else seems to be able to.

The Pied Piper

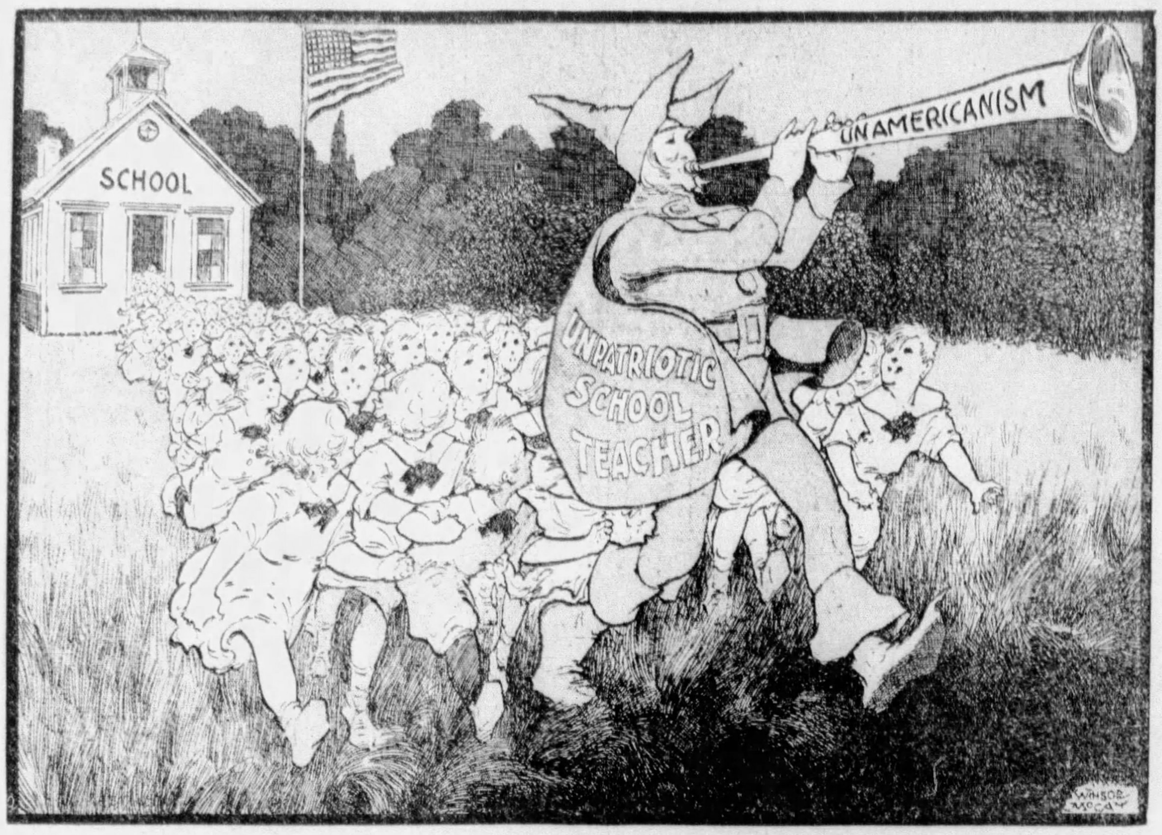
(Copyright, 1934.)



The ancient town of Hamelin in Germany is celebrating the anniversary of its Pied Piper, who in the medieval legend beguiled all the children away with alluring music and sealed them up forever in a mountain.

Variants of the tale have been found in several other lands. It is, in truth, one of mankind's best allegories—that of youth led away by false teachers.

In this country alien propaganda has invaded our schools with its subtle and hostile purposes.

Communism seeks to assert itself against Americanism, and teachers to the number of seven hundred in New York City alone protest in Communistic language against a simple oath of allegiance to the Constitution.

That dangerous, insidious and alien element must be rooted out of the educational system.

Our people maintain their public schools to teach their children the principles of Americanism, not disloyalty to our institutions and our national ideals.

No Cinch!

To kiss or not to kiss? The old "petting" problem appears to be with us once again. Like sulphur-and-molasses, like camphor and moth-balls, this perennial question comes back to take the edge off our joy every spring.

* * *

"Do men prefer petters or non-petters? HO-hum. Is it wiser to submit to a man's caress and let him muss up your lipstick and probably class you xx among the cheap-and-easy? Or to be an Icy Isabel and run the risk of being regarded as a "dud" and left at home with all the "good books?"

"WHAT DO MEN PREFER?"

It is amazing that an independent, modern girl with a good working-brain should be so eager, so anxious, so doubtful about "what MEN really like!" How about a WOMAN'S likes and dislikes? How about a GAL'S preferences?

* * *

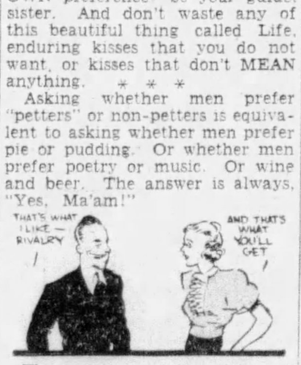
Do women like chronic maulers? I should SAY NOT! They are just one of the social pests left over from the jazz age. Does a girl like (and expect) to be kissed, embraced and manhandled every time she finds herself alone with a man? ANY man? Is she flattered or "fluttered" by this sort thing? She is—NOT!

* * *

Let your intuition (and your OWN preference) be your guide, sister. And don't waste any of this beautiful thing called Life, enduring kisses that you do not want, or kisses that don't MEAN anything.

* * *

Asking whether men prefer "petters" or non-petters is equivalent to asking whether men prefer pie or pudding. Or whether men prefer poetry or music. Or wine and beer. The answer is always, "Yes, Ma'am!"



There are as many different masculine preferences and prejudices as there are different kinds of men. Some men prefer a responsive girl and are frozen out by indifference. Others get more kick out of pursuing a difficult one.

* * *

Some men admire pep and coquettishness—and some admire reserve and technique. Some men like to feel that they are "the first and only" in a girl's life, while others are keener if they suspect that they have a lot of rivalry. A woman must be a first class psychologist to know her man, now that she has no set rules to go by.

* * *

There is only one rule, which a woman may be sure applies to every man. Too MUCH responsiveness, too MANY kisses, like too much liquor, make him SICK! While a man may be delightfully thrilled by a girl's response to his first kiss, his interest is easily choked out by a prolonged clutch around the neck.

* * *

The BIG It-Girls are those who know intuitively, how to balance the responsiveness and the indifference, the affection and the reserve, the coquetry and the coolness, so as to keep a man in a perpetual state of doubt and surprise. Because there is nothing that a man loves so much as a SURPRISE!

* * *

The rules of the Love-game were once as hard and fast as the rules of Bridge. But nowadays a girl has to play it by instinct—and that's NO CINCH!

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

CHICAGO, May 14.—Chicago is to me the rowdy of American cities, roaring with honest challenge, lush odors and blunt defy. It has not emerged from civilization's laundry, as has New York, with snow-white cuffs, the scent of pomade and a twirl of the bamboo. Hair cuts are still round.

But there are no white corpuscles among the red. Bluff heartiness of the frontier peeps through, despite mass formation of Wrigley towers, built out on the lake boulevards and the shine of its smart Michigan avenue shops. Of all big cities it has preserved its rugged individuality.

It is not difficult to understand why Chicago turned out such hell-bounders of journalism as Charles V. MacArthur, Ben Hecht, B. L. T., Jack Lait and Upton Sinclair. There is smack-'em-down in the air. The crossing cop's whistle does not tweet. It blurts. There are no sissy zephyrs. Only wild-cat gales.

Charles G. Dawes came out of the serene, academic-minded shady treed college town of Marietta, O., and became the fierce desk pounder of La Salle street with a possum bellied pipe and "Hell and Maria" talk. Chicago works that sort of hocus-pocus on all its children. They must take life in bounds or sink.

* * *

Will H. Hays mentioned the other day he and his wife were departing for the coast. I called signals for a family huddle, prostrated myself before a few creditors and we tagged along. The Chief westward ho's at noon and we'll be aboard, bag and baggage and dog. O yes, we are to see this trek through the eyes of my wife's aunt, Mrs. Emma Kerns, a lady of 82 years young, who has lived most of her life in the quiet places and is thus highly attuned to amazements to which many worldlings are blind.

* * *

The aristocratic Twentieth Century to Chicago is even more successful looking and worldly than Monte Carlo's famous Blue Train. A magnificent conveyance, of course, but I think it wins by its first punch—that neat conceit of unrolling a special sky blue plush carpet down the ramp for feet of its passengers. No meandering moujik ever forgets that. In the observation car, pulling out of Englewood, this morning a dazzling blonde, medicining herself against stark realities of the world with a before-breakfast Scotch and soda, sighed: "Well, in an hour I'll snap back into my mother role." A modern mama returning from Bagdad on the Hudson!

* * *

In the far end of the observation car sat the shaggy-gray Pullman and train conductors with black valises, like directors of a stage drama awaiting to be off at the curtain fall. The play has ended. Their gilt sleeve stripe bespoke faithful years. The whine of a passenger plane's motor roared distinctly overhead.

* * *

I got through most of the night in relaxing rhythm. Not once did the car-wheels tickety-tack any vagrant idiocy such as "Heinie Manush to play today!" but about sunup my reserve was exhausted and the darn things, in staccato, began "It is not raining rain today, it's raining violets."

* * *

Chicago's Champs Elysees, Michigan avenue, is loveliest in 10 o'clock morning sunshine with the aqua-marine sparkle of the lake at its feet. Rightly it takes its place as one of the beautiful boulevards of the world. There are late breakfasters through windows at the Blackstone and Congress. Traffic rolls into a thick purr of glittering limousines, smart ladies patrol the pavements and Boul' Mich, as much as its Parisian namesake, is dotted with accomplished saunterers, a type never seen in the New York buckitty-buckitty.

* * *

Our taxi driver did not have the prairie politeness that is a marked Chicago brand of the charioteers. His accent was broadly Delancey street. "You're a long way from Times square," I suggested. He grinned. "Iff'n you'd seen my kisser when I gets here!" he grinned. It appears he was on the wrong side with his fellows in the Manhattan cab strike recently and they gave him the business. He's camping out!

* * *

The mellow old Santa Fe Station, with its two sepia porters from Gallipolis, sparks shortly before The Chief thunders out. Photographers flashlight the movie stars and lesser figures in the great American comedy. Our luggage is aboard and as I did the packing this time in a fit of pique I feel it is a thorough job. When I'm mad I never forget. It's the elephant in me. I even brought pants guards in case some fool suggests bicycling.

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

Why Shouldn't the Pluggers Have the Pickings?

The lady with the lorgnette was talking to the man with the monocle. Says she, with one of those sinus snorts peculiar to snooty socialites:

"What an absurd gesture—this Russian ship KIM. Of course, you've heard about it; that thing the Soviet sent over. Utterly ridiculous. Outside cabins for the crew! Individual radio sets! The same mess table for everyone! Shower baths, amusements, every conceivable luxury! Practically no distinction between common sailors and officers. Incredible! Think of the vicious notions that will start in the herd mind at a time like this! Can you imagine anything more insane?"

Whereupon—this not being an open season for homicide and me being part Irish—I move myself out of the murder zone. But this is what I'd like to have said in answer.

Can I imagine anything more insane than giving "common workers" the same breaks as the higher ups?

Yes, lady, I can imagine several million things more insane. The first and foremost of them being that ancient but cockeyed notion that THE PLUGGERS SHOULDN'T HAVE THE PICKINGS.

Meaning what? Meaning, f'rinstance, this business of social equality after working hours, private rooms, shower baths, clean sheets, swell food, individual radio sets and other gadgets and arrangements pleasing to the outer and inner man.

Just why should you assume that only the Anointed and Elected rate such privileges and pleasures? And that the guys who do the dirty work wouldn't appreciate them, even if they got them?

You do assume exactly that. Even in our supposedly "democratic" America, with its delightful myth concerning equality, you and your tribe have always assumed that the white breast meat and embroidered guest towels should always go to the Who's Who list. And that it was only starting a lot of malicious nonsense to treat the underdog as you'd like to be treated yourselves.

So now come the Russians with their swank ship KIM and show what Equality is really like; which, says you, is Malicious Nonsense! But as one of the gang who've usually had to wash up in the back shed, I'm here to tell you, lady—you're wrong.

The Russian idea isn't malicious nonsense. IT'S THE GRANDEST EXHIBITION OF FAIR PLAY AND GOOD SENSE THAT HAS HAPPENED IN THESE WATERS SINCE THE BOSTON TEA-PARTY DAYS. And it should make most of us four-flushing Yankees feel like 30 cents.

Why should Common Sailors be given as much comfort and courtesy as Officers?

Why SHOULDN'T they?

Culture may be limited to those of a certain intellectual grasp, but physical COMFORT and social COURTESY are appreciated and deserved by every normal human being.

The Man on the Bridge may know more about the merits of an etching than The Man in the Hold, but he isn't a particle more sensitive to the delights of a clean bed, a warm bath, a comfortable, quiet room, a tasty meal. Nor has he any greater need of those privileges upon which healthy character and fine conduct depend—the right to privacy, the relaxation of amusement, the regard of and the proud association with his fellows, on terms of mutual respect.

Not only can the Man in the Hold appreciate and use these pleasures and privileges as well as the Man on the Bridge, but he deserves them as much. Granted, that the chap in uniform may have a more highly developed intelligence than the fellow in overalls, and may contribute more valuable and specialized service to his country. The fact still remains that the country would flop far more quickly if the pluggers quit than it would if the plutocrats and Ph. D's were removed.

Your spirit may prefer poets to plumbers, philosophers to farmers—but your health doesn't. We could manage to struggle along without Mr. Bernard Shaw—but just try to eliminate bath tubs and toilets, turnips and beets, and see what would happen to life.

So, while I'm no Communist, I'm handing it to the Soviet for their latest gesture. While we've been preaching democracy, they've put it into practice. And believe me, fellow countrymen, that big, jolly, 50-50 ship is going to leave plenty more in its wake than a swish of suds!

The Gate

There are wide fields that lie beyond
My narrow boundaries,
And past the fields are mountains tall
And farther, plains and seas.

O, gladly, gladly do I pass
Through fair and changeful ways
To learn the loveliness life holds
And all its joy, its praise;

Its fields of peace, its peaks of hope,
Its seas of bliss that wait;
But never could I enter there
Until I found the gate.

Life's meanings I could never gain
Its truths I could not prove
Until the gate swung wide for me
The gate? The gate is love!

A New Plan to Abolish Oxcart Government

By James T. Williams, Jr.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT may well welcome the adoption by the House of a joint resolution recently offered in that body by a Republican member — Congressman McLeod, of Michigan.

Under this resolution, Congress would request the President to invite the Governors of the several states to an emergency conference to be held in the Federal city soon after his return from his cruise in the Pacific this summer.

The purpose of this meeting of Governors with the President would be to formulate and adopt a national program "to reduce excessive costs of state governments and their local subsidiaries by reorganization of local government systems and elimination of all obsolete and unncessary offices and functions."

The resolution recites in clear and concise form the reasons why the states should endeavor to agree upon and carry out, under the leadership of the President, such a program at this time.

The urgent need of effective relief from the increasing burden of taxation ought to be evident to thoughtful citizens in all walks of life.

* * *

Taxes Wasted On Outworn Offices

THERE IS abundant evidence to prove that a large part of the taxes now collected for the support of government, especially government within the several states, "is wastefully used for the maintenance of outworn and wholly unnecessary public offices and functions."

The squandering of excessive taxes wrung from the people to pay the cost of useless offices and functions "has contributed in large beasure to forced curtailment of fire and police protection, public education and other vitally essential and necessary civic functions."

Reorganization of local county and state governments under a program that would promote efficiency, and therefore economy, in the administration of the public business would, as the McLeod resolution sets forth, "afford substantial relief to the country's harassed tapayers, protect essential civic functions and greatly assist national recovery."

As Governor of New York and in the early days of his Presidency, Mr. Roosevelt urged upon the people of his own state and upon his neighbors throughout the nation the duty of ridding themselves of the obsolete system of county and local government, which has come down from the day when the oxcart was the chief means of transportation. He has shown by vivid illustrations how stupid and costly it is to keep up such a system of oxcart government in the days of the automobile.

* * *

Governmental Units In Excessive Number

A GLANCE AT the map of the United States reveals that the several states are divided today into more than three thousand counties and into many more thousands of smaller subdivisions of local government. An army of tax collectors swarm through the country collecting taxes to support these useless and inefficient governmental units. Thousands upon thousands of officials are living off the people in offices that no longer are required to attend to the people's business.

This oxcart system of government is in reality "government of the politicians, by the politicians and for the politicians." It is the antithesis of "government of the people, by the people, and for the people."

Calvin Coolidge always insisted that his chief service as Governor of Massachusetts was in reducing the departments of his state government to 20. Had he been Governor of Massachuetts for another two years, he would probably have carried this reform into the county and local units of government in that commonwealth.

Given the leadership of the President, a governors' conference, meeting in the Federal city in the early autumn, might inaugurate a national reform that would outrank in history any act of Congress that has been passed in the present decade. This national reform—the modernizing of oxcart government within the states to meet the challenge of a new day—urgently needs the leadership of a Roosevelt to succeed.

An English Child's Tribute to His Mother—Some Interesting Zoological Specimens

By Edwin C. Hill

I DON'T THINK that ever I came across such a childish tribute to mother love and, indeed, at the same time, such a striking picture in few words of what poverty means to a mother toiling all alone for a large family, as I encountered the other day in the pages of the London Chronicle. The rector of a neighborhood church has asked the boys of the neighborhood to write on the subject of "My Mother." And here, exactly as it was written, is the tribute of one small son:

"My mother is a nice lady. She is five feet tall and three feet wide. She has no false teeth, but her front teeth are broken. She is married. She married my father at St. James when she was 18. She has eight more children beside me and she says she would not be without one of us. We have two bedrooms and one kitchen.

"Every morning she goes office cleaning at five, stepping soft as to not awaken us. She meets her mates at the tram. She leaves our lunch packets and milk pennies on the dresser. Dad gets our breakfast before he goes to look for work. She gets home before we start for school and sees we are tidy. Then she starts her housework. She sweeps the rooms, makes the beds, does the shopping, peels the potatoes, cooks twelve dinners, one for granny who lives ten doors away.

"Mondays and Thursdays she scrubs the rooms. Tuesday is washing day. This is the only day she grumbles. Wednesday and Friday she mends our clothes which are always getting tore. Saturday she goes to get our stores. She takes my sister to learn her the trade of bargaining with the butcher. At 4 she gets tea. At 5 she is to go office-cleaning again and gets home at 9 and puts us to bed. She brings us cocoa in bed. She keeps on the go all day and never sits down. She looks after the sick baby upstairs while its mother is at work. When she dies, I shall miss her terribly."

The utterly naive and honest estimate by a small boy of the slums of a mother fated to endless toil. I have never seen anything quite like it in all literature.

'Sea Serpent' Is Photographed

TWO INTERESTING zoological specimens raise their heads in the news. One is our old friend, the sea serpent of Loch Ness, a lake in Aberdeenshire, Scotland. And the sea serpent literally raised his head just at the moment that Dr. Robert Kenneth Wilson, a noted surgeon of the London Hospital, was sitting in his boat, camera at hand, and not 200 yards away. Before Dr. Wilson's startled eyes, a great snake-like head broke the surface and then came a long, snakelike neck obviously attached to a huge body.

Like the first man who ever saw a camel, Dr. Wilson may have thought in his amazement, "There ain't no such animal," but he snatched up his camera and took four pictures of the weird creature before it sank beneath the surface. Seeing is believing, especially when a camera does the seeing, and Dr. Wilson's photographs of the incredible monster, which has aroused the curiosity of the world, have created a sensation in England.

Prior to Dr. Wilson's view of the Lock Ness monster, two persons, a woman motorist and an Inverness chemist, had reported sighting the creature, at different hours on April fourth. Earlier, on January 19, four Benedictine monks, from Fort Augustus Abbey, had added their testimony to the increasing group of residents and tourists who have, at one time or another, seen the unbelievable. It was on Jaunary 10 that the corpse of a man about 50 years old was discovered on the shores of Loch Ness, hard by enormous tracks. And since then no less than 155 people have solemnly averred that they have had a distinct view of the monster reptile.

The pictures taken by the London surgeon, a man of the highest repute and credibility, make it seem that something like one of the great plesiosaurians, whose tread shook the earth many millions of years ago, has somehow survived. There can no longer be any doubt that the sea serpent actually exists, a marvel and a mystery of the first water.

Tammany Tiger Also in the News

THE OTHER animal which appears strongly in the news in the Tammany Tiger. New York, and much of the country, for that matter is still buzzing with excitement over the eviction, as leader of Tammany Hall, of John F. Curry. Tammany is almost as old as the government of the United States, but never before in its history had it forcibly unseated its chief. Greatly liked and highly respected personally, John Curry was deposed from command of the country's most famous political organization because of his peculiar gift for picking the wrong horse.

Five years ago, when he was elected leader, he was powerful. At his disposal were thousands of fat jobs. He was the Democratic boss of the State of New York, as well as the city, and his influence was powerfully felt in Washington. Then he saw fit to oppose the nomination of Franklin D. Roosevelt for President and of Herbert H. Lehman for Governor.

Routed in both battles, he came to his Waterloo in the last New York City election when Tammany's candidate ran third, and Tammany lost practically all the immense patronage of the great city. Not only that, but the organization was hopelessly in disfavor at Washington, and the deposition of Curry is credited, to a large extent, to the influence of the President and Postmaster General Farley.

Anyway, a general who loses all his battles cannot expect to retain the loyalty of his army. Tammany under John Curry, made the one fatal mistake. It saw itself as a little bigger than the President of the United States.
